GAYNOR IS OUT; SHEPARD LEADS

Mayor Makes It Plain He Would Not Accept Nomination for Governor.

CITY IS FOR BROOKLYN MAN

Kings Will Present His Name and Tammany Is Expected to Follow.

OSBORNE FOR SECOND PLACE

Charles F. Murphy in Full Control—Says Gaynor's Latest Letter Was a Surprise.

GAYNOR'S DECLINATION FINAL.

St. James, Sept. 26, 1910.

Dear Mr. Creelman:

I am this day writing a letter to Chairman Dix stating that I am not a candidate for nomination for Governor, and refuse to become such. I do this to remove all doubt on the subject which may have arisen by reason of irresponsible statements which I am informed are being circulated. No utterance of mine has put the matter in doubt.

Some have said to me that the convention may nominate me, although I am not a candidate. It seems to me that it might appear vain or egotistical for me to assume in my letter to Mr. Dix that that extraordinary thing might happen. I therefore write this supplemental letter to you to take to Rochester and show there so as to prevent my nomination if it should appear to be imminent.

Make it plain that if nominated I would decline to accept. I could not abandon to their fate the splendid men whom I have appointed to office, and who are working so hard for good government, nor could I abandon the people of the City of New York after so short a service.

You may make this letter public in advance of going to Rochester if in your judgment you think the situation calls for it. But do not do so unless it be plainly necessary. Every honest man will understand me.

Sincerely yours,

W. J. GAYNOR.

James Creelman, Esq.

The foregoing letter from Mayor Gaynor was made public last night by James Creelman, to whom it was addressed. Mr. Creelman, who is a magazine writer, has long been an intimate personal friend of Mayor Gaynor. He was a member of the Committee of Nine which placed Mr. Gaynor in nomination for the Mayoralty before the received the indorsement of the Democratic City Convention.

Mayor Gaynor had commissioned Mr. Creelman, as his personal representative, to go to Rochester to prevent his being nominated for Governor. For this purpose he had given him the letter, entirely in his own handwriting. Mr. Creelman, though not a delegate to the convention, will go to Rochester to represent Mayor Gaynor there.

The situation became such yesterday that in Mr. Creelman's opinion an immediate and explicit statement was necessary to prevent Mayor Gaynor's nomination, and he gave out the letter.

SHEPARD PROBABLE NOMINEE.

Undercurrent for Him Apparent Before Gaynor's Second Letter Came.

Special to The New York Times.

ROCHESTER, Sept. 27.—Edward M. Shepard will probably be the Democratic nominee for Governor.

There is still no doubt that if Mayor Gaynor were willing to accept the nomination his name would be the only one seriously considered, but his letter to James Creelman is regarded as final. The letter to State Chairman Dix was not taken seriously for a moment, and the letter to Creelman would not be if it were not for the sentence: "Make it plain that if nominated I would decline to accept."

When that sentence was shown to the most ardent Gaynor men they groaned and threw up their hands. They were prepared even yet to say that Gaynor would accept if nominated, in spite of his letter, but they admitted that they could not make the delegates believe it, and for that reason an attempt to force his nomination was sure to meet with defeat. There is still Gaynor talk, and plenty of it, around the hotels, but by this time tomorrow it will probably be dead.

With the collapse of the Gaynor boom emerged the lurking candidacy of Edward M. Shepard, never put to the fore, never acknowledged as in existence until today. Shepard has no headquarters, no publicly organized support, but all the time he has been in the back of the heads of the men who were ostensibly pushing Gaynor. Hours before Gaynor's letter to Creelman arrived in Rochester, and before its existence was suspected, there was the strongest undercurrent of Shepard talk.

Shepard will be put forward as the candidate of Kings County. This is a knockout blow to the talk which has been going around here for the last three days that New York City was going to stay in the background and let "up State" run things.

It is by Shepard's own choice that this situation arises. Warren County, where he has a Summer home, was desirous of presenting his name, but until a late hour to-night it seemed probable that Chatauqua County might have the honor, that having been the original Shepard County in spite of the fact that a couple of its delegates strayed off the reservation and declared for Sulzer.

But Mr. Shepard has elected to appear as the candidate of his home county, and those who talk about New York domination can make the most of it.

Osborne for Second Place.

Thomas Mott Osborne, ex-Mayor of Auburn, will probably be made Shepard's running mate if the Kings County man is nominated. Mr. Osborne stoutly declares that he is a candidate for Governor and MAYORAL SLAP AT MITCHEL?

Sentence in Gaynor Letter Interests City Hall—Is Baker Saved?

The few local politicians left in town last night found much food for reflection over this sentence in Mr. Gaynor's letter to James Creelman, refusing to accept the Democratic Gubernatorial nomination:

"I could not abandon to their fate the splendid men whom I have appointed to office and who are working so hard for good government."

This was interpreted as evidently aimed at Acting Mayor John Purroy Mitchel, who would have succeeded Mayor Gaynor for at least a considerable period had the Mayor been elected Governor.

Mr. Mitchel refused absolutely to discuss the Mayor's letter at his apartment in the Vera Apartment House, 307 West Ninety-seventh Street, last night. He said:

"I have kept absolutely out of politics, and I will maintain that policy."

A close friend of the Acting Mayor, however, was not so reticent. He declared with vigor:

"He means Baker, all right! I don't know what other official of Gaynor's is in danger at Mitchel's hands. I can't read it otherwise than that the Mayor does not intend to leave his appointees to the tender mercies of Mr. Mitchel."

It sholud be remembered, however, that in a strictly literal sense Mayor Gaynor did not appoint Police Commissioner Baker to his present office.

A MARRIAGE ENFORCED.

Canada Tells Girl to Wed Her Original Fiance or Go Back to England.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, Sept. 27.—Victor Turner, a New York journalist, who has been representing his paper in Paris for the past two years, has been detained at the Immigration Bureau here, together with Miss Helen Thomas. They both arrived in Canada on the Allan liner Sardinia. Turner was charged with bringing the young woman into the country for immoral purposes.

Both were later released when the Rev. R. W. Dickie married Miss Thomas to George Stuart Richards, a wealthy real estate dealer of Winnipeg, who had hurried to Montreal to meet the girl.

Miss Thomas came to Canada to marry Richards, to whom she was betrothed in England several years ago. On the way over, on board the Sardinia, she met Turner, whom she told that she did not love Richards, and that it was only for her father's sake that she was marrying him. Turner promptly made love to her and the two became engaged, intending to marry when Montreal was reached.

When the ship arrived in port Mrs. Weakley, with whom the girl was traveling, telegraphed to Richards, telling him the state of affairs. He made all speed for Montreal, and swore out a warrant for the arrest of Turner and the girl. Detectives found them at Lachine, and both were arrested.

The Immigration authorities decided that Miss Thomas must return to England or marry the man she had set out to marry. While she wept the knot was tied in the immigration shed.

Turner is bringing civil proceedings against the Allan Line and the Dominion Government.

Heirs of Glitzenstein's Estate Under a Slight Misapprehension.

Nelson H. Tunnicliff, the New York lawyer who represents the foreign heirs of Isidore Glitzenstein, also known as Alfred Lonsdale, laughed yesterday at the cabled reports that a syndicate had been formed to fight for the "$36,000,000 estate" left by the so-called "Beer King."

The Glitzenstein estate, he said, would not total more than $15,000.

It was asserted in the telegrams printed yesterday that the Bohemian heirs of Glitzenstein had formed a syndicate to obtain the fortune, and that they were being financed by capitalists in Berlin, Warsaw, and Vienna to the extent of $25,000.

Another version of this end of the story is given by William M. Clemens, who makes a business of tracing heirs of property left in this country. According to Mr. Clemens, Alfred Lonsdale was a whisky salesman, who shot himself on a Staten Island ferryboat on Nov. 21, 1907.

Lonsdale, Mr. Clemens said, left an estate of $40,000, half of it deposited with the Union Trust Company, and the rest distributed through various brokerage houses in Wall Street. Mr. Clemens added that he could show that the man's real name was Alfred Lonsdale, and that he was the son of Joseph Lonsdale, and was born in London in 1844. He said there had been numerous alleged clues to the whereabouts of Lonsdale's family, all of which had led to nothing.

The property, Mr. Clemens says, is held by the Public Administrator of Richmond County, and unless it is claimed shortly it will be paid over to the State Treasurer at Albany as an escheat to the State of New York.

TREASURER'S CLERK SHOT.

Frank Baukney of Nassau County Thought to Have Committed Suicide.

Special to The New York Times.

HEMPSTEAD, L. I., Sept. 27.—Frank Baukney, chief clerk in the Nassau County Treasurer's office, died in Belmont Hospital here of a bullet wound in his head at 10 o'clock to-night. It is believed that Mr. Baukney fired the shot himself, although there were no witnesses of the shooting. The bullet entered his right temple and came out the left side of his head, passing through the brain.

The shooting occurred in a small workshop behind the Baukney home in Franklin Street, and was heard by a servant, who ran into the place and found Mr. Baukney unconscious on the floor with the revolver lying at his side. The maid notified Mrs. Baukney, who summoned Dr. Louis M. Lanehart, head of the Belmont Hospital, and the surgeon had the wounded man taken there. He dared not operate, however, and Mr. Baukney died without regaining consciousness. Mrs. Baukney is prostrated. She is in a critical condition herself and under the care of a trained nurse.

No reason is known for Mr. Baukney's act. He had been employed under County Treasurer Charles F. Lewis for nine years, and it is known that there is nothing wrong with his accounts. Mr. Lewis is at the Republican Convention in Saratoga, but his family to-night were trying to get him on the long-distance telephone, and it was said that he probably would return at once on learning the news.

Mr. Baukney had been ill for months from indigestion, and only recently recovered from an attack of ptomaine poisoning, due to eating some crab meat. His friends think that his continued ill-health may have caused him to shoot himself.

Mr. Baukney was 41 years old. He had no children.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Sept. 27.—Charles Lewis, County Treasurer of Nassau, received a telephone message to-night informing him of the shooting of Frank Baukney, his chief clerk. He left on a night train for New York. Before going away Mr. Lewis said that he was at a loss to account for Baukney's suicide except on the ground of continued ill-health. He said that he was confident Baukney's accounts were all right.

WELLMAN PLANS FOR OCEAN FLIGHT PERILS

Discusses with His Staff the Best Way of Meeting Emergencies Which May Arise.

DECIDE ON 20-KNOT GAIT

Final Touches Put to the America, Which Now Only Awaits a Favoring Breeze for Her Trial Trip.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 27.—Sitting as a Board of Strategy on the problems of a transatlantic journey by airship, Walter Wellman, Melvin Vanimann, and Murray Simon went over the chances for disaster one by one this afternoon. They concluded the chances of escaping alive in case of accident were more than 90 in 100, and the chances of successfully getting across from shore to shore more than four in five. The conference was held in the hangar of the big dirigible balloon America, from which Mr. Wellman's wireless operator, J. Irwin, will flash messages to THE NEW YORK TIMES, The London Daily Telegraph, and The Chicago Record-Herald while the balloon journey is under way.

The day was spent in the hangar adding such finishing touches to the balloon as putting in celluloid windows in front of the navigator's bridge so that he may see the country or the ocean way ahead, and the adding of coats of varnish to all the exposed rope and lacing. The day was not suitable for taking to the air, as there was a heavy southwest wind blowing which would wreck the great airship.

The Weather Bureau promises more wind for to-day, so that it will probably be Thursday afternoon or Friday before the airship ventures outside of the big shed in which she swings to and fro under the stirring of little puffs of wind that find their way through cracks and in the windows. Of the problems talked over at the navigators' conference many were mentioned in which every man of the crew was assigned a special emergency station with a special part to perform in saving the ship or launching the life boat in which the crew plans to escape by sea if the aircraft is wrecked.

The most serious problem considered was that of a possible gale of 70 miles an hour or more. Mr. Wellman said that he had been aloft in such winds and could always light a cigar in his airship, as it became completely a part of the wind, moving with it, and therefore seemed to be in still air, although flying along with the hurricane. The question of the long tail of thirty gasoline tanks strung like beads on a steel strand came up. Mr. Simon thought it might be best to cut this equipment away in case of a severe storm, but Mr. Vaniman thought the result would be more disastrous than to cling to it, as the balloon without it would soar high above the clouds. It was finally decided that in case it dragged too slowly in the water and had a tendency of forcing the nose of the ship downward toward the waves, gasoline would be thrown overboard until the chain of the tanks was drawn free of the ocean into the air. Mr. Vaniman said that if the storm was driving him along this way he wouldn't need the gasoline, as the storm power would be equally acceptable.

The schedule for the trip was arranged for a 20-knot gait to be evenly maintained by the use of the motor power, the forward and aft engines working in four-hour relays. Any favorable wind is to be taken advantage of as a net gain to the speed. With good luck the navigators considered that they could get overseas at a speed to beat the best maritime record.

In case it becomes necessary to cut the ship in two to prevent dragging through a forest, Mr. Vanlman arranged a rope around the main envelope attached to two sharp knives. In case of impending peril he will jump from the car clinging to the rope, and it will slit the envelope's circumference in a very few seconds. Through tests conducted in Paris he has found that he can force the ship to land almost in an instant by the use of this device.

The steel cable which will hold the gasoline tank tail to the balloon is tested to thirty tons strain, and as the balloon has a lifting power of twelve tons when loaded, the navigators figured that in case it became entangled by chance in a steamship's mast or sailing vessel's rigging, it would be necessary to have some one cut the balloon free as it would thus be effectively anchored.

Louis Loud, the assistant engineer, was assigned the task of attending to this and of obtaining gasoline from it in case it is needed in the car overhead. He will be passed down a line of tank to a breeches buoy and will detach whichever tank it is desired to empty, attaching it to ropes controlled by a capstan aboard ship.

This capstan, as it is operated by Aubert, the second assistant engineer, will haul both Loud and the tank up from the sea level.

The regulation sailing height was fixed upon as 200 feet. The crew will attain the height by adjusting their ballast to it, with most of their tank line trailing in the sea as the sun grows warm and the balloon expands. The lifting of a section of the tank line out of the water will take up this additional lifting power, and the dropping of it back with the evening contraction will take care of its loss without effect upon the ship's altitude.

In the arctic Wellman and Vaniman had much trouble with air in their gas bag, which at times ran to one end of the bag and then to another, causing it to tilt badly off the level.

A small engine between the engines which operate the four screw propellers, will obviate trouble of this kind while crossing the Atlantic. As the hydrogen gas escapes through the envelope it will be necessary to pump in air to keep the envelope in shape, but the engine will be connected with every compartment of the gas bag so that it will be possible to readjust the proportion of air and hydrogen whenever this becomes necessary. The 1,250 gallons of gasoline comprising the load in the steel tank under the car will be taken aboard to-day.

FINDS CITY FERRY GRAFT.

Systematic Irregularities Were Practiced, Dock Official Declares.

After privately examining twenty-six ticket sellers and ticket choppers attached to this city's municipal ferries at Pier A yesterday Deputy Commissioner Cresson announced that he had found evidence of "systematic irregularities" in the sale of municipal ferry tickets.

Mr. Cresson would not say what evidence had been brought out at the hearing. Neither would he give out the names of the twenty-six men examined. He said he would continue the inquiry this morning. It is said that one of the irregularities in the municipal ferry ticket sales discovered by Deputy Commissioner Cresson consisted in the ferry ticket choppers fishing the tickets out of the boxes at the ferry entrances with wire when the ferryhouses were practically deserted, and in giving them back to the ticket agents who sold them over again and divided the proceeds.

TRAIN HITS TAXICAB; ONE BANKER KILLED

Edward S. Atwater and George Cornwall Dangerously Injured Near Poughkeepsie.

STRUCK AT GRADE CROSSING

Driver of the Cab Also in a Serious Condition—Atwater Unconscious Since the Accident.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, Sept. 27.—A taxicab was struck by a Central New England Railroad train this afternoon and Edward S. Atwater, President of the Farmers and Manufacturers' Bank; George Cornwall, Vice President of the Poughkeepsie Savings Bank, and George Key, the driver of the cab, were dangerously injured and taken to the Vassar Hospital. Four hours later Mr. Cornwall died.

Mr. Atwater, who is 65 years old, has a fractured skull, his left leg is broken, and he has many cuts and bruises about the head and body. Mr. Cornwall's right arm was turned from the socket, several ribs were broken, and he had many bruises. Key's chest was crushed in, and the surgeons believe he is internally injured.

Mr. Atwater has remained unconscious since the accident. Mr. Cornwall was 83 years old, and because of his advanced age the doctors had slight hope of his recovery.

The accident occurred at a private grade crossing half a mile north of this place. Messrs. Atwater and Cornwall had been looking at real estate in a newly opened section and engaged the taxicab for the afternoon. The crossing on which the cab was struck was recently cut through by the Fairview Improvement Company and had not been accepted as a public street. There is an embankment 15 feet high on either side of the new street, and a view in either direction of the railroad cannot be obtained until one reaches the tracks.

The taxicab was running east at moderate speed and the train was running from the Hudson River State Hospital to Poughkeepsie. The train consisted of an engine and one car, the car being full of passengers. They ran his cab upon the track just as the train, running down grade at the rate of twenty miles an hour, came up. The tender of the engine struck the rear end of the cab an dthrew it into the air and over upon the tracks. Messrs. Atwater and Cornwall were crushed in the wreckage and hurled out beside the tracks. The driver was caught beneath the wreckage and carried about a hundred feet. He was pinned beneath his cab. Passengers from the train lifted the cab and carried him out.

The injured men were placed on the train and afterward rushed to the Vassar Hospital by automobile and ambulance. The engineer of the train says he had blown his whistle for the crossing, and the bell was being rung by the fireman as the train approached it.

Mrs. Atwater, who was in New York, did not know of the accident until she returned home to-night. Messrs. Atwater and Cornwall are both very wealthy. The former, who is an extensive operator in New York real estate, was a candidate for State Treasurer on the Democratic ticket several years ago. He is a member of several New York clubs. The Vassar College Infirmary was a gift of his wife.

AUTO KILLED CONDUCTOR.

Gen. Halsey's Chauffeur Arrested on a Charge of Manslaughter.

SALEM Mass., Sept. 27.—Edward Dupie, chauffeur for Gen. Frederick R. Halsey of New York, was arrested here tonight by Chief of Police Ferguson of Beverly, on a warrant charging him with manslaughter in causing the death of Samuel Hollingshead, a conductor, who was knocked from the running board of a car by an automobile at North Beverly yesterday.

Dupie was released under $5,000 bonds, and will appear in the local court to answer the charge in the morning.

Dupie and Frederick R. Halsey, Jr., came to Salem from Portsmouth, N. H., this afternoon with Chief Ferguson. They said they had no knowledge of any accident, and, though they remembered that they had a close margin in passing between an ice wagon and an electric car, were not aware that their machine threw the car conductor off the running board.

The car, however, was picked out today from among about thirty other automobiles in a garrage by two persons, one of them the motorman of the electric car, as the machine which struck Hollingshead.

KILLED BY HIS DOCTOR'S CAR.

Carpenter Hit as He Stepped Off a White Plains Road Car Near His Home.

As Charles Teasdale, a carpenter, of 3,901 White Plains Road was alighting from a White Plains Road car at 222d Street, near his home, last evening, an automobile owned and driven by his physician, Dr. D. P. Gillespie, of 3,735 White Plains Road, came bowling along, and before Teasdale could dodge aside the machine struck him. He was thrown ten feet into the air, and fell upon his head, suffering a fracture of the skull.

Dr. Gillespie stopped his automobile and a glance showed him that Teasdale was dead. The physician put the body into his automobile and hurried to Teasdale's home, where Miss Margaret Teasdale, a sister of the dead man, became hysterical. Dr. Gillespie drove to the Wakefield Police Station and surrendered to Lieut. Shaw on a charge of homicide. He was paroled by Coroner Schwannecke.

Pedestrian Carries Letters to Australia

Charles Naismith, a young Englishman who for twelve years has lived in this city where he was naturalized, left the City Hall yesterday with letters from Acting Mayor Mitchel to the Mayors of San Francisco and of Sidney, Australia. Naismith wore an ordinary business suit and carried a pedometer, on which he said he expected to record fifty miles a day. He will walk to San Francisco, whence he expects to work his passage to Australia.

A FURIOUS BATTLE IN BERLIN STREETS

Thousands of Coal Strikers and Sympathizers Fight Hundreds of Police.

SEVERAL SHOPS ARE SACKED

Rioters Hurl Bottles, Bricks, and Other Missiles, and the Police Use Swords and Revolvers.

BERLIN, Wednesday, Sept. 28.—Even greater violence than that of Monday night characterized collisions between police and rioters in the Moabit Precinct of Berlin last night. The district now presents the aspect of a besieged city.

Thousands of coal strikers and sympathizers gathered in the streets as soon as darkness fell. One hundred mounted police and 500 on foot, armed with revolvers and swords, were stationed at various points. They were under orders from the Commissioner to exercise severe repressive measures, and to use the sharp edges of their swords instead of striking with the flat.

The rioters at about 9 P. M. began the disorder, which increased as night advanced. Men and women dashed from place to place, smashing street lamps and the windows of shops.

Several stores were sacked of valuable contents, but the tradesmen for the most part had taken the precaution of lowering the iron shutters, and thus prevented extensive damage.

The police charged time after time, wounding many persons. Men and women at windows of houses hurled bottles, bricks, coal, and stones at the police, who replied with revolver shots.

Commissioner Von Jagow drove in an automobile through the precinct at about 10 o'clock, when the riot was at its height. Crowds of furious strikers and sympathizers, among whom were many women, howled imprecations upon the Commissioner and his men, while flower pots, various household articles, and other missiles fell in showers from the windows.

The police entered several flats in the Waldstrasse, from one of which a maddened woman threw a lighted lamp with terrific force against an advancing squad, burning several of the men. Sharp conflicts occurred in Büsselstrasse, Turmstrasse, and Zwinglistrasse. Many shots were fired from the crowd, and the police charged with drawn swords, leaving many injured on the ground.

Scores of arrests were made. The saloons were closed at 11 o'clock, and squadrons of police prevented the approach of thousands of persons arriving from other quarters. This measure was effective in bringing about comparative calm, but groups of sullen strikers were prowling in the vicinity up to midnight. At that time the riots had virtually been suppressed, but there were occasional minor disturbances. Twelve hundred police are now occupying the precinct.

Later there was renewed rioting. Hundreds of rowdies broke down all the street lamps in one of the districts. The police charged in complete darkness, amid continuous shooting and clouds of missiles from windows, to which they vigorously replied.

When the police retired the mob gathered again, bringing heaps of wood soaked with petroleum, which they kindled near the houses.

The police were forced to resort again to charging the mobs, and the fire brigade dashed up and extinguished the flames under the protection of the police, who in the meanwhile had requisitioned a military searchlight.

Several squads entered the houses, and arrested large numbers of the occupants.

Twelve hundred police are now in the precinct.

The total number of casualties recorded last night is 100 strikers injured, 13 of them dangerously, and two policemen so severely hurt that they were removed to a hospital. In addition hundreds of persons who suffered minor injuries proceeded to their homes or sought some handy refuge in order to avoid arrest.

The rioting on Monday night was continued until an early hour yesterday. Up to yesterday morning 138 police and civilians had been wounded, four being likely to die. At daylight a Police Sergeant was found in an alley, where he had been beaten into insensibility.

WON'T MEET ROOSEVELT.

Archbishop Glennon Declines Invitation to Dinner in Colonel's Honor.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 27.—Archbishop Glennon of St. Louis, who "found it impossible to attend" a dinner to be given by the Knights of Columbus of Peoria, Ill., at which Col. Roosevelt will be the honored guest, said to-day:

"I also have several invitations from other places to attend similar affairs. I have been invited for the near future by Kansas City, Pittsburg, and other cities. In view of this I could not possibly accept any other invitation or do other than decline to attend any celebration at this time."

"Would the fact that Col. Roosevelt is to be at the banquet influence you to decline?" the Archbishop was asked.

"Now, really I could not say anything about that," said the Archbishop.

He was then asked if he thought that the threatened refusal of the priests of the Peoria and Rockport Diocese was because Col. Roosevelt would be at the banquet. In reply he declared he did not know what prompted the clergy's action.

BLAZING OIL SETS CREW AFIRE

Power Boat Men, Their Clothes in Flames, Jump Overboard.

Special to The New York Times.

STAMFORD, Conn., Sept. 27.—The thirty-foot power boat Pauline while at a wharf taking on gasoline, took fire last night through some of the oil spilling and flowing over the deck to the headlight, the heat from which set it ablaze. Harold Griffen was pouring the gasoline into a tank from a five-gallon vessel when it caught fire. He threw the vessel aside, and the burning contents went over the clothing of William Mayette and Addison Bacon and set them on fire. Griffen's clothing was also burning. The three men dived overboard to extinguish the flames.

Mayette was unable to swim, but came up alongside a skiff, and held on until he was pulled out. There were three young ladies in the burning boat, and Griffen and Richard Flynn went to their assistance and helped them out. Then Griffen went forward, where the twenty-gallon gasoline tank was blazing, uncoupled it, and threw it overboard. Then he put out the fire in the forward part of the boat. His hands were badly scorched.

Big District in Arizona Practically Depopulated—House Cracks Open.

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz., Sept. 27.—A territory fifty miles square and extending from here to the Grand Cañon of the Colorado River is practically depopulated to-night because of earthquakes and rumblings which, beginning Saturday, are steadily increasing in magnitude and violence.

Indians, of whom there were many in the region, fled when the shocks began. Tribal tales of the ancient activities of now burned-out craters, of which there are more than fifty in the region, hastened their flight. The whites remained until their houses fell about them.

J. B. Chaves, the first of the refugees to reach Flagstaff, reported that his house had cracked open. Others who arrived later said volcanic stones weighing many tons had been torn from their beds, and sent crashing down the mountain sides, and that the whole district was in a state of upheaval. They refused to go back for any reason.

The whole district is of volcanic nature. Present phenomena are attributed to a slipping of the earth's crust.

THIRD DEATH FROM SALAD.

Another Dies Who Attended the Entre Nous Club Dinner—Sixteen Are Ill.

Special to The New York Times.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Sept. 27.—Leo Platz, 25 years old, of 413 Trumbull Street, is the third to die from the effects of eating lobster salad at a dinner given by the Entre Nous Club three weeks ago. Platz died at the Alexian Hospital this evening.

Several new cases of illness of those who were at the dinner have developed since yesterday. Sixteen now are seriously ill. Health Officer Louis J. Richards has begun an investigation to fix the responsibility for the deaths. He has the names of all who attended the dinner and all dealers who furnished food which was served there.

DIES IN HIS LIGHTHOUSE.

Keeper's Body Found When Skipper Reports There Is No Beacon.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 27.—As Capt. Hardy of the steamer Richard Peck, bound from New York, was bringing his vessel up the harbor last night he discovered that the lighthouse on the end of Long Wharf was dark. When he had made a landing he telephoned to the home of the Light Keeper, Thomas F. Wilson, intimating that fact.

His message led to an investigation, and the body of the keeper was found by his son and brother, lying face downward, on the platform under the light with a pool of blood about the face.

According to the Medical Examiner, Wilson was stricken with heart failure and apparently suffered a hemorrhage also just as he was about to light the beacon.

FLIES OVER CHICAGO.

Brookins Goes Up 3,000 Feet to Get Away from Treacherous Gusts.

CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—An aeroplane flew for thirty minutes to-day above the tallest skyscrapers of the city, giving Chicago its first view of a flying machine in action.

Walter Brookins, who is to endeavor on Thursday to beat the American long-distance sustained flight record by flying to Springfield, Ill., from Chicago for a prize of $10,000, offered by The Chicago Record-Herald, drove a Wright biplane in to-day's exhibitions. He made two flights to-day.

To-morrow he will repeat to-day's programme, preparatory to Thursday's flight across country.

Adverse winds made Brookins's flight to-day perilous and he was compelled to go up 3,000 feet to get away from the gusts eddying far above the city's tall buildings. The starting and landing place was in Grant Park, on the shore of Lake Michigan.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Sept. 27.—When the accounting of the executrix of the estate of the late Charles H. Ostrander, who ended his life by inhaling gas in his home at Mount Vernon, is presented before Surrogate Frank V. Millard next Monday morning, it will reveal that his widow and two daughters will lose their entire inheritance.

Ostrander's indebtedness, it became known to-day, is close to $25,000, while his estate is valued at $3,000 only. Counsel for the estate has been trying to settle with creditors, but it appears they will get only about 8 cents on the dollar. Ostrander for many years was one of the most prominent lawyers in Westchester County, and at one time owned property worth $200,000.

After his death it was found that he had misappropriated the funds of the estate of Walter F. Bonnett, an infant, for whom he was acting as guardian. Bonnett is now of age, but loses nothing, as Ostrander was under bond and the security company has paid to Mr. Bonnett $16,000.

The dead lawyer, it was also developed, was trustee or executor for three other estates, and that he had misappropriated about $20,000. The heirs of these estates lose everything except their pro rata share in the estate.

SENTENCED, THEN FREED.

Judge Takes Lumberman's Word to Return and Serve His Term.

CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—Edward Lewis, nearly 60 years old, a soldier in the Spanish-American war and a well-known lumber salesman, was sentenced to three months in the House of Correction yesterday. Then he obtained his freedom until Dec. 5, pledging himself to return then and begin his sentence.

Lewis was accused of having passed a worthless check for $62 last June. He blamed drinking for his offense, and when his case was called in the Criminal Court he pleaded guilty.

"I have quit drink, your Honor," he said, "and never as long as I live will I again touch it. I deserve punishment for my deed, your Honor."

"Well, I'll sentence you to the Bridewell for three months," said the Judge.

"Judge, can't you let me go until December? October and November are my two best months, and I want to repay every dollar. I'll come back then and serve that sentence."

The Judge asked what bond he could give.

"My word, your Honor."

"You may sign your own bond," said the Judge.

"I'll be back here at 10 o'clock sharp on Dec. 5," said Lewis, as he left the courtroom.

DAY'S EVENTS AT SARATOGA.

Col. Theodore Roosevelt elected Temporary Chairman over Vice President Sherman by a vote of 567 to 445.

Senator Root chosen by Organization Committee as Permanent Chairman.

Old Guard loses control of the State Committee, Chairman Woodruff being among those dropped.

Boom appears for State Senator Hinman as candidate for Governor. Controller Prendergast of New York also under discussion.

Platform Committee agrees on everything except direct primary plank.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Sept. 27. — After making him listen to speeches charging him with wrecking the Republican Party throughout the country for the purpose of making himself its dictator, the Old Guard turned its State Convention over to Theodore Roosevelt this afternoon, body, soul, and breeches.

They left the way open to protest as loudly as they please when Col. Roosevelt's Committee on Resolutions presents his platform to the convention, but apart from that they have put a "silence" upon him as complete as the cadets at West Point ever put upon an officer who incurred their disapproval.

The convention adjourned this afternoon with Col. Roosevelt in the chair as Temporary Chairman, with Col. Roosevelt's personally named Committee on Resolutions charged with framing the platform, with Col. Roosevelt's personally named Committee on Credentials empowered to seat or unseat delegates, with Col. Roosevelt's personally named Committee on Permanent Organization instructed to name the permanent convention officers, and with Col. Roosevelt himself tacitly left to pick out his party's candidates and elect them if he can. In view of all of which some credit for wisdom may be given to Thomas Tracey, a stanch Tammany Hall man, who is here watching the row, and who this evening remarked: "The Democrats were born lucky."

Roosevelt Had 122 Majority.

Col. Roosevelt on his test ballot—the vote to have himself elected over Vice President Sherman as Temporary Chairman of the convention—polled 567 votes as against 445 votes for his opponent, the other three of the 1,015 delegates not voting. But as the Rough Rider was escorted to the chair by the Vice President of the United States, whom he had discredited before his own State convention, and by Cornelius Collins, the Rensselaer County boss whom he has chosen to head his new State Committee, he must have realized that more than one-half of the votes that gave him his victory came from four counties in the State that in the last Gubernatorial election gave majorities to the Democratic candidate—New York, Kings, Queens, and Erie.

The day dawned dark and dreary, the convention proceedings were almost silenced by terrific downpouring of rain, and lights had to be turned on in the hall, but the day was radiant as compared with the gloom that has settled down to-night upon the Republicans who want to win and who are heartsick over the outlook.

The convention session was unique in the history of such gatherings. In the old days a bolt would have been in order after Col. Roosevelt defeated the Old Guard, but the days of convention bolts are over. The vanquished simply sat silent and sneered at the victors ,and the victors themselves, with the exception of the few who were responsible for the creation of the situation, acted as though they had performed a duty which had given them more pain than they had administered. The proceedings were absolutely devoid of real, spontaneous enthusiasm; the temper of the convention, as well as of the spectators, was too tense to permit of it.

No agreement had been reached on the direct primaries plank in the Resolutions Committee late to-night. On other matters there was not much difference of opinion. On that, however, there were widely divergent views and no middle ground had been discovered.

Candidate to be Progressive.

Col. Roosevelt himself declares that he will not name the candidates for the convention; that it is an open convention, and that the delegates themselves must choose the men for whom the people will be asked to vote; but the fact remains that the Colonel and his few close advisers will have to make the slate because nobody else will do so.

After a late night conference among the Roosevelt leaders it became known that the name of State Senator Harvey D. Hinman of Binghamton was being seriously considered as the candidate for Governor. He is the author of the simonpure Direct Nominations bill, and is well liked by both President Taft and Col. Roosevelt. Controller Prendergast's name is also under advisement, but he is hardly likely to get or to want the nomination.

because in his present office he controls the finest line of political patronage that the City of New York has to dispense. The Mayor would appoint Mr. Prendergast's successor and the Republicans would hate to see a Democrat to control that patronage. Furthermore, it would leave the Board of Estimate overwhelmingly in the hands of the Democrats.

Congressman William S. Bennet still has the only live boom here. He claims a heavy vote in the New York City delegation and 100 or more up-State, and he says his votes will stick to him to the last ditch, but his affiliations with Abraham Gruber have been so close that it is hardly conceivable that Col. Roosevelt will permit his candidacy to succeed, in view of the personal attack which Mr. Gruber made in the convention to-day. State Supt. of Public Works Frederick C. Stevens has his lightning rod out and would like to have the nomination come his way; but his connection with large corporations—even with trusts—are such that he does not seem to be just the right sort of a candidate for a "trust-busting campaign."

After caucuses had been held to-night by several Congressional delegations, it became certain that the progressives will control the next State Committee in all probability with a vote of 22 to 16.

Chairman Woodruff was defeated for re-election from the district he now represents by a vote of 15 to 7 by A. E. Vass, the Republican leader of the Eleventh Assembly District in Brooklyn, a Roosevelt man. He may seek election from another district.

Naval Officer Frederick J. H. Kracke of Kings is talked of as his successor as Chairman. Mr. Kracke was leader of the Roosevelt forces in Mr. Woodruff's political bailiwick. Cornelius Collins, who was slated for Chairman, says he cannot take the job.

The plan of the progressives to create a State Committee of 150 members by action of the present convention has been abandoned. Mr. Griscom said to-night after a conference with Col. Roosevelt, Senator Root, and other leaders that it was thought better to leave this to be accomplished by legislative action.

One thing that the Old Guard leaders are chuckling over is the fact that after winning in the convention to-day on the right to debate minority reports from the committees they stuck to their seats and made no effort to interfere with the Roosevelt programme to let the Rough Rider name all the committees himself. This upset all party precedents. The Temporary Chairman heretofore has named on the committees the men chosen by the Congressional district leaders. To arrogate their power to himself is scarcely consistent in a man who is the high apostle of direct nomination, says the Old Guard. Roosevelt had to do it, though, or he would have had a Committee on Resolutions that he could not control.

Speaker Wadsworth, who made a splendid figure on the convention floor in the political manoeuvring that followed the election of the Temporary Chairman, succeeded admirably in the Old Guard plan of giving Roosevelt everything he wanted and retaining the right to denounce him later for the way he will use the power placed in his hands.

A sample of what may be expected later was handed out to-night by William Barnes, Jr., who said:

> The result is entirely satisfactory. That 445 delegates out of 1,015 withstood the charge which tried to ride roughshod over their convictions and their sense of orderly political procedure is of everlasting credit to them.
>
> No man in political life should ever have to mind what the future will be. He should set with a heart single to the performance of the hour, but I cannot fail at this moment to be prophetic in my reading of what is to come. It will be these men or their successors in the cause of true conservation who will guide the course of the Republican Party in this State in the future.
>
> That Mr. Roosevelt was opposed for Temporary Chairman for good and sufficient reasons has been made entirely clear by the outcome. His action in leaving off the Committee on Resolutions delegates chosen by the delegations from their Congress Districts to sit upon that committee—a prerogative never before exercised—is the proof. Especially is the vindictiveness and disorderly quality exhibited in substituting for W. H. Switzer, agreed upon by the delegation from the Twenty-seventh Congress District, comprising the counties of Oneida and Herkimer, in which Vice President Sherman resides, a Mr. Hart.
> Not sufficient was it to Mr. Roosevelt to have defeated Mr. Sherman after he had been recommended unanimously by the State Committee, but he has proceeded to use his cudgel against the regularly elected delegates from that Congressional District. He tried to punish them because Mr. Sherman dared to oppose him. That lawlessness is the prevailing instinct, although somewhat subdued to-day, is plainly apparent by this act of an unwarranted usurpation upon the delegation from Mr. Sherman's district.

There are those who are figuring that Col. Roosevelt may save the day for his cause by making a whirlwind campaign for the State for them, but these men are overlooking the fact that when he gets through doing business here he has engagements to speak elsewhere that will take him outside of New York State for a good part of the time between now and election. There is a nine-day trip all arranged for and two other shorter ones that will take an aggregate of another week or more.

The nine-day trip begins next week, Thursday, Oct. 6, and ends Oct. 14. Col. Roosevelt is going to Tennessee and Arkansas, closing with a day of whirlwind campaigning for Senator Beveridge in Indiana, in which State he will spend Oct. 13. On Oct. 21 he is due to speak in Massachusetts for Senator Lodge, and the next day is going to New Hampshire to speak for Robert Bass, the progressive Republican who won the Governorship nomination at the recent primaries. Then about Nov. 2 Col. Roosevelt is due to start West, having promised to speak before the Educational Conference at Des Moines, Iowa, on Nov. 4, and for Charles G. Rilk, the progressive Republican candidate for Congress in the Second Iowa District on the same trip.

This trip will take the Colonel away from New York just before election, which is on Nov. 8, and will give him little more than time to get home to Oyster Bay to vote. If the Colonel is to take the management of the campaign personally he will certainly have to cancel the last of these trips if not more of his outside engagements, and he is not likely to do that.

STORMY FIRST SESSION.

Roosevelt Hears Himself Assailed, but Gets the Chairmanship.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Sept. 27.—As though there were not to be troubles enough in the war of bitter factions, bad management on the part of those in charge of the arrangements for the Republican State Convention caused a lot of bad temper at the opening session to-day. Such disorder as has seldom been seen at a gathering of this kind was the result.

To begin with, the managers even neglected to station ticket takers at the doors of Convention Hall. When the delegates arrived many of the seats in the section of the floor reserved for the real participants were occupied by onlookers, and the majority of the press seats contained delegates, friends of delegates, journalists pro tem, and hangers-on. The Saratoga police refused to take any steps to better the conditions.

The convention was scheduled to open at 12 o'clock sharp, but it was 12:30 before State Chairman Woodruff banged the Speaker's stand with his gavel to call the session to order. Meanwhile much of the usual performance of welcoming the better known of the delegates by cheers and applause had been lacking because of the utter confusion. Col. Roosevelt, to be sure, got something of an ovation as he marched down the aisle with the Nassau County delegation to a seat on the end of the second row to the right of the platform. So did Vice President Sherman as he filed in with the Oneida delegates to a seat on the same aisle further to the rear.

The New York County contingent as usual was massed in the seats under the gallery on the extreme right of the hall. Chairman Woodruff had his Kings following better placed in the seats immediately behind Mr. Roosevelt's home delegates. Barnes of Albany had the centre of the hall, three rows back from the front, for his cohorts. Wadsworth of Livingston, Fassett of Elmira, Brackett of Saratoga, and Merritt of St. Lawrence were the principal figures on the left hand aisle, and the small fry of republicanism filled in the rest of the delegates' seats.

The New York County gathering was notable for its representative character. Elihu Root and Henry L. Stimson, the Sugar Trust prosecutor, sat together, and Otto H. Bannard, who ran for Mayor against Judge Gaynor last Fall, was not far away. Seth Low and Gen Stewart L. Woodford were among the convention regulars of the New York delegation. United States Senator Chauncey M. Depew, whose vote for Roosevelt later was destined to bring considerable applause, and Robert C. Morris, formerly President of the Republican Club, who drew like plaudits from the Old Guard when he voted for Sherman, were others in the party besides the younger following, Herbert Parsons, Clement A. Griscom, Jr., Artemas Ward, and Cortland Nicoll.

With order somewhat restored, the Chaplain was called on to make the opening prayer. In the course of his fifteen minutes' invocation he excited the risibilities of some of the delegates by imparting the information that they were gathered to take "sweet counsel together," and petitioning that "brotherly love and harmony prevail in all our counsels, so that all may realize what a good and joyful thing it is for brethren to dwell together in unity."

Lone Policeman Overwhelmed.

The prayer at an end, ex-Judge Kellogg of Watertown called the attention of the chair to the disorder prevailing throughout the hall, and Col. Woodruff responded by asking a lone policeman who happened to be within earshot to clear the aisles and put all but delegates out of the delegates' seats. The officer went up the aisle where sat Col. Roosevelt, fanning away at the humid atmosphere, and, stopping in front of the Colonel, made this lucid demand:

"Now, anybody that ain't got no seat here has got to be moved."

The Colonel kept on fanning, and nobody moved. The policeman started up the aisle a few steps and undertook to push back the first few of the late-coming delegates who were intent on finding their seats. These delegates crowded back on those behind them, and things were worse than before.

"Get Roosevelt's big stick," somebody shouted, and the Colonel smiled.

Assemblyman Bennett of New York suggested that the chair telephone over to the police station for more men.

"I have already done that," came back from Mr. Woodruff, "and I am assured that we have present the entire efficiency of the force."

It was 12:45 o'clock, after everybody's patience had been exhausted, that Secretary Lafayette Gleason began to call the roll of delegations. When it was completed the chair declared the election of a Temporary Chairman in order. There was a hush, and then a sigh of expectancy, and then a ripple of applause as Mr. Woodruff stepped to the front of the platform.

Woodruff Tells of Taft Talk.

"Fellow delegates," he began, "in this most momentous Republican convention that any of us have attended I am authorized by the Republican State Committee to present its choice for your Temporary Chairman. In so doing I crave for a few moments your indulgence.

"President Taft"— here applause and cheers broke out in what seemed to be old-time convention ardor, but they only lasted for thirty seconds with the band helping, for the crowd was too anxious to get to the actual fighting.

"President Taft," repeated Chairman Woodruff, "has been most deeply desirous that his party here in convention, representing the largest and most powerful constituency in the country, should give its unequivocal indorsement to his Administration. This I know of personal knowledge gained on a visit to the Summer capital at Beverly. He made me aware not only of his desire at that time but also of his apprehensions as to the results of the campaign this Fall.

"To allay these, what was more natural than that the committee should select to preside at this gathering and make the keynote speech, the man whom the President sent to represent his Administration into all parts of the country—yes, into his own State of Ohio—the Vice President of the United States, James S. Sherman."

Mr. Woodruff paused to let the cheers get under way. The band struck up "The Star-Spangled Banner" and the Old Guard outfit rose to its feet for the first real demonstration. It was a decided frost. The cheers did not outlast the tune, and when the band stopped and Woodruff waited for more cheers, they were not forthcoming, and he had to take up again the thread of his speech.

"How could the members of the Republican State Committee have thought of any one else, except from the inspiration of some ulterior motive?" he asked, and mingled laughter, hisses, and cheers came back at his uncertain answer.

"How could they have selected any one else to speak for the National Administration here in his own State which, with unanimity and enthusiasm, but two years ago presented his name to the Chicago Convention [more laughter and cheers] when he was supported by some persons who are now opposing him for the office of Temporary Chairman of this convention?"

Mr. Woodruff referred to the precedent created by the selection of Elihu Root by the State Committee to be Temporary Chairman of the convention of two years ago, and declared that until President Griscom of the New York County Committee presented the name of Col. Roosevelt to the State Committee he had no idea that such action was in contemplation. This gave the Roosevelt sympathizers their chance to cheer, and they did so for half a minute or so.

Woodruff-Roosevelt Letters.

Mr. Woodruff wanted to know what the motive was for the presentation of Col. Roosevelt's name after Mr. Sherman's had been placed before the committee, and hisses came as his response. Then he read a letter he had written to Col. Roosevelt the day after the State Committee met in August and the reply to it. The letters said:

Aug. 17, 1910.

Col. Theodore Roosevelt, Oyster Bay, L. I.

My Dear Col. Roosevelt: It cannot be possible that it is necessary for me to tell you that the action of the State Committee yesterday in which I participated was in no sense intended as an act of hostility toward you or one of reflection upon you.

I saw Ward and Barnes after their talk with you and they told me what you had said about this whole matter and I hope you know, despite some things to the contrary which the newspapers contained this morning, that they told you the exact facts. Not one of us supposed that your name would be presented without your notifying Ward the National Committeeman, or me, the Chairman of the State Committee, that you wished it done and I never was so much surprised in my life as when Griscom made the motion which he did. Not a word had been said to me before the meeting by anybody that indicated this course was to be taken and I understand that neither Griscom nor any one else told Ward or Barnes or any of the other men of the committee that this was their purpose.

Believing that you must appreciate the position in which, under the circumstances, we suddenly found ourselves, after having agreed upon the selection of Sherman, in conformity with the precedent established by the selection of Senator Root two years ago, as Temporary Chairman, I beg to remain, with best wishes, Yours respectfully,

TIMOTHY WOODRUFF.

New York, Aug. 19, 1910.

My Dear Mr. Woodruff: You seem to me to be under a misapprehension in the matter. I was not "notifying" anybody about the matter and neither Griscom nor I had any idea that the question was to come up at this time. Some of the gentlemen with whom you were acting on Monday evening announced that it was going to come up and made the announcement on the specific ground that it was to head off the movement for me because they did not believe in the principles for which I stand. I have never wanted the position, but merely said that I would accept it if it were desired that I should do so. If the Vice President is correctly reported as to his position, and if you agree with that position, you are only right in having him and not me make the speech. Faithfully yours,

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

Roosevelt Men Jeer Woodruff.

"If," "If," "If," delegates shouted all over the big hall as he came to the last paragraph of the Colonel's letter.

"Col. Roosevelt must have intended from that last paragraph" went on Mr. Woodruff, "that he wanted to speak and preach here the doctrine of the new Nationalism, and naturally and with characteristic frankness he said that if we believed as Vice President Sherman did, we did right in selecting him to speak for the National Administration or William H. Taft."

"If," "If," "If," the delegates began to shout again while the Old Guard tried to cheer them down with indifferent success. Mr. Woodruff had to wait until the "If's" died out before he continued with his sentence:

"The administration of William H. Taft, founded on principles laid down in the great administrations of Lincoln, of Grant, of McKinley—"

"And of Theodore Roosevelt," the interrupters yelled until the State Chairman repeated, "Aye, and of Theodore Roosevelt himself. Principles for which, during twenty-five years in Congress and as Vice President of the United States, James S. Sherman has always stood."

Mr. Woodruff then read Mr. Sherman's letter to the State Committee which figured in last night's meeting, and narrated the action of the gathering in which the committee voted its own vindication on the charge of letting its majority be deceived into nominating Mr. Sherman.

Roosevelt's Name Presented.

The formal presentation of the name of Mr. Sherman followed. As soon as the regulation cheers had been given, Frederick C. Hicks of the Nassau delegation was recognized. Mr. Hicks got on his front row chair and said simply:

"In the spirit in which the sentiment was expressed by the great American and President a half a century ago I now with charity toward all and malice toward none move the nomination of Theodore Roosevelt to be Temporary Chairman of this convention."

Of course, this was the signal for the Roosevelt shouters to turn loose, which they proceeded to do for a minute and forty-five seconds, and without the aid of the bands that had played in the earlier demonstrations for Mr. Sherman. Somebody yelled: "The hero of San Juan Hill!" The Old Guard contingent laughed derisively, but the cheers were in the majority and the demonstration ran its course.

Then Mr. Woodruff recognized Abraham Gruber of New York, concerning whom it had been said all around the convention ever since Sunday that he would make a speech that would "tear the hide off Teddy's back."

Col. Gruber was half pushed, half lifted through the crowd and up to the front of the platform. He discovered in a moment that the crowd was not disposed to welcome the dressing down he had prepared. After some nondescript sayings as to the value of a sense of humor among politicians he remarked that it was the Federal office holders, the men who had been the offensive partisans during Col. Roosevelt's term as President, who alone could save him in this convention. This naturally brought the Roosevelt contingent to its feet and a wave of hissing swept through the hall.

The Colonel Shows Enjoyment.

Col. Roosevelt meantime was a study, but if any one expected visible evidences of a wrathful spirit he was disappointed. The Colonel wore a broad grin when Gruber was marched to the platform, and at the first assault he threw his head back and laughed until his eyes narrowed into two slits—a typical Roosevelt laugh

"In a fight between Barnes of Albany and Roosevelt [Cheers] Barnes would lick him to a frazzle," Mr. Gruber started.

"If," "If," "If," the Roosevelt delegates began again, while some one shouted louder than the rest: "If Roosevelt died."

Col. Roosevelt threw back his head and slapped his knee in his enjoyment. His personal Congressman, the solemn-faced Cocks of Oyster Bay, even cracked a smile.

Mr. Gruber retorted: "I can hear the murmurs of the Custom House and the internal revenue office. But Barnes would lick him just as he has licked me to a frazzle, when I have been fighting for Col. Roosevelt in years past. And to-day, when the result becomes known, it will be found that two-thirds of the Roosevelt strength has come from Federal office holders."

"Get the hook!" "Get the hook!" yelled the Roosevelt men.

Mr. Gruber stopped entirely and let the hisses and cries die out. Then he began: "Twelve years ago on this platform I warned a Republican convention against turning the executive mansion into a shooting gallery."

The crowd at this turned loose bedlam, and it looked for a few moments as though the Gruber effort would have to be declared off. But Col. Roosevelt was now on his feet, waving his hands for silence, now at one side of the hall, now at another.

"I beg you, gentlemen, I beg you," he shouted, "let Col. Gruber proceed. I ask a full hearing for Col. Gruber. He is entitled to it."

Attacks Roosevelt on Courts.

The Roosevelt cheers grew louder than ever, but eventually the Colonel, aided now by Chairman Woodruff, forced comparative quiet. Mr. Gruber tried again: "My advice," he said, "was not heeded. Since that memorable day the man who has ever since been shooting has seen his party organization divided in every State, his party's candidates overwhelmingly defeated; business depressed, and the intelligent and honest workingman without employment and hungry. [Jeers from the Roosevelt crowd.]

"Loking for other fields for shooting their rights and liberties are fearing revolution.

"When given power to shoot the trusts he drew a line between the good ones and the bad ones. The Steel and Sugar Trusts were the good ones; those which would not help along his political schemes were the bad ones. As now those who cry, 'Vive le roi' [A voice from the floor, "Vive le what?" and laughter] are good Republicans, and those who are putting patriotism above all else, and therefore will not join the cry, are bad Republicans.

"While under the table I touch Cox's feet,
I cannot with Lorimer sit down and eat.

Harriman Incident Brought Up.

"Fellow-citizens of New York, has the correspondence with Harriman passed from your minds? While the firm was Roosevelt & Harriman, and not Roosevelt & Lincoln, the President and railroad man were engaged in a joint plan to get money, and, in writing, the senior member of the firm assured Harriman that they were both practical men and had better keep the partnership under cover, Harriman supplied his share of the capital, and I now wish to protect his memory. He was not a practical man, but a confiding and very much duped come-on."

The interruptions had now become too common even to disturb Mr. Gruber, but when the Harriman incident, always a sore point with Col. Roosevelt, was mentioned that gentleman leaned across the aisle to Senator Allen of Rensselaer and remarked:

"This is of no consequence whatever."

Mr. Gruber now came down to his peroration: "Ralph Waldo Emerson once said, 'Every hero must become a bore at last.' So as one act of duplicity is followed by another and the wrongdoing of Tuesday is piled on that of Monday, the time of detection must come and the verdict of guilty will surely follow. From Schlatter the Healer to Dowie the Elijah, and then from Cook to every fakir in politics the cry that saluted them was loud and long. When detection came the groans were like the thunder, and they have not yet died out.

"This man is like the lawyer who issues an execution before the summons is served. He knows no law, and in his mad haste to get to an end makes chaos out of order, grieves the judicious, and, when he does not betray his followers, leaves them at least far away from their goal.

"Every generation gives opportunity to the patriotic and brave to keep our ship of state headed in the right direction, and all of us, business men, farmers, laboring men, professional men, and yes, even the women of this country, may now if they will join in the fight begun in this convention to prevent a third term or something worse."

This was the end of Gruber's speech, and as the Old Guard raised a cheer to drown the hisses of the Roosevelt supporters the Colonel leaned once more across the aisle to Senator Allen and remarked:

"That all helped our side. It could never have been better if we had arranged it."

Col. Gruber lingered a moment on the platform to add: "I'm as good a Republican as any man in the United States," and some one on the floor yelled out: "Take your tiger home."

Mr. Gruber tried once more: "I've got no personal feeling in this matter," and then had to stop while the laughter and hisses died out. Col. Roosevelt was convulsed. He slapped his knee and then the serious limb of his neighbor, Mr. Cocks, and rolled from side to side in his seat. His merriment did not subside when Gruber said: "I'm acting for the dictates of my conscience," nor did Col. Roosevelt cease to show his enjoyment when a wag in the crowd set things going again by yelling: "Where do you keep it?"

Prendergast Flays Old Guard.

This was about all, and in another moment Controller Prendergast of New York City was recognized to make the first Roosevelt speech of the day. The ex-President liked the Prendergast speech, and showed it quite as plainly as he evidenced his amusement at the Gruber attack. When Prendergast remarked that the party could afford to be defeated, but could not afford to do wrong, Mr. Roosevelt led the applause, and again when the speaker declared unfair the charge that Parisian Scarfs in College Colors for the Athletic Girl this Autumn.

O'Neill Building—First Floor.

During the late summer and the early weeks of September, these scarfs were worn almost universally in Paris, not only by women, but actually by men—

It has been our own idea to have these made in college colors for the girls who will attend the games this fall. You will find them in the colors of Yale, Harvard, Princeton, Columbia, Cornell, Vassar, Xavier, Manhattan and Normal.

And they are shown, as far as we know, by no other store in the United States. $4 and $5.

They're made of soft satin and chiffon cloth, one color on one side and a contrasting color on the other, and fall away from the shoulders, sometimes to the knee and sometimes just to the waist. These make a fine gift from a college man to a girl.

ROOSEVELT PUT IN FULL CONTROL

the present Roosevelt movement held in contemplation a nomination for 1912 he leaned forward and repeated, "Of course, of course." Mr. Prendergast had to face some hostility from the Old Guard, and by no means all of his statements were received without the hisses that had so liberally been bestowed on Col. Gruber. But he held his audience and was cheered heartily when he finished by seconding the Roosevelt nomination.

Mr. Prendergast congratulated Col. Roosevelt upon Mr. Gruber's speech. He said he knew of nothing better to show the line of cleavage between "Col. Roosevelt's friends and other people in this convention."

"Mr. Woodruff has told you," he remarked, "that President Taft has apprehension over the question of the indorsement of his Administration, but I can tell you it was predicated upon nothing that any friend of Col. Roosevelt had said or done."

Mr. Prendergast assailed the Old Guard and demanded that they tell what they wrote to Col. Roosevelt while he was in Africa about their apprehensions of the coming State campaign.

"What's the use of all this humbug and quibbling?" he continued. "We are here to-day to find out where the Republican Party stands. The party should stand still and consider which side of the road it is going to travel upon.

"They say we are doomed for defeat this Fall. Fine talk for militant men. My party can afford to be defeated. It cannot afford to be wrong."

Mr. Prendergast declared that no Administration pressure had been brought to bear on the Federal office holders.

"I charge it as unfair and underhanded to say that this convention has anything to do with the question who is nomirated in 1912," said Mr. Prendergast.

"Against the ravings of Mr. Barnes and his friends against Col Roosevelt I place the estimate of the President of the United States of America."

Job E. Hedges, former City Magistrate of New York City, followed Mr. Prendergast. Mr. Hedges said his speech was not prepared by either side of the controversy and he thought he would "speak on the Republican Party."

"I'm one of those who is going to vote against Col. Roosevelt because I'm fond of him," said Mr. Hedges.

"What's all this crowd here to-day for? To see whether we are going to be idiots or not," he remarked, amid general applause.

Far more moderate than Gruber and speaking always within the bounds of good taste and good humor Hedges had the crowd with him in all corners of the hall, including Col. Roosevelt, who seemed to appreciate the sallies of his old friend.

The unanimous desire of the delegates, apparently, was to have each man stand up and be counted. So as soon as Judge Hedges's speech was over, a resolution was passed without opposition to have the 1,000 and more delegates polled individually, and the result by Assembly districts announced as recorded. The convention settled down for an hour and a half of dullness. It was rather a welcome rest—at least the first half hour or so of it—after the strenuousness that preceded.

Long Call of the Roll.

The first name called was that of William Barnes, Jr., of Albany.

"I vote for the Vice President of the United States, James S. Sherman," he declared. Of course, everybody knew how Barnes would vote, but it gave the Old Guard a chance for a demonstration and it was used. The Albany delegation, picked out for the convention by Barnes himself, was solid enough for Sherman, and so was the Allegany delegation, selected by Jesse Phillips, one of the pillars of the Old Guard in the Assembly. When Col. George W. Dunn of Broome cast the first Roosevelt vote, however, the cheering was taken up on the other side, and Senator Harvey D. Hinman, the backer of the Hughes Direct Primary bill, also got a hand.

So it went on, about as expected. John F. O'Brien and J. Sloat Fassett led their respective delegations from Chenango and Chemung for Roosevelt, and Louis F. Payn and Lafayette Gleason for Sherman. Erie's nine districts were all for Roosevelt, and another half hour of the tiresome alternation of "Theodore Roosevelt" and "Vice President Sherman" brought the poll down to Kings, where State Chairman Woodruff demonstrated a comfortable control of his county by a vote of 97 for Sherman to 45 for Roosevelt. George W. Aldridge, who at the meeting of the State Committee last night remarked that he had not had deception practiced on him since last Spring, marshalled all his Monroe County delegates for Sherman.

When Nassau was reached the name of "Theodore Roosevelt" was called by Secretary Gleason.

"Excuse me," replied the Colonel, with a deprecating gesture of the hand and the accent on the "excuse." Everybody laughed, and the Nassau vote was announced as 10 for Roosevelt and 1 not voting.

It now was down to the long session with New York's thirty-five districts. It was mostly Roosevelt, of course. Job Hedges stood out along with Martin Saxe and Gilchrist Stewart of the Thirteenth District announced with great unction that he would refrain from voting. Gruber's delegation from the Seventeenth went solid for Sherman, and Robert C. Morris's vote was an exception in the Twentieth District. Then came the list of the "silk stocking" Republicans, Depew, Woodford, the two Griscoms, Clement A., Jr., and Lloyd C.; Artemas Ward, Cortland Nicoll, Agnew, Stimson, Setn Low, and Elihu Root. The New York delegation showed, all told, 173 for Roosevelt to 16 for Sherman, with 1 not voting.

This practically settled things, and the roll call dragged out more drearily than ever, relieved only now and then, as when Vice President Sherman, in answer to his name, announced in stentorian tones, "John Doe," and when the Old Guard liberally hissed Senator Davenport of the Second Oneida District and his associates for casting their votes for Roosevelt, instead of for their neighbor, Sherman. The Queens vote was mostly all for Sherman, and Ward of Westchester delivered his delegates. Wyoming, down next to the end of the list, was all Roosevelt, and little Yates, the extreme tail-ender, split two to two.

What the Roll Call Shows.

Thus at 3:45 o'clock the roll call was complete and the Rough Rider was elected Temporary Chairman of the convention. An interval of dubious music gave the tellers a chance to figure it up, and then Chairman Woodruff announced the result—567 for Roosevelt and 445 for Sherman, three delegates not voting, a majority of 122.

There were the customary cheers when the result was announced, and Col. Roosevelt became for the moment the centre of a lively group of congratulators, headed by Douglas Robinson, his brother-in-law, who from a seat of vantage at the press table, had taken a keen interest in the proceedings. The Roosevelt smile was broader than ever now, and when, after announcement from the Chair, Vice President Sherman, who was appointed one of his escort, came down the aisle with his customary smiling visage, the two men met as if the Chaplain's cheerful appeal at the outset of the convention had, indeed, been realized. They grasped hands, and the Colonel put his left one on the Vice President's shoulder.

"Sherman," said Col. Roosevelt, "I'm mighty glad that Woodruff made it plain in his speech that there was no personal feeling toward you involved in this matter."

Finally, having acquired Cornelius V. Collins, the other escort, Col. Roosevelt and the Vice President pushed their way to the platform, where Mr. Woodruff waited, not so happy in appearance as Mr. Sherman had been.

"Gentlemen," shouted Mr. Sherman, "your selection for Temporary Chairman of this convention, Col. Roosevelt!"

This let the cheering loose again for nearly a minute, but there was no motion to make the choice unanimous, and the Old Guard and its followers remained in their seats while the successful majority rose to give Mr. Roosevelt a standing ovation as he stepped to the front of the platform. He lost no time in plunging into his address, which he read from his manuscript, except for digressions in which he made the following comments on the speeches that had preceded:

"It has been said on the platform to-day, that there is no party which makes a profession of dishonesty. No, but there are plenty of people who make a practice of it.

"There has been a question raised on this platform to-day as to what is meant by a boss. I will tell you. The difference between a boss and a leader is that a leader leads, and a boss drives. The difference is that a leader holds his place by firing the conscience, and appealing to the reason of his followers, and that a boss holds his place by corrupt and underhand manipulation. The difference is that the leader works in the light of day, while the boss derives the greater part of his power from deeds done under cover of darkness."

"I do not want to have to merely ask the trusts to be kind enough not to do wrong, but I want the State to have the power to make them do right." (Mr. Roosevelt's prepared speech will be found in another column.)

The usual resolutions for the temporary choice of the minor officers of the convention were now in order, and quickly disposed of.

Chance for Old Guard Fight.

Then came the beginning of the tactical battle that is likely to consume a good deal of the convention's time in the session of to-day. Senator Hinman of Broome offered the conventional resolution that the Assembly rules govern the proceedings of the convention. Instantly Speaker Wadsworth was on his feet moving an amendment to the Assembly rules so as to permit a minority report of a committee to be presented on the floor and discussed, which could not be done if the rules were applied unchanged. Senator Hinman remarked that what was good enough for the Assembly under Wadsworth ought to be good enough for the convention, but the rejoinder came back from the Old Guard: "Gag rule! Gag rule!"

Mr. Griscom of New York finally seconded the amendment, and Mr. Hinman accepted it. It was carried by a big vote, an dthe Old Guard had things where, with the minority on the standing committees of the convention, they could bring any proposition out on the floor for a thorough discussion. The victory was particularly important in view of the divergent views on the direct primary matter which are entertained within the company of delegates who supported Col. Roosevelt to-day, and it insures a most interesting session when the Committee on Resolutions makes its report.

Following out the same idea, when J. Sloat Fassett moved that all resolutions be referred to the Committee on Resolutions without debate, Senator Brackett of Saratoga objected, saying that this convention, the most important the party has held in half a century, ought of right to allow the freest discussion compatible with the transaction of business. Mr. Fassett replied that he thought every necessary object of this kind was accomplished in the preceding resolution as amended, and that a matter that was not important enough to appeal to a single member on a standing committee of thirty-nine members was hardly worth discussing. The delegates took this view and the Fassett motion was carried.

Power Given to Roosevelt.

But when Victor M. Allen moved for the appointment of a Committee on Credentials, one from each Congressional district, by the Chair, Speaker Wadsworth was once more on his feet with an amendment that the committee members be chosen by the Chairmen of the respective district delegations and certified to the State Convention by the respective members of the State Committee. For this amendment there was strong support, and after Mr. Fassett and Mr. Wadsworth had enjoyed a little passage at arms a viva voce vote left things so much in doubt that a standing vote was ordered. It was declared that the amendment was lost, and the resolution went through as offered.

A similar amendment was offered when William H. Daniels of Erie offered a resolution for the appointment of a committee, one member from each of the thirty-nine districts, on Permanent Organization. This amendment met the same fate as its predecessor, and the Old Guard abandoned the struggle, quite content to leave everything in the Colonel's hands, so long as they reserved the right to kick up a fuss from the floor every time a guardsman serving as a minority member on a committee saw fit to bring in a dissenting report.

The resolution offered by Mr. Prendergast of Brooklyn for the appointment by the Chair of a Committee on Resolutions went through without material opposition, although with some superfluous talk as to whether an amendment could be offered when the previous question was moved.

The lists of committee selections, made up according to the reports of the District Chairman, were now passed up to Col. Roosevelt, and calling Mr. Prendergast, Congressman Cocks, and Herbert Parsons to his side, he went through a hasty review of them. Secretary Gleason presently read the names of the thirty-nine men who have nothing to do on the Credentials Committee, as there are no contested seats, and of thirty-nine more, headed by William H. Daniels of Erie, who are to get up a permanent organization.

The Committee on Resolutions, in which there was much more interest, in view of to-day's parliamentary developments, was headed by Mr. Prendergast.

After the announcement of the committee there was some talk about the platform that Col. Roosevelt, who had discussed the list submitted to him for some time with Mr. Prendergast, Mr. Cocks, and Mr. Parsons, had made material changes in it. An examination, however, proved that only two changes had been made. All but one of the important Old Guard members originally named had been left on the committee—Barnes, Aldridge, Brackett, Merritt, Ray Smith, and Wadsworth. Only Mr. Swasey, representative of Mr. Sherman, had been removed. He was replaced by ex-Assemblyman Hart, who defeated Mr. Sherman in the primaries in his own Assembly district.

Finally at 4:45 o'clock the first day's session of the convention adjourned to meet to-morrow morning at 10:30.

The Chairman of the Committee on Credentials announced that there would be no meeting of the committee, there being no contests.

After the convention had adjourned the Colonel turned to the newspaper men and remarked:

"I said frazzled, you may recall. You may quote me on that."

At Troy yesterday the former President said he would beat his opponents to a frazzle.

OLD GUARD PLANS FOR THE FUTURE

Its Protests on File, It Puts Responsibility for This Campaign on Roosevelt.

WOODRUFF IS DROPPED

Beaten for State Committee in His Own District, but May Represent Another One.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Sept. 27.—Sobered but not dismayed by their defeat in the convention to-day, the Old Guard leaders to-night are preparing to renew their fight on what they characterize as an attempt by Col. Roosevelt to "Bryanize" the Republican Party. The battle began before the Committee on Resolutions this evening, but the grand final onslaught on the Roosevelt programme, which promises to be quite as spectacular as the fight against his election as the Temporary Chairman to-day, will not come until the convention meets to-morrow.

The reactionary leaders will concentrate their hottest fire on the Roosevelt direct primary plank if the plans they have made to-night are retained when to-morrow's sun rises. Should the language of the progressive platform, in the building of which the Colenel himself has taken a hand, prove as radical as the speeches he delivered in the Middle West have given the opposition leaders reason to anticipate there will be a general attack on the document along the entire line. The Old Guard leaders for several days have been at work on tentative drafts of a "sane and safe" platform. They will lie low and watch developments to-night before they determine finally whether they will submit it to the convention.

"Roosevelt controls the machinery of the convention and he may have the votes both in the Committee on Resolutions and in the convention to-morrow to jam through any sort of a travesty on a Republican platform," said one of the Old Guard to-night. "But it is a safe bet that unless the representations of men who have spent a lifetime in winning Republican victories in this State are heeded, we may force in a plank recommending a reasonable veneration for the Constitution of the United States and a decent regard for the United States Supreme Court."

The attitude of the Old Guard leaders after their defeat in the fight for the Temporary Chairmanship was just his: They desire to wash their hands of everything that has been or will be done in the convention before it adjourns sine die. It may be positively stated that they will have no candidates to offer when the slate is made up late to-night or early to-morrow. They do not care a rap if the platform adopted by the convention is not to their liking. But they do want to register a protest which will remain engraved upon the tablets of their party history in future years to show that if their prognostications of disaster at the polls should materialize the catastrophe was of Col. Roosevelt's making; that they sought to guide their party into paths which have led to victory in other years, but that their counsel was disregarded.

With the full responsibility placed with Col. Roosevelt and the progressive element in the party, and with disaster almost certain, they believe that Roosevelt will be discredited after election and that as a natural result party management will revert to them before another Gubernatorial campaign is held.

Republican State Chairman Timothy L. Woodruff looked as though a load had rolled from off his shoulders when he surrendered the gavel to Col. Roosevelt after his election to the Temporary Chairmanship to-day. After leaving the convention hall Mr. Woodruff said that he thought he had done his share in contributing to Republican success since he became State Chairman and that he was not sorry to be relieved of the burden.

"I am a Republican," said Mr. Woodruff, "and as such I shall continue to follow with the liveliest interest the fortunes of my party, and shall do all I can to contribute to its success, but it goes beyond saying that I shall not force myself on those who may come out of this convention charged with the party management."

There was one feature of the developments in the convention to-day which gave the Old Guard leaders a great deal of satisfaction. All the men who have been most conspicuous in the fight on Col. Roosevelt and the progressives entered the session to-day and came out of it with the forces in their districts practically solidly behind them.

William Barnes, Jr., of Albany, was able to deliver the 28 votes from Albany County to Vice President Sherman. The 38 delegates from Monroe voted for the Vice President to a man. Speaker Wadsworth's seven delegates from Livingston County cast their votes for Sherman. There was not a break in the large delegation from Onondaga County, where Francis Hendricks is the leader. The 33 delegates from Westchester, where National Committeeman William L. Ward holds sway, remained loyal to their leader, who has been one of the most conspicuous figures in the fight on Col. Roosevelt and his programme.

In the Kings County delegation of 442 members, there was less defection than had been expected. The Roosevelt leaders had asserted all along that once the delegates got into the convention hall at Saratoga Col. Roosevelt would have a majority from State Chairman Woodruff's district. Instead, Vice President Sherman received two votes and more for each vote that went for Col. Roosevelt.

Chairman Woodruff was displaced as a member of the Republican State Committee at a meeting of the members of the Sixth Congressional District of Kings County to-night, Alfred S. Van succeeding him. It is declared that Mr. Woodruff is now in a position to retaliate by preventing the renomination for Congress of Representative William L. Calder, one of the leaders in Kings, who has taken a prominent part in the fight for Roosevelt delegates.

WOODRUFF OFF COMMITTEE.

SARATOGA, Sept. 27.—State Chairman Timothy L. Woodruff of Brooklyn, one of the Old Guard leaders, was one of the first to feel the effect of the progressives' victory in the State Convention to-day. Delegates from Kings County in the Sixth Congressional District, at a meeting to-night, retired Mr. Woodruff as State Committeeman and elected Alfred E. Vass to succeed him.

Members of two other Congressional districts reported that they were ready to elect Mr. Woodruff a member of the State Committee, but it was reported that the State Chairman had said he was ready to retire from politics. This Mr. Woodruff denied, stating that he has nineteen of the twenty-three Brooklyn districts, and intends to remain as leader.

Representative W. M. Calder, in company with Mr. Vass, called on Mr. Woodruff to-night and informed him of the contemplated change, at the same time expressing the friendliest feelings for him.

The Sixth Congresional District comprises the Tenth, Eleventh, and Twelfth Assembly Districts, the last two of which are controlled by Roosevelt leaders, including Senator Travis, and the other by Woodruff.

It is understood that Mr. Woodruff was named as one of the members of the Resolutions Committee, but his name was scratched off by Col. Roosevelt and the name of Controller Prendergast of New York City substituted.

There were numerous reports to-night that Col. Roosevelt had indicated that he did not desire Mr. Woodruff to be returned to the new State Committee. It was further said, however, that the Colonel felt no very aggressive feelings toward William Barnes, Jr., who was named as one of the members of the Resolutions Committee.

Speaker James W. Wadsworth, Jr., of the Assembly was elected to membership on the State Committee to-night by the delegates from the Thirty-fourth Congressional District, succeeding John A. Merritt of Lockport.

Mr. Woodruff can still serve as a member of the new State Committee if elected by any other Kings County Congressional district. This will undoubtedly be done, as no less than two districts are so ready to elect him.

As the new State Committee will be controlled by the progressives, Mr. Woodruff will be retired from the Chairmanship, though still be leader in Kings County and a member of the committee.

Smith Cox of Nassau was elected to-night to succeed State Committeeman John J. Bartlett in the First Congressional District.

In the Fifteenth Congressional District Harry W. Mack is succeeded by A. Gruber. George G. Cromwell's retirement from the State Committee as member from the Eighth Congressional District has been determined upon but the delegates are said to be in deadlock over the selection of his successor.

ROOSEVELT URGES WAR ON DISHONESTY

Also Praises Taft and Hughes in His Speech as Temporary Chairman.

FOR DIRECT NOMINATIONS

Condition of Farmers and Wage-Workers Must Be Improved in Accordance with Industrial Growth.

SARATOGA, Sept. 27.—Col. Roosevelt's speech as Temporary Chairman of the Republican State Convention was as follows:

"We come here feeling that we have the right to appeal to the people from the standpoint alike of National and State achievement. During the last eighteen months a long list of laws, embodying legislation most heartily to be commended as combining wisdom with progress, have been enacted by Congress and approved by President Taft.

"The amendments to the inter-State commerce law; beginning of a National legislative programme for the exercise of the taxing power in connection with big corporations doing an inter-State business, the appointment of a commission to frame measures that do away with the evils of overcapitalization, and of improper and excessive issues of stocks and bonds; the law providing for publicity of campaign expenses, the establishment of the maximum and minimum tariff provisions, and the exceedingly able negotiation of the Canadian and other treaties in accordance therewith; the inauguration of the policy of providing for a disinterested revision of tariff schedules through a high-class commission of experts which will treat each schedule purely on its own merits, with a view both to protecting the consumer from excessive prices and to securing the American producer and especially the American wage worker what will represent the difference of cost in production here as compared with the cost of production in countries where labor is less liberally rewarded; the extension of the laws regulating safety appliances for the protection of labor; the creation of a bureau of mines—these, and similar laws, backed up by executive action, reflect high credit upon all who succeeded in putting them in their present shape upon the statute books; they represent an earnest of the achievement which is yet to come, and the beneficence and far-reaching importance of this work done for the whole people measure the credit which is rightly due to the Congress and to our able, upright, and distinguished President, William Howard Taft.

Praise for Gov. Hughes.

"Turning from the Nation to the State, we find that during the term of service of Gov. Hughes an extraordinary amount of wise and good legislation in the interest of all the people has been put upon the statute books, and the standard of business integrity and efficiency in the management of the several State departments has been steadily raised. The Legislature has passed and the Governor has signed an act establishing the principle of compensation for injuries to working men in extra hazardous occupations, an act which I trust will steadily be widened in its application, and in connection with which the investigating commission is doing work of extraordinary value; acts requiring sanitary conditions in factories and safeguarding the employes and limiting the hours of employment for miners; acts strengthening the semi-monthly pay law, and providing for the regulation of employment agencies; acts strengthening and extending the provisions of the corrupt practices law; strengthening the law against race-track gambling; providing for the protection of the forests and the creation of Palisades Park; providing for regulating motor traffic, for regulating telegraph and telephone companies, for effectually supervising insurance companies. For these, and for many similar laws, and for the executive action which made them effective, thanks are due to the legislative body and to the unflinching resolution and fidelity to a high standard of duty of Gov. Charles E. Hughes.

"Of course, with a party as long in control in Nation and State as ours has been there have been individual instances of misconduct and corruption. But there is no need of any other party raising the cry of 'Turn the rascals out,' for we have turned our own rascals out; and wherever rascality is found to exist in the future, we will be even more prompt to punish any one of our own party adherents than an adherent of another party, because we feel a peculiar responsibility in dealing with the man who not only degrades himself and the public service, but discredits our own party by belonging to it. Any man holding a legislative or executive position who is false to his oath of office, who is guilty of misfeasance or malfeasance, we hold to be a traitor to the whole people, and we have not permitted and will not permit any such man to remain in office where it is in our power to remove him.

Lincoln's Principles Vital To-day.

"I believe in the party to which we belong because I believe in the principles for which the Republican Party stood in the days of Abraham Lincoln; and, furthermore and especially because I believe in treating those principles not as dead but as living. We best show our loyalty to the memory of Lincoln, and the principles for which Lincoln stood, not by treating it and them from the standpoint of historic interest in what is dead, but by treating them as vital, as alive to-day, and by endeavoring to meet the problems of the present, the new problems of our day, in exactly the spirit in which he and those associated with him met the new problems of their day. Empty glorification of our past amounts to less than nothing if we put it forward as an excuse for not doing our duty in the living present.

"The mighty memories of the past are of use only as they serve to spur us on to work in the present. We can deserve the confidence of the people, not by stating that our forefathers preserved the Union and freed the slaves, but by proving in deed as well as in word that we face the problem of dealing with political and business corruption and of working for social and economic justice and for the betterment of the conditions of life and the uplifting of our people, with the same fervor and sincerity that Lincoln and his followers brought to the great tasks allotted to them in their day. I hold that we show ourselves the best servants of our party when with all our might we strive to make that party the best servant of the people as a whole.

"Our first duty is to war against dishonesty. We war against it in public life and we war against it in business life. Corruption in every form is the arch enemy of this Republic, the arch enemy of free institutions and of government by the people, an even more dangerous enemy than the open lawlessness of violence, because it works in hidden and furtive fashion. We are against corruption in politics; we are against corruption in business, and above all, and with all our strength, we are against the degrading alliance of crooked business and crooked politics, the alliance which adds strength to the already powerful corrupt boss and to the already powerful corrupt head of big business, and which makes them in their dual capacity enemies against whom every patriotic man should stand with unwavering firmness.

Honest Business Not Assailed.

"Let no man say that this is an assault upon the honest business man. That is as foolish as to say that it is an assault upon the upright political leader. The extent of our veneration for the great name of Abraham Lincoln, a true servant of the people, measures also the extent of our abhorrence for the crooked boss who misleads and misgoverns and corrupts the people; and so the high regard in which we hold the upright and honest business man who reaps a great reward by rendering a great service to the community is the measure of our contempt and abhorrence for that business man, big or little, who wins success by corruption and fraud, who swindles the public instead of serving the public.

"In short, our attitude is merely that we stand for honesty as well as for progressiveness and for efficiency; that we believe both business man and politician should be just and upright and honest as well as wise, courageous, and farsighted. We are against crookedness in the small man, but we are against it just as strongly in the big man. We judge each man by his conduct, and not by his wealth or his social station; and we hold it to be our bounden duty to strive steadily to make and to keep this great American commonwealth as a true democracy and steadily to endeavor to shape our legislation and our social conditions so that there shall be a far nearer approach than at present toward equality of opportunity among men. The corporation must be protected, must be given its rights, but it must be prevented from doing wrong; and its managers must be held to strict accountability when it does wrong; and it must be deprived of all secret influence in our public life.

"We must strive to do away with the social and economic injustices that have come from failing to meet by proper legislation the changed conditions brought about by the gigantic growth of our gigantic industrialism.

Benefits for Country Districts.

"We of this State must make it our business to help in efficient fashion the country districts, to shape matters so as to encourage the growth of the farming communities, and to help give the people in those communities the advantages which have come in disproportionate measure to the city rather than to the country during the industrial growth of the last fifty years.

"We must guard the interests of the wage worker, the man who works with his hands; we must safeguard the woman who toils and see that the young children do not toil.

"We must see that, by far-reaching legislation, the workman who is crippled, and the family of the workman who is killed in industry, are compensated, so that the loss necessarily incident to certain industries shall be equitably and fairly distributed instead of being placed upon the shoulders of those not able to bear them. We must make it a matter of obligation by the State to see that the conditions under which working men and women do their work shall be safe and healthful. So far as by legislation it is possible we must strive to give to the workingman the power to achieve and maintain a high standard of living.

"Finally, and as a matter of course, we must do everything possible to promote and conserve the business prosperity of the whole country.

Direct Nominations Needed.

"We, who come together to set the standard of our party, have a grave responsibility to that party and to the public. Democracy means nothing unless the people rule. The rule of the boss is the negation of democracy. It is absolutely essential that the people should exercise self-control and self-mastery, and be not a foe to popular government who in any way causes them to lose such self-control and self-mastery whether from without or within. But it must be literally self-control and not control by outsiders.

"We should at once introduce in this State the system of direct nominations in the primaries, so that the people shall be able themselves to decide who the candidates shall be, instead of being limited merely to choosing between candidates with whose nomination they have had nothing to do.

"Our country offers the most wonderful example of democratic government on a giant scale that the world has ever seen; and the peoples of the world are watching to see whether we succeed or fail. We believe with all our hearts in democracy; in the capacity of the people to govern themselves, and we are bound to succeed, for our success means not only our own triumph, but the triumph of the cause of the rights of the people throughout the world and the uplifting of the banner of hope for all the nations of mankind."

LONDON MUCH INTERESTED.

The Times Says Roosevelt's Effort May Affect the Entire Union.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Wednesday, Sept. 28.—All the London papers print lengthy dispatches dealing with the Saratoga Convention. There has been little editorial comment as yet, the most important being that of The Times, which says:

"Nothing apparently daunts ex-President Roosevelt. His position seems somewhat like that of a General who undertakes to remodel his army on the eve of battle. If it were any other General than Roosevelt, and if these were normal times, we should be inclined to doubt the wisdom of such tactics, but American politics are in the melting pot, and at such times heroic measures are demanded.

"Yesterday Mr. Roosevelt, having upset all the usual machinery of State Conventions, made a direct appeal to the people over the heads of the bosses for honest representative government. His appeals have seldom fallen flat. If he really succeeds in re-establishing such government in New York State he will have performed a feat which will have an effect upon every State in the Union—and almost all are in the throes of a similar struggle between the old idea of politics and the new."

COMMITTEE DIVIDES ON PRIMARIES PLANK

All-Night Session in Prospect with Probable Open Fight in the Convention.

TARIFF MAY BE INDORSED

Full Indorsement for Taft and Hughes —Strong Labor Plank to Meet Roosevelt's Views.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA, Wednesday, Sept. 28.—No agreement on a direct primaries plank for the Republican State platform is in sight at an early hour this morning. The committee adjourned at midnight to give a sub-committee opportunity to find a compromise, and resumed its session at 1:30 o'clock to hear the report.

It is probable that an all-night session will be held, but it may not result in an agreement. It is highly probable, in fact, that the fight must be taken to the floor of the convention. On all the other planks there is practical agreement. Concessions have been made to the sentiment for President Taft that have prevented any attempt at independent action on the part of his adherents.

On direct primaries it is not probable that any strong stand will be taken by the convention. Aside from Judge William H. Wadhams there is practically no demand in the Resolutions Committee for anything stronger than the Cobb bill. The more advanced opinion among the progressives is in line with the principle of the Cobb bill, which provided for the direct nomination of only Senate, Assembly, and Congressional candidates. The middle-of-the-road men, such as J. Sloat Fassett, advocated a limited trial of direct nominations for Assembly and Senate, or possibly, Assembly alone.

William Barnes, Jr., and Speaker Wadsworth indicated that the extreme to which they would go would be direct primaries for the nomination of party committees and of delegates to the party conventions. Barnes was prepared to concede the establishment of a uniform party primary day, but would not agree with those who desired to provide specific safeguards to prevent members of one party from voting in the primaries of another.

Judge Wadhams, President of the Direct Primaries Association, declared before the meeting that he would demand a plank on the lines of the Hinman-Green bill, and that if he did not succeed in getting it he would himself make a minority report to the convention and take the fight on the floor.

"The advocates of direct primary legislation are highly gratified," said Judge Wadhams, "at the stand taken by Col. Roosevelt on this subject in his speech this afternoon."

When the committee took a recess at mid-night it seemed assured that agreement would be reached on everything but primaries. In fact it was said that the matter of drafting on all other plans was a matter of literary workmanship.

Practical agreement had been reached on the matters of indorsement of the Taft and Hughes Administrations, including the elimination of the proposition to indorse President Taft for renomination in 1912. It was expected that the indorsement of the National Administration, however, would be strong and unequivocal. Otto T. Bannard, who has been acting as the Administration representative and is a member of the Resolutions Committee, said: "The planks indorsing the Administrations of President Taft and Gov. Hughes will be just as strong as they possibly can be made, and there will be no opposition to these planks in the committee."

There was some discussion as to whether the plank indorsing President Taft should make an enumeration of the accomplishments of the Administration in legislation and otherwise along the line of Col. Roosevelt's speech in the afternoon, but there was a sentiment in favor of having it as short as it could be and still meet the requirements.

There was some discussion also of the tariff plank, with the prospects of some difference of opinion on the question of making it a straight out indorsement of the Payne-Aldrich law. One of the men who have been working with Col. Roosevelt declared that this would be done, although there has been a strong feeling among the progressives that the best thing to do would be to lay stress upon the maximum and minimum features of the law and upon the benefit to be obtained from the work of the Tariff Board.

There is certain to be a strong labor plank, with especial emphasis upon the demand for an adequate measure of workingmen's compensation. This will be in line with what Col. Roosevelt has been saying in his recent speeches.

Somewhere toward the end of the platform there will be a paragraph dealing with the retirement of Gov. Hughes to become a member of the Supreme Court, and advantage will be taken of this opportunity to reaffirm the confidence of the Republican Party in the courts. This is made timely by the outcry raised by Col. Roosevelt's speech to the Colorado Legislature at Denver.

Mr. Barnes presented the platform advocated by the Old Guard. In it were these paragraphs:

> The Republicans of New York declare their unequivocal indorsement of the Administration of President Taft. With painstaking tact and the determination that he and his party associates should do exactly what they agreed to do, when they sought the people's confidence, he has labored with such success that in a single year the programme of legislation set forth in the Republican National platform of 1908 has been almost entirely enacted. He has combined decision with conservative treatment of the tariff, of railroad legislation, the conservation of natural resources, and all other questions which have come before his Administration.
>
> We indorse the administration of Gov. Hughes. His high character as a citizen, his fine and progressive ideals as a statesman have impressed the country profoundly. We congratulate the Nation upon his appointment to the Supreme Court, to the learning, dignity, and reputation of which he will bring the contribution of a mind strong, trained, and well-informed.
> We reaffirm the American Constitution to be the reliable chart which must guide our course. It has stood the test of every experiment that one 120 years could provide, during the most extraordinary National expansion that the world has ever known. Attempts to read into its provisions powers that do not exist there, to induce the executive branch of the Government to overstep its historic limitations, to endeavor to induce the courts to impute to it doctrines strange to the long line of their consistent interpretation threatens our liberties and is obstructive of our National security. The Republicans of New York deprecate and oppose every such attempt; we declare that there is no theory, new or old, which should survive an attack upon the Constitution.

Soon after the committee went into executive session a delegation of suffragettes swooped down on them and demanded admittance in order to present their cause. They were accompanied by a man who was to make a speech for them. The committee summarily refused to hear any man argue for woman suffrage, but gave the women ten minutes in which to express their views.

R. Ross Appleton of Brooklyn submitted a plank favoring State action for the care and prevention of tuberculosis, to which there appeared no objection.

TAFT PRAISED AT CONCORD.

New Hampshire Republicans Commend Roosevelt Policies.

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 27.—A platform constructed by progressive members of the party was adopted unanimously at the Republican State Convention held here to-day. Under the new primary law this was the only work the convention had to do.

The Administration of President Taft was indorsed to the extent of a commendation of "the Republican achievements of the last Congress under the leadership of President Taft in carrying out in such a large measure the policies inaugurated by Theodore Roosevelt." The platform continues:

> We are in favor of a tariff to conform to the National Republican platform of 1908, which established the principle that the just measure of protection is the difference in the cost of production at home and abroad, with a fair profit to the producer. We therefore urge the appointment of a non-partisan tariff commission with full power to obtain the information required in order that the tariff, in accordance with the suggestion of President Taft, may be scientifically revised, schedule by schedule, at the earliest possible date.

The nominee for Governor, Robert P. Bass, addressed the convention, which was presided over by Dr. John M. Gile of Hanover. The convention then elected a State Committee, after which it adjourned.

GAYNOR IS OUT; SHEPARD LEADS

for nothing else, but he was in conference with Mr. Shepard late to-night on the Lieutenant Governorship and it is believed that an amicable arrangement was reached between them.

Mr. Shepard is Chairman of a sub-committee of the State Executive Committee appointed to draft the platform. He and his friends desire to make it plain that they are not authorized to draw up the platform, and that what they are going to present will be merely a draft. Nevertheless, it is certain from what was learned from the incoming delegates to-day that if the Shepard draft is amended in any way it will be only in the direction of greater radicalism.

With this in mind it is interesting to know that the main planks of the Shepard platform are these:

1. A stronger direct nominations plank than the Republicans will have.
2. An attack on the tariff and a demand for the election of Democratic Congressmen to revise it.
3. An arraignment of the new Nationalism.
4. A strong defense of the Supreme Court against Roosevelt's recent attack.

Mr. Shepard is not a candidate for Governor, any more than Mayor Gaynor was. His attitude is receptive, but not eager. For all that a strong campaign has been engineered for him, and he is the real candidate of New York and Kings. It might not be going too far to say that he has been their real candidate from the very first, the Gaynor talk to the contrary notwithstanding.

A bolt from his nomination is one of the possibilities. A strong effort is being made to-night to get one up, and if even a dozen delegates can be induced to walk out when he is placed in nomination the thing will be done. In the meantime the wires are being worked overtime to acquaint William R. Hearst with the situation and to get him to run Sulzer or somebody else as an independent candidate in case of Shepard's nomination.

The news of Mayor Gaynor's letter was a mighty shock to the Gaynor men who are already here. They do not know what to think of it, and a great many of them still refuse to-night to believe that he will not allow himself to be nominated. Several delegations from up-State which are practically pledged to the support of the Mayor arrived late this evening, and would not believe that he had written such a letter.

"Who is James Creelman?" asked one man. "I never heard of him."

Possibly the most indignant delegations are the Erie and Niagara County men. The Erie delegates are committed to Mayor Gaynor by tacit consent, while not officially instructed for him. Sheriff Foley of Niagara, who heads the delegation from that county, had this to say: "Who ever heard of this man Creelman? Why did the Mayor write this letter to him? We want him for our candidate, and we will make him our nominee if we can do so."

There are a good many men here who are taking this same position. They cannot believe that the Mayor's letter means what it says on the surface. The opinion is freely expressed that it is possible that the Mayor is "toppling over backward." This is taken to mean that he is so sure of the nomination that he is willing to go to the furthest lengths to test out his hold upon the people of the City of New York. His most enthusiastic supporters here admit that something would have had to be done by him to offset the decided impression that he had promised the people to fill out his term. The persons who take this view are also declaring that the Mayor may stand in grave danger in this position of overplaying his hand.

The Havens, Sulzer, and Osborne men are very indignant over the entire situation. They maintain that the Mayor's declaration of his stand at this late date is a great injustice to them. They feel that he should have announced himself several weeks ago, and given them a chance to get before the people and the delegates, which thy could not do while it was tacitly understood that the Mayor would be the nominee. Feeling against him is very strong to-night, on account of his opening the way for the nomination of a dark horse.

Letter a Surprise to Murphy.

Leader Murphy, State Chairman Dix, Daniel F. Cohalan, Norman E. Mack, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee; William J. Conners, J. Sergeant Cram, and John H. McCooey took dinner to-night at the Genesee Valley Club as guests of Thomas W. Finucane. When Mr. Murphy returned to his rooms at the Seneca he was asked if he had heard of Mayor Gaynor's latest letter. Mr. Murphy replied that the letter had been read to him oevr the long-distance telephone, and that it came as a complete surprise.

"Does this mean that he is out of the race?" he was asked.

"Why should I suppose anything else?" Mr. Murphy replied.

"What effect do you think it will have upon the convention?"

"There are a number of strong candidates," said Mr. Murphy. "I am up here to do all I can to follow out the wishes of the Democrats of the State. Speaking for Tammany Hall, I have no candidate."

"Did you talk about the letter after you heard of it?" he was asked.

"Yes," Mr. Murphy replied. "We mentioned it at the dinner, but there was no actual discussion of it."

"Does the letter change the position of the New York County delegation?"

"Of course it must," replied Mr. Murphy.

"My opinion is and always has been that the Mayor should stay in New York and serve out his term. I always thought that."

"What of the candidacy of Mr. Shepard?" he was asked.

"He is one of the strongest men that have been mentioned," said Mr. Murphy.

The interview was conducted in Mr. Murphy's usual cold and calm manner. The only time he showed any interest was when he spoke of the Mayor serving out his term. Then his words came in a sharp, emphatic manner.

Mr. Murphy, with Daniel F. Cohalan, J. Sergeant Cram, Philip F. Donohue, and Francis Burton Harrison, arrived on the Empire State Express this afternoon, and moved on their quarters in the Whitcomb. Mr. Murphy at once called in a few up-State men and had a quiet talk with them. He said he had nothing to say at present.

Murphy the Real Boss.

It is generally conceded that Mr. Murphy is to-day in reality the State Boss and that what he wants will be done. As usual Mr. Murphy and his friends "have nothing to say." The leader himself sticks to his old position that "the convention will decide," and that he "must wait to see what the delegates want" before declaring himself. Mr. Cohalan, Murphy's closest personal adviser, takes the same stand to-night. The others follow their example.

Chairman Dix of the State Committee came in on the same train with Murphy. When Mr. Murphy was asked if he had talked with Dix on the way to Rochester he replied that he had. Further than this he would not go. Never before at a recent Democratic State convention has the impression been so strong that the State Chairman is definitely under the domination of the leader of Tammany.

The Brooklyn leader, John H. McCooey, arrived in town just before Mr. Murphy. This is the first convention he has attended since he assumed the mantle of Patrick H. McCarren, and he wears his responsibilities gravely.

"Pat" McCabe, the Democratic leader of Albany County, came up with Mr. Murphy. He is also "marking time."

There will be no fight on the organization of the convention this year. There will not be the usual lurid row in the Committee on Contested Seats, and there is no McCarren to stand up in the convention and challenge the authority of Mr. Murphy.

Many up-State leaders also began to straggle in to-day, but very few delegates. William J. Conners came down from Buffalo and was the first to greet Mr. Murphy when he reached the Seneca Hotel. Mr. Conners's smile was expansive, and there was no surface indication of his late unpleasantness with the Tammany boss. Slipping his arm through Mr. Murphy's Mr. Conners walked his old enemy to a quiet corner and the two had a long talk. Mr. Conners, although arrayed in a new cutaway coat and high silk hat, presents a pathetic figure. Like a man who has stepped out of the limelight, he seems appreciative of any evidence of recognition from whatever source. Looking up the newspaper men, the former State Chairman confided that, in his opinion, the convention would be an open one, and that every candidate had an equal chance so far. Mr. Conners was sure that there would be a strong direct primaries plank in the platform, and he added that Erie County would be solidly for it.

Rochester has made elaborate preparations to show its appreciation of having been selected as the convention city, and the hand of welcome is extended everywhere. Its citizens, Democrats and Republicans alike, have contributed liberally toward furnishing entertainment for the coming crowds, and to-night the whole city resembles the electrical splendor of Coney Island. Thousands of electric light bulbs have been strung across and up and down the principal streets, and large display signs are at every corner.

MANY TAMMANY MEN GOING.

Five Trainloads to Start for Rochester This Morning.

The first carload of Tammany men, headed by Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, started for Rochester yesterday morning on the Empire State express. It included Daniel F. Cohalan, Grand Sachem of Tammany Hall; J. Sergeant Cram, and Philip F. Donahue.

The main body of Tammany braves will start for the convention to-day. Five trains over the New York Central and the Erie will take them to Rochester. It was said at Tammany Hall yesterday that its representation at the convention would be larger than in many years, and that at least 1,400 would be on hand when the shouting started.

The three special trains which will start to-day over the New York Central will be composed of eleven cars each. No diners will be attached, and no stops will be made for meals. The Tammany men will carry lunches. Thomas F. McAvoy will have charge of the first train to start this morning over the Central, Thomas F. Foley will have charge of the second, and Arthur H. Murphy the third.

Former Borough President John F. Ahearn will be in charge of the first Erie convention train and James J. Hagan the second.

The Brooklyn contingent will leave Jersey City on a special train from the Erie station this morning. There will be about 200 in the delegation.

100,000 FLEE FROM CHOLERA IN NAPLES

DUCHESS VISITS PATIENTS

Immigrants from America Forcibly Prevented from Landing—Violent Scenes in Sicily.

ROME, Sept. 27.—With the removal of the censorship, startling news in regard to the cholera epidemic in Naples is being received.

A number of persons have died in the streets, and the popular excitement is such that the police have great difficulty in maintaining public order.

It is reported that 100,000 of the better classes have already fled from Naples.

Immigrants arriving to-day from America were forcibly prevented from landing. The passengers on the steamer Canopic, which reached Naples yesterday from Boston, were permitted to debark, but were immediately escorted by soldiers to the railroad station.

Most of the cases are in the most squalid quarters of the city—in the Vicaria and Mercato districts.

The authorities, who long concealed the truth from the public, until the press made known the real state of affairs, are now doing their utmost to relieve the situation. Quarters for the isolation of the victims are being established on the island of Nisida, in the Bay of Naples, where the quarantine station is located.

The Duke and Duchess of Aosta have hurriedly returned to Naples and are organizing relief methods.

Notwithstanding the fact that the widespread nature of the cholera infection at Naples is known to the public, the official report to-day admits only five cases and three deaths in the entire province of Naples in the past twenty-four hours, three cases and one death in the district of Apulia, and one death from the disease in the province of Foggia. No new cases are reported in the City of Rome.

Dispatches from Sicily report violent scenes there, the peasants everywhere opposing the work of the sanitary officials.

NAPLES, Sept. 27.—The Duchess of Aosta to-day visited the cholera patients in the hospital and spoke words of encouragement to each sufferer.

TURIN, Sept. 27.—Two suspected cases of cholera are reported here.

LEGHORN, Sept. 27.—The death of a sailor here to-day is believed to have been due to cholera.

PALERMO, Sept. 27.—There are three suspected cases of cholera here.

PARIS, Sept. 27.—The Government has issued an order that all railroad cars entering Paris from Austria and Italy be isolated in the Bercy depot for medical inspection.

After a careful bacteriological examination in the case of one of her crew found to be suffering from some undefined intestinal trouble, the steamer Grosser Kurfürst was yesterday permitted to leave quarantine and to proceed to her dock.

The steamer arrived on Monday night from Bremen and was detained by the Health Officer of the port in pursuance of the precautionary measures against cholera.

COTTON HANDS STUBBORN.

Lockout of 150,000 Operatives in England Appears Inevitable.

MANCHESTER, Sept. 27.—A lockout of 150,000 operatives in the cotton mills appears inevitable, unless there is a marked change in the situation very soon. The Secretary of the Cardroom Amalgamation declared to-day that the employes would not accept arbitration on the terms imposed by the Federation of Master Cotton Spinners.

Until to-day it had been hoped that the trouble would be adjusted.

The manufacturers recently threatened a lockout in the entire cotton trade on Oct. 1 unless before that date the strikers at the Fern Mill at Oldham submitted a local dispute to arbitration.

PREDICT CANALEJAS'S FALL.

Spanish Clerical Papers Say There Are Dissensions in the Cabinet.

MADRID, Sept. 27.—The Catholic newspapers here are filled with stories of Cabinet dissensions and freely predict that the manifestations to be held next Sunday will force Premier Canalejas to retire on the eve of the assembling of the Cortes on Oct. 3. They say further that Count Romanones, President of the Chamber of Deputies, will succeed Señor Canalejas.

The Premier's friends declare that these reports are part of the Clerical campaign.

BILBAO, Sept. 27.—The President of the Catholic Committee of this city has been prosecuted for his violent manifesto in connection with the proposed demonstrations next Sunday.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

KIEL, Sept. 27.—Yesterday's wireless report of accidents to two vessels of the German torpedo squadron which is manoeuvring off this port originated in the grounding of the small torpedoboat "S 69" in the outer harbor. The boat was not damaged and the crew were in no danger at any time.

LISBON, Sept. 27.—King Manuel has accepted the invitation of Emperor William to visit Berlin in December.

CHAVEZ DIES OF HIS HURTS.

Peruvian Aviator Was Injured After His Flight Over the Alps.

DOMODOSSOLA, Sept. 27. — George Chavez, the Peruvian aviator who was injured in alighting after his flight over the Alps last Friday, died at 2:25 o'clock this afternoon.

He had failed rapidly since yesterday.

George Chavez was only 23 years old. He was born in Paris, his parents being Peruvians. He had been hardly known as an aviator until he came into world-wide fame through his recent sensational performance at Blackpool and Issy.

At the Blackpool aviation meeting last August Chavez reached an altitude of 5,405 feet, and on Sept. 8 at Issy he established a new world's altitude record. This was at first placed at 8,790 feet, but the official record of the Aero Club made it 8,409 feet. This height was reached by Chavez in forty-one minutes.

The remarkable flight which proved fatal to Chavez after he had accomplished one of the most wonderful feats in the history of aviation was made last Friday. On the previous Monday he had started from Brig, Switzerland, in an attempt to fly across the Alps to Milan for a prize of $20,000, offered by the Italian Aviation Society of Milan. This attempt was unsuccessful, thick weather making it impossible for the airman to proceed, but last Friday he all but accomplished the cross-Alpine flight.

Starting again from Brig, he crossed the Simplon Pass and Kulm. At Domodossola he was descending and was within thirty feet of the ground when one of the wings of his aeroplane collapsed. It is supposed that after planing down a distance of nearly a mile and a half with a dead motor, Chavez restarted his machine when near the ground, and that the strain was too much for the wires supporting the wings, which snapped.

The monoplane fell, and Chavez was crushed beneath the motor. He became conscious soon after he was picked up, but was suffering intense pain, and on examination it was found that both his legs were broken, his left thigh was fractured, and it is supposed that he also suffered internal injuries. At first it was thought that he would recover, but in spite of the best medical aid obtainable, his condition gradually became worse.

Chavez obtained his aviator's license from the Aero Club of France last Feb. 15.

It had been decided to give Chavez $10,000 of the $20,000 prize, although he did not complete the cross-Alpine flight, which, according to the conditions, was to end at Milan.

SELECT AVIATION EVENTS.

French Fliers Will Divide Classes at International Meet.

French aviators have definitely decided as to their respective work in the international aviation tournament at Belmont Park Oct. 22 to 30. The entrants will divide the competitions, with the object of capturing the big purses offered by the management.

Count De Lesseps, Emile Aubrun, Leon Morane, and M. Simon all intend to go after the altitude record and the various speed records outside of the international speed trophy. Aubrun and Simon will also try to capture the record for daily totalization of time spent in the air. De Lesseps, by his ability to fly across the English Channel, and Aubrun, the only other flier besides Le Blanc, who finished in the 488-mile cross-country race in France, are especially qualified to stay a long time in the air.

Alfred Le Blanc, Hubert Latham, and M. Thomas, the members of the team to lift the international trophy, are making extraordinary preparations to accomplish this. Louis Bleriot is finishing the latest model of his monoplane and equipping it with a 100 horse power motor. This is the machine Le Blanc will fly.

The Antoinette Company is also mounting a motor of the same power on its improved monoplane, in which Hubert Latham will compete for the trophy. The monoplane will be flown by Thomas, and will be driven by a motor of eighty horse power. Aside from the similarly equipped biplane with which Leon Morane made the speed record at Rheims, no flying machine of such power has been driven in any competition.

Morane, who holds the world's record for speed over distances of five and ten kilometers, made at Rheims with a Bleriot of 100 horse power, will use the same machine at Belmont Park. In France Morane is regarded as the most daring aviator in the world. He is noted for his skill in taking short curves. He will make an effort at Belmont Park to beat Chavez's altitude record of 8,409 feet. He must only go 1,591 feet above the record to win the special prize of $5,000 offered for the machine that gains an altitude of 10,000 feet.

Le Blanc will be the first French aviator to land in New York, arriving here with Jacques Faure, about one week in advance of the international balloon race, which starts from St. Louis Oct. 18. Le Blanc and Faure are the official representatives in that contest. As the winds in October for many years have invariably been eastward, Le Blanc's balloon, to cover the greatest distance should land somewhere on the Atlantic Coast, as he did in 1907 in the second international balloon contest from St. Louis. His landing was made at Hebertsville, N. J., within six miles of the descent made by the late Oscar Erbslоeh, winner of the race.

Ballooning experts would not consider it extraordinary if Le Blanc landed even in the vicinity of Belmont Park, where at that time his racing monoplane should have already arrived from France on the Niagara, which leaves Havre Oct. 7, and arrives at New York about Oct. 17.

In France Le Blanc holds the distinction of knowing more about how to steer his balloon by negotiating the various air currents than any other balloonist in the world. He has attributed to this ballooning experience his success in winning the recent 488-mile race in France through storm and high winds.

TRIES 100 H. P. MONOPLANE.

Latham Flies in New Machine, Which He Is Going to Bring Here.

PARIS, Sept. 27.—Hubert Latham to-day made a trial flight with his new 100-horse-power monoplane, which has been constructed for use at the international aviation meet at Belmont Park, L. I.

The machine developed a speed of from 60 to 70 miles an hour without the full power of the motor being utilized.

RICHMOND'S MAYOR TO FLY.

Will Ascend with Johnstone at State Fair Despite Friends' Protests.

RICHMOND, Va., Sept. 27.—Mayor David Crockett Richardson this morning accepted the invitation of the State Fair Association to fly with Ralph Johnstone, the aviator, at the State Fair next week.

Political and personal friends have threatened to enjoin him from going up, and his wife has joined in the protests, but the Mayor says he is determined to be abreast of the times.

MRS. STEWART NOW TALKS OF REPRISALS

Woman Carried by Force from Her Home Declares Heavy Damage Suits Will Follow.

DETECTIVES STILL ON GUARD

Servants Smuggle Extra Clothing to Mother and Daughter—Mrs. Stewart Blames Mrs. Leeds for Trouble.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Sept. 27.—The case of Mrs. W. O. Stewart and her daughter, Miss Ferne Parkhurst-Stewart, who were evicted from their home, at 208 South Mountain Avenue, yesterday at the alleged instance of Mrs. William B. Leeds, widow of the wealthy tin plate manufacturer, will not end with the eviction.

While the lawyers for Mrs. Leeds, who is said to be in Europe, declared that Mrs. Stewart had been evicted because of misunderstandings as to the expense of maintaining the establishment, Mrs. Stewart was in consultation with her lawyers in Newark looking toward decisive retaliation on her part, which may mean her reinstatement in the house and a probable suit for assault and trespass.

In the meantime private detectives were having a lively time in repelling the curious who ventured too near the house, and in one instance a photographer was chased by a policeman in civilian clothes who waved his revolver threateningly. A fight is predicted if Mrs. Stewart attempts to regain possession of the house within the next day or so. Mrs. Leeds's lawyers say they have already been instructed by her to rent the property.

Keen interest is felt in the contents of the documents which Mrs. Stewart managed to conceal when the constables bundled her out of the house. The family skeleton has already begun to rattle, and Mrs. Stewart made many bitter comments on Mrs. Leeds as the cause of all her trouble.

"I have letters in my possession that would make most interesting reading," asserted Mrs. Stewart on the piazza of the Hotel Montclair. "Do these concern Mrs. Leeds? Well, I am not telling all my affairs to-day. There will be some big names dragged into this thing yet, and all I have to say now is 'wait.'"

It was learned that Mrs. Stewart and her daughter late last night, through the friendliness of some of the servants who had ingress to their home, obtained additional clothing other than the simple attire in which they were forced to leave the house.

Both showed traces of the ordeal through which they had passed when they came down to the hotel dining room for a late breakfast yesterday morning. Mrs. Stewart is said to suffer from heart trouble, and her friends declare that her experience yesterday might result seriously. She says she feels keenly the notoriety that has been brought to bear upon her young daughter through the eviction. Her first husband, she says, was a nephew of Dr. Parkhurst, the New York clergyman. Messages of condolence poured in upon the two women to-day from all parts of the country.

As regards to her extravagances Mrs. Stewart says that she was given unlimited credit at all of the large New York stores, and admits that more than $50,000 was expended on the furnishings of the house. "One of the leading decorators in New York told me," she said, "that the cost, under the supervision of any other woman, would have been close to $100,000.

"I used good judgment and artistic ability in the interior arrangement of the house. Why, I even took Mrs. Leeds's cast-off effects, and by judicious alteration made them serve instead of more expensive new furnishings. I have only received $40 for sundry expenses since I assumed the care of the house. This sum and the $300 monthly allowance being all that was allowed me by my husband."

Robert W. Thompson, Jr., of the firm of Thompson, Warren & Pelgram, 52 Wall Street, counsel for Mrs. Leeds, said last night at his home, in Morsemere, N. J., that Mrs. Leeds had been more than generous with Mrs. Stewart in providing her with money and paying her bills.

"But it got so that Mrs. Leeds could not meet her demands," he said. "I even offered Mrs. Stewart, on behalf of Mrs. Leeds, an allowance of $500 a month to go away quietly from the house and live elsewhere, but she refused to do so. She said that this amount would be of no use to her.

"After Mr. Stewart left the house about a month ago Mrs. Leeds got tired of paying Mrs. Stewart's bills, and we told her to close up and leave. She was given plenty of time on Tuesday to prepare for her departure, and the story to the effect that she was bundled out in scant attire was manufactured. She was fully dressed and had hours in which to put her things in order. What she did do was to lie down on the floor when the time for eviction came, and as she weighs some 200 pounds she had to be carried to her carriage. I was there all the time. I even offered her $100 to pay her expense for a day or so at the hotel, but she refused to take it."

The life of Mrs. Leeds, who inherited a fortune of $30,000,000 from the tin-plate magnate, has been a romantic one. Her first marriage was unfortunate, and after her separation the courtship of William B. Leeds, who also was divorced, led to a series of peculiar complications.

When his first wife divorced him, Mr. Leeds is said to have settled $1,000,000 upon her, and after he married his second wife his first wife made it a point to appear in public near the second Mrs. Leeds and seek to outshine her in jewels and gowns. Society at Palm Beach was amused throughout one season by this unusual state of affairs.

Later the second Mrs. Leeds was brought into prominence when her husband paid $340,000 for a string of pearls in Paris with the understanding that they should be delivered in New York duty paid. A great fuss was made over the necklace at the time and the purchaser was finally obliged to pay a duty of 50 per cent.

Leeds died in the Hotel Ritz, Paris, in June, 1907, and his will was filed the following September. Since that time Mrs. Leeds has become one of the most interesting widows of New York. She has spent much of her time abroad, however, and her engagement has been frequently reported. Once she was said to be engaged to James De Wolf Cutting of this city, and she has had many noblemen as suitors for her hand.

She has been very popular in London society, and was at first chaperoned by Lady Arthur Paget. The late King Edward set the seal of social approval upon her. She has been seen at many fashionable gatherings in London and Paris this Summer, and, although it was reported yesterday that she was in New York, her lawyers assert positively that she is at present in Paris.

MORE SPOOK NOTES.

Adopted Daughter of R. H. Thompson Again on the Stand in Suit.

More "spook" letters were introduced yesterday in the contest over Robert H. Thompson's $2,000,000 estate before Surrogate Ketcham in Brooklyn. They are said to have been received by Mrs. Marion A. Funk, Thompson's adopted daughter, from "Muzzy," as she called his first wife, and they form the basis of a claim by his second wife, Mrs. Mabelle Thompson, formerly his stenographer, that Mrs. Funk influenced her father in disinheriting the contestant.

Mrs. Funk occupied the witness stand all day yesterday, ash she did the day before. When questioned by Lawyer Frederick Sparks, counsel for Mr. Thompson's widow, on these communications she was uncertain as to the date and circumstances under which they were received. The lawyers on both sides argued at length as to the interpretation to be placed on some expressions in the letters, but Surrogate Ketcham ruled that the power of the witness in this respect was limited.

"The witness either wrote these letters out of her head," said the Surrogate, "or under the influence of a spirit. She cannot be permitted to explain the meaning of the communications, as she would either be doing an injustice to the ghost or stating a conclusion of her own mind."

One of the communications was from "Muzzy." It read:

> I want to influence you to perfect love, little sweetheart, like Charles had for Sally. You are having and have learned the sweetness of the beauty of wedded life. Muzzy so wants to take from your mind the impression I left there in so many things.
>
> Marriage is not what you saw it, dear; it is the blending of soul and body. Oh! can't you see now why I want you together, for who could give you a sweeter, purer, higher light on marriage than Sally and prepare you to enter that state some time? Love comes to those of pure mind. 'Tis the blend of heaven in a soul with the love of God to the soul of man. MUZZY.

Other "spirit" letters showed a spirit of levity. One read:

> Well, kid, just because I'm the youngest here they make me the last one. Never mind, I'll get even with them, for I can make you play the piano and they can't. Did you feel me last night when you played "Love's Old Sweet Song"?

The "spook" who signed this message was "Herbert," but Mrs. Funk said she did not recognize him. Another letter was from "Charlie." The witness did not know who he was either.

At the conclusion of the hearing Surrogate Ketcham instructed counsel on both sides to hand in briefs and reserved decision.

Thomas A. Edison was an interested auditor. He was a friend of the dead millionaire and was a pallbearer at his funeral.

$1,300 IN PRISONER'S POCKET

Still Encountered Heavy Seas After Getting Home from Europe.

Policeman McGloin saw a man trying to walk east in Thirty-fourth Street on Monday night. Near Fifth Avenue he fell over a carriage block, collided with a lamp post, and then sat down to take his bearings. McGloin asked him what the trouble was. The man arose, and clutched McGloin around the neck.

"Deucedly heavy sea running to-night, old chap," said he.

He could tell nothing about himself, so McGloin locked him up.

In Yorkville Court yesterday morning the prisoner said he was stopping at the Waldorf-Astoria.

"What!" exclaimed Magistrate Breen, looking at the unshaven, plainly dressed man.

"I just returned from Europe. I live in Jacksonville, Fla., and am going home as soon as I can get there. I am ready to pay my fine. The officer has my money."

"How much money did he have, officer?" asked the Magistrate.

"Only about $1,300, Judge," answered McGloin, producing a roll of bills.

Magistrate Breen looked at the roll, then at the prisoner.

"It's all the cash I've got. Isn't it enough?" asked the prisoner, anxiously.

"I guess so," said the Magistrate. "Will you go straight to the hotel now?"

"After I get a little luncheon. This officer can come with me and see that I do, if it won't inconvenience him to lunch with me," replied the prisoner.

"Discharged," said the Magistrate.

WORE FURS ASHORE, THEN PAID ON THEM

Fortitude of Persian Lamb Clad Women on a Hot Day Without Effect on Customs Officers.

A WIFE'S BANK REVEALED

Husband, Who Knew, Told Where the Jewels Must Be—She Has to Pay Extra Duty.

Among the passengers arriving in the saloon of the North German Lloyd liner Kaiser Wilhelm II., in from Bremen yesterday morning, were fifteen women, varying in age from 30 to 50 years, who despite the heat wore Persian lamb coats. As those wearing the fur coats came down the gangplank to the pier they passed Deputy Surveyor Peter F. Bradley. Mr. Bradley has good eyes. He learned presently that not one of the fifteen Persian lamb creations was listed on the declaration made on the way across by its wearer and owner. Then the questions began.

A rather stout woman, wearing a beautiful coat, was first approached.

"Have you ever worn that coat before, madam?" she was asked.

"Yes, Sir; I wore it on the other side once or twice," she answered, with a pleasant smile.

"Then why did you not declare it when you made your declaration?" the customs man asked.

"I forgot all about that," was the answer. "Now wasn't that stupid of me?"

The coat was not seized, but the owner had to add about $111 to the wealth of the Government for the privilege of wearing it from the pier.

The next woman approached had on her arm a coat that she admitted cost her $300 in Europe. She, too, paid the duty after apologizing for her failure to declare it. All those wearing Persian lamb coats had to face a customs examination, and all were compelled to pay duty.

The thirteenth upheld the doubtful reputation of that number. Her husband met her at the pier, and she had a coat worth about $80. While admiring the coat, the Inspectors found other dutiable articles, and so they decided to have the woman searched.

"You will find some jewelry about her," the husband whispered to the woman Inspector who was assigned to search the woman, "but it is all our own and was bought in this country. My wife carries it hidden for safe keeping."

Sure enough, the woman Inspector found about $600 worth of dutiable articles in her search, but the woman satisfied the customs officers that she had bought them in America, and was allowed to bring them in.

Aside from the incident of the Persian lamb coats, yesterday was one of the busiest days the customs agents have had in months. Four big liners got in, and the total amount of duty collected, it was said, was between $35,000 and $40,000. Most of it came from the passengers of the Kaiser Wilhelm and the Cunarder Caronia.

Mrs. Horatio N. Slater, who is said to be one of the wealthiest women in Boston, it was announced at the Custom House yesterday afternoon, had failed, when she arrived on the Hamburg-American liner Kaiserin Auguste Victoria, Monday, to declare wearing apparel valued at $1,333. On her arrival she had declared wearing apparel worth $1,700 which included fashionable gowns. On these she paid $878.58 duty.

In the rest of the effects found in the nine pieces of baggage of Mrs. Slater and not included in her declaration, said Special Deputy Surveyor Smyth, were appraised at $1,353, and included eleven more elaborate gowns, on which the duty was assessed at $843.28. These were ordered seized. Mrs. Slater was notified through her brother that she could have the goods on paying the foreign value of the gowns, together with the duty, amounting in all to $2,196.28. Otherwise they would be sold as a penalty for not declaring them.

Leon Lemaire, manager of a button company in Burlington, Iowa, who had to come over in the steerage in the steamer St. Louis because the rush of travel exhausted the first and second cabin accommodations, appealed to Collector Loeb yesterday from an order of the Surveyor seizing two gld watches, a quantity of pearls, and other articles, and asked for their release. Being a steerage passenger, Lemaire did not have to make a declaration until he landed, and he asserts that the watches were presents for his two little girls. The pearls, he says, are only imitation gems, worth $600, part of which were taken when he went abroad.

An envelope among the mail matter received yesterday at the Custom House contained a Treasury note for $100 in gold, but there was not a line of writing explaining the reason for sending the money to the Collector. The envelope was postmarked White Plains, N. Y., and bore the address printed with ink: "Collector Loeb, Custom House, Bowling Green, N. Y." H. C. Stuart, Special Deputy Collector, ordered the money deposited in the "conscience fund."

SUIT OVER LAND DEAL.

G. T. Rafferty and A. R. Peacock Had Tossed a Coin to Decide Price.

Special to The New York Times.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., Sept. 27.—When Gilbert T. Rafferty of New York and Pittsburg sold a piece of land at Alexandria Bay in the Thousand Islands to A. R. Peacock of Pittsburg the deal was regarded as such a trifle by the two men that a silver half-dollar was tossed in a New York office to determine whether $1,000 or $2,000 should be paid. Rafferty received $1,000.

To-day, however, papers were filed here in a suit begun by Rafferty against Peacock over the transaction. The action is brought to reform a deed, Rafferty now claiming that the deed conveyed more lande than was intended.

STRAUS MILK STANDS TO BE KEPT OPEN

A Committee, Aided by Their Founder but Not Bearing His Name, to Manage Them.

MRS. J. B. HARRIMAN'S PLAN

Health Commissioner Lederle and City Charity Workers United in Urging That the Stations Be Not Closed.

Nathan Straus has decided not to close on Oct. 1 the seven stations from which pasteurized milk has been issued the year around. The regular Summer stations have already been closed, in accordance with Mr. Straus's determination, somewhat earlier than usual, but on account of the appeals made for the continuance of the all-year stations and the distress that would be caused by their closing on the date at first set, Mr. Straus, it was announced yesterday, will keep the seven stations running a month longer.

By that time, it was stated, a committee, of which Mrs. J. Borden Harriman is the Chairman, will have completed arrangements to carry on the work heretofore conducted by Mr. Straus under his own name. Or such, at least, is the hope of the committee.

When Mr. Straus made his announcement Mrs. Harriman called a meeting at the Colony Club, Madison Avenue and Thirtieth Street, to devise ways and means of continuing the dispensation of milk in the sections served by the Straus depots. Health Commissioner Lederle was interested in the work proposed, as was also James Lavery of the University Settlement and Homer Folks of the Charity Organization Society. In addition the committee has been joined by some forty individuals and representatives of organizations.

At the first meeting Mr. Straus was urged to reconsider his determination to withdraw the pasteurized milk charity bearing his name. He would not consent to that, but out of the discussion that followed was evolved a plan to carry on the work he has been doing alone by some sort of organization. On behalf of Mr. Straus it was stated last night that he would lend very substantial financial backing to this charity if it were carried on under a committee or organization name. He is unwilling to bear the brunt of such opposition as in the past has been directed against him personally in this city, it was stated.

If a committee or an association should take over the work done by Mr. Straus alone heretofore it will continue to dispense pasteurized milk, of the virtue of which the men and women now connected with the committee are convinced.

Mrs. Harriman, at her home in Mount Kisco, said last night that the committee would hold another conference with Mr. Straus next Monday, but that until then nothing definite could be given out.

The seven Straus stations that will keep open another month under the old régime are in Tompkins Park, Monroe Street, at the laboratory in East Thirty-second Street, Macdougal Street, East Fifty-ninth Street, East 111th Street, and West Thirty-third Street.

James Lavery, Secretary of Mrs. Harriman's committee, said last night at the University Settlement that the work planned was going forward smoothly, but he could say nothing definite about it until after the committee's conference with Mr. Straus next week.

DIPHTHERIA KILLS J. M. WYLIE

Pastor's Son's Case Puzzled Physicians Until a Blood Test Was Made.

The Board of Health was puzzled yesterday over the death of 18-year-old John McWilliam Wylie of 10 West Ninety-sixth Street, son of the Rev. David G. Wylie, pastor of the Scotch Presbyterian Church, Ninety-sixth Street and Central Park West.

After completing his third year in the High School of Commerce young Wylie went to work with a firm at 346 Broadway. He had been there two weeks when last Saturday he returned home, complaining of chills, fever, and a sore throat. Dr. James Porter Fiske of 74 West Eighty-sixth Street diagnosed the young man's trouble as malaria. He also had a slight congestion of the liver, the physician thought. The young man's health improved on Sunday, but on Monday evening, while his nurse was giving him medicine, he suddenly became unconscious and died in a few minutes.

Blood tests by the Board of Health at first revealed no evidences of illness, but a more delicate test showed diphtheria bacilli. The Board of Health and his family believe he died of that disease.

ARREST NAGLE'S LIEUTENANT

Detectives Said They Lost Money in Lloyd's House Playing Roulette.

Thomas Lloyd, an old-time Harlem sporting man known as the right-hand man of Percy Nagle, was before Judge Mulqueen in General Sessions yesterday and pleaded not guilty to an indictment charging him with maintaining a gambling house at 16 East 125th Street. He was released on $1,000 bail.

Lloyd was arrested on Monday night by Detectives Flood and Leigh on a bench warrant. Three men from the staff of Commissioner of Accounts Fosdick said they entered Lloyd's place on the night of Sept. 12 and lost money playing roulette.

Their testimony formed part of the evidence upon which Acting Mayor Mitchel based his assertion that the city was wide open.

A SUICIDE TO SAVE SUITOR.

Girl Jumps to Death Rather Than Testify Against Father's Assailant.

The Paternas had another family quarrel in their living rooms behind Luigi Paterna's butcher shop at 420 West Thirty-ninth Street, between Ninth and Tenth Avenues, yesterday morning, as to whether Francesca Paterna, 18 years old, should go to the West Side Court and testify against her sweetheart, who had fired five bullets ineffectively at her father last Sunday night. The girl said she couldn't testify against Pangi Donato.

The whole trouble lay in the prejudice Sicilians have against north of Italy men. Luigi Paterna is a Sicilian, and so is his whole family. Donato, who lives at 528 Tenth Avenue, and was employed by the Knickerbocker Bottling Company, was doing sufficiently well materially to justify his thinking of marriage. Francesca liked him. The neighbors testified to the fact he was a worthy young man. But he was a north of Italy man.

Last Sunday night, while Francesca and Pangi were in one of the rooms behind the Paterna butcher shop talking the father rushed in and told the young man that he mustn't come there any more, and that he mustn't think of marrying his daughter. A quarrel followed, whereupon the young man pulled out a pistol and shot all the ammunition he had at the stout father. He missed every time, and then ran out into the hallway and was arrested.

As the time for the trial came nearer the family pressure on Francesca to testify against her lover became stronger. Driven to desperation yesterday morning she decided on suicide. She went to the roof of the five-story building in which her home is, and standing for a moment on the edge of the roof leaped to the sidewalk below.

It was 8 o'clock, and many people were walking along both sidewalks on their way to work or to market. Francesca fell at the feet of a party of working girls. She was killed instantly. The body lay just in front of Luigi Paterna's shop window.

Up in the West Side Court later in the morning young Donato was brought out for trial. Policemen went on to explain to Magistrate Murphy the suicide, and then the young man heard for the first time of the death of his sweetheart. He crumpled down on a bench, moaning. The examination was adjourned until Saturday morning.

AIDS COLORED SUFFRAGETTES

Mrs. Belmont Keeps Her Promise to Supply Them with Rooms.

The colored branch of the Political Equality Association, of which Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont is President, opened permanent headquarters yesterday at 83 West 134th Street. These quarters will be open evenings throughout the Winter with Miss I. N. Moorman, one of the branch members, in charge. The rooms are comfortably furnished and well supplied with suffrage literature and there will be various lecture courses and study classes in the season.

The opening of the headquarters marks the growth of the branch to 100 members, the point at which Mrs. Belmont had promised the members that she would provide them with rooms of their own. Later with further increased size the branch will move into a regular suffrage settlement house.

The National Woman Suffrage Association, at 505 Fifth Avenue, has furnished a pretty reception room adjoining the office of the President, Dr. Anna Howard Shaw. In this is a picture of Susan B. Anthony above a prized souvenir of the association, the chair Miss Anthony used in the last forty-three years of her life. One end of the room is filled with portraits of other suffrage leaders and workers; there are posters used by the English Suffragettes, and on a centre table are the suffrage "Rainbow Fliers," sets of six suffrage pamphlets in as many colors, held together with a suffrage pin.

The grand pageant and street parade, in which all the women Suffragists of the city were to have taken part on October 29, has been postponed until Spring. This was decided at a meeting of the leaders of the Woman Suffrage Party, at 1 Madison Avenue, yesterday afternoon.

INSPECT A NEW FURNACE.

Board of Education Engineers View One Said to be Smokeless.

The Board of Education heard recently that, in the cellar of 40 West Ninety-third Street was a newly-invented furnace, which made neither smoke, gas, nor clinkers, and which burned all its coal down to a very fine ash. They thought that if it really would do all these things it would be a good thing to instal in public schools buildings.

Three members of the board's Engineering Department visited the West Ninety-third Street basement yesterday and got one of the officers of the company which had been formed to put the patent furnace on the market to show them how the furnace worked.

The furnace, as far as THE TIMES reporter could see, is open at the top instead of at the bottom. The fresh air, making the draft rushes down on the coals from above instead of rushing up through them from below. This makes the coals burn more evenly, according to Janitor Lind. The burning coal surrounds an inner chamber, which is filled with water tubes. The heat is communicated to the boiler through the water tubes, while the hot air itself, after passing through the burning coals, goes out of the chimney, after having passed between the water tubes, which are only a short distance apart.

The three engineers of the Board of Education watched the patent furnace work for two hours and then departed without committing themselves to what they thought of the invention. They apparently found that the furnace really did away with smoke and gas. As to how fine an ash it burns the coal to, however, the engineers didn't wait to see. The inventor of the patent furnace is John R. Surrell. He has organized a company to put it on the market.

CENTRE STREET LOOP TO BE BUILT NOW

Service Commission Agrees with the Bradley Company on the Cost of Completion.

TOO MUCH, SEAMAN SAID

Chief Engineer Hinted That His Retirement Was Due to This Settlement —Work Called Subway Section 9-0-1.

In a letter addressed to the Board of Estimate yesterday the Public Service Commission announced that it had reached a tentative agreement with the Bradley Contracting Company for the construction of 9-0-1, the subway section of what is generally known as the Centre Street Loop, at a total cost of $1,813,376, some $200,000 less than the money appropriated for the section. Negotiations were concluded on the estimates for the completion of the work submitted by Acting Chief Engineer Craven, and it was about this proposed settlement that Henry B. Seaman, the lately resigned Chief Engineer, raised so much question in his statement, given out Sunday.

Extra appropriation was made at a time when it was contemplated having a six-track instead of a four-track station at Chambers Street, and the subsequent abandonment of the plan accounts for the surplus of money voted for the work. Section 9-0-1 has presented a vexed problem to the utilities board ever since work under the original contract with the Bradley Company was halted, by an order from Mayor McClellan, on May 13, 1908, in favor of the work on the construction of the Municipal Building. When it became possible to resume the work the long suspension, the necessarily changed plans, and other influences gave the contractor a right to demand altered figures.

"One of two courses was open," says Chairman Willcox in his letter; "(1) either the cancellation of the present contract and the readvertisement of the work, or (2) the compromise of the disputed claims of the contractor, and an agreement upon a price for the completion of the work. It was considered that, if possible, the second course should be adopted, since the adoption of the first would result in delay and litigation, and perhaps in heavy judgments against the city for damages, including allowances for prospective profits. After prolonged negotiations the contractor had agreed to accept in excess of payments already made, but including retained percentages, the sum of $273,635 in full settlement of all its claims and $1,150,000 for the completion of the work. In view of all the circumstances the commission considers this a fair adjustment, and, with your approval, will enter into an agreement in the form transmitted carrying it into effect."

The account for this section would therefore stand as follows:

Amount Appropriated.		Amount Needed.
$2,047,668	(1) Already paid for regular work	$207,565
	(2) Retained percentages	23,062
	(3) Already paid on account extra work	180,175
	(4) Retained percentage	20,019
	(5) Balance in satisfaction of all claims	232,553
1,813,376	(6) Price for completion of work	1,150,000
	$234,291 balance.	$1,813,376

The commission also recommends that the surplus be made available "for the loop line generally." If agreement is entered into immediately, the section should be completed within eighteen months, it was estimated yesterday.

It was in connection with this very section that Mr. Seamon on Sunday explained his resignation as having been prompted by "a difference of opinion as to the propriety of artificially raising an estimate of the value of work to be done in order to meet the demands of a contractor." He had estimated the additional work at $1,040,000, and he intimated that Acting Chief Engineer Craven had been able to retain his position by estimating the work at $1,150,000.

In retort, the commission, besides denying unqualifiedly that Mr. Seaman had ever been asked to raise an estimate or that his resignation was voluntary, showed a letter from him in which he named $1,250,000 as a good figure on which to close the negotions, all things considered. Since Mr. Craven's figures, finally accepted by the contractor, were $100,000 less, the commission thinks Mr. Seaman's charge is answered.

TO EXAMINE P. J. KEIRAN.

Promoter of Fidelity Funding Co. to be Questioned in Carnegie Trust Suit.

Supreme Court Justice Gavegan signed an order yesterday for the examination of Patrick J. Keiran, promoter of the Fidelity Funding Company, before the trial of a suit of the Carnegie Trust Company to recover $137,000 on an alleged promissory note for $375,000 against Rudolph and Leopold Kleybolte.

The Kleybolte allege that the trust company seized the alleged note, which was understood to be fictitious, and then took up Fidelity Funding bonds and Pennsylvania Railroad stock, which had been deposited as collateral. The Kleybolte alleged Keiran was about to go to Canada, and that his testimony would bear out their case.

TO PASS ON TUNNEL PLAN.

Service Board Not to Take Over Steinway Tunnel Until After Public Hearing

Publication of the news that the Public Service Commission looks favorably on a proposal from the Interborough Company which includes the operation of the Steinway, or Belmont, tunnel, the connection of the Second Avenue elevated line with the Queensboro Bridge, the third-tracking and certain extensions of the present elevated system, led to a volley of questions being poured into the office of the Service Board yesterday, betokening promise of lively interest in the public hearing set for Saturday at 10 A. M. Chairman Willcox was asked if agreement had been reached between the commission and the Interborough.

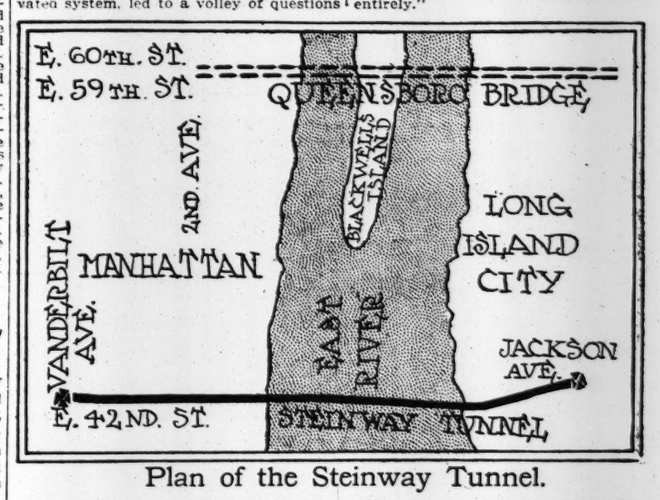
"Hardly," he answered, "else we should not call for a hearing. For some time conferences looking to the operation of the Steinway tunnel have been going on. The commission finally got from the Interborough Company a proposal which it thought worthy of consideration. Therefore it felt justified in submitting the plans for public consideration."

Unofficially, however, it is understood that the proposal is largely satisfactory to the commission, and that it is likely to go through.

One proposal in yesterday's announcement led to a number of perplexed questions from the Bronx. It was in reference to the laying out of a two-track elevated route from Eighth Avenue and 149th Street through Macomb's Dam Lane, over Central Bridge and its approach to 162d Street, and through 162d Street to River Avenue.

"Why stop at River Avenue?" asked the Bronx.

"Because," answered the commission, "at that point the route along Jerome Avenue is already laid out in the Broadway-Lexington system. The Interborough wants to run on Jerome Avenue to 194th Street and stop there. The commission says it must either continue as far as Woodlawn Road or leave Jerome Avenue to the Broadway-Lexington system entirely."



Plan of the Steinway Tunnel.

Here is one point of dispute in the conferences that will probably be aired at the hearing on Saturday.

The Steinway tunnel, which will connect Manhattan and Queens if the present plans are adopted, begins at a loop at Forty-second Street and Park Avenue, running thence under Forty-second Street, East River, and Man-o'-War Reef, to Long Island City, and thence under Fourth Street to its intersection with Van Alst Avenue, where there is a terminal loop and an open-cut approach to the surface. Except under Fourth Street, Long Island City, where it is of the usual subway section, the tunnel consists of two single-track tubes.

There are three stations on the route—first, in Manhattan, between Lexington and Third Avenues; second, in Long Island City, at Jackson Avenue, and third, in Long Island City, at Van Alst Avenue. The first is the largest, and is at a depth of about sixty-five feet below the street surface.

The plan is to build a connecting link between the tunnel and the present Subway system, and to furnish transfers for continuous passage on payment of a single fare.

A Congress of 164 Complete Specialty Stores Under One Roof

EACH store presents a representative stock, selected and managed by an expert who has made a life study of that one line and who concerns himself with no other.

Each of these stocks is large enough to fill, by itself, a good-sized store.

Each of these stocks will be kept, in the strictest meaning of the word, complete; as complete as if it were the only stock we carried.

Many of the more important lines are divided and subdivided again and again, each division being placed under the charge of an independent chief or of a lieutentant having independent responsibilities. In women's wear, for example, there are nine specialists, each concentrating on one branch. There are eight subdivisions of millinery; six of furniture; three of gloves; and so on.

The assemblage of these stores under one roof, one general management and one supervising control, works, as everyone knows, for economy and efficiency. Each, though itself independent, helps the rest.

This Congress of Stores Is the Latest and Highest Development in American Retailing

The principles of concentration, specialization and centralization in storekeeping are here shown at their best, and to them we shall add a fullness and completion in stocks and organization that is new.

The direct result of this congress of stores for the public shall be not alone a central and convenient point for providing its wants, but beside that a service so simple, direct, straightforward, comfortable and safe that a child may deal at Gimbels as safely as the hardest bargain-driver. And not even a child shall be afraid, confused or awed in this comfortable, cozy, interesting store.

PACKEY M'FARLAND BEATS DICK HYLAND

Chicago Boxer Outpoints Californian in Fast Ten-Round Bout at Fairmont A. C.

For the second time within two weeks Fighting Dick Hyland served as the subject for a clever boxers' demonstration before a New York fight crowd, and, as on the former occasion, when he boxed ten rounds with Jack Goodman, last night's go with Packey McFarland even further proved that Hyland has no business in limited round bouts.

McFarland gave as pretty an exhibition of how to use one's knowledge of scientific boxing on a fighter with only willingness and vitality to commend him last night at the Fairmont Athletic Club as it is the good fortune of the average boxing show spectator to see. He was somewhat taller and heavier than Hyland, but the latter could not hold a candle to him at any stage of the ten rounds indulged in last night.

As in his bout with Goodman, Hyland created an impression that he might possibly amount to something if his matches were made for 50 or 100 rounds limit. But, unlike his bout with Goodman, he got more bumps last night. McFarland made a show of him, and at times the Californian's efforts to land a punch on the elusive and wideawake Chicago boy were absolutely funny. His only chance, and he took full advantage of it, was to push and punch and haul away in the clinches. He did not have any easy time at that—his favorite style—for time and again McFarland cracked him on the jaw or smashed him in the ribs just as he was about to start his octopus act. However, the times he did get close he pummeled hard on Packey's ribs, and these were about the only god points he scored.

After the two boys entered the ring there was quite some delay because Hyland insisted on an announcement being made that the match was made at a weight and McFarland failed to weigh in. The stipulation was for 135 pounds. Hyland didn't weigh, either, for that matter, but he was on hand to perform this function and McFarland was not. As they stood stripped in the ring McFarland looked to be fully six pounds heavier.

McFarland right at the start showed that Hyland was not going to have anything on him from a scientific point of view. Almost the first thing he did was to plant his left glove flush on Hyland's mouth. Hyland, as usual, seeing he was up against it, hugged and slapped his arms around the body, beating on the sides and back with his hands. He essayed several leads, but he was clumsy and they missed fire.

Hyland came into a clinch whenever he could get close enough to McFarland in the second round. Whenever he could not get close, it was because McFarland poked him in the face with his left glove, or chased him away with a right wallop in the stomach. Once when McFarland stepped in Hyland caught him on the ribs with a hard right swing, for which he was loudly applauded.

McFarland kept jabbing his left into Hyland's face, one of which blows cut the Fighting one's mouth. Hyland came back for more, and got it, Packey sending him reeling with a shower of lefts and rights on the head. McFarland gave a fine exhibition of how to keep off a rugged, willing fighter, at the same time delivering punches that counted for something.

Hyland knew his only hance was in close, and he clinched at every opportunity, roughing therein all he knew how, though he was fair. He got in some rather hard blows this way, but Packey invariably fought him off and followed up with lefts in the face, on the ear, and rights on the body. He pushed both gloves into Dick's face as the round closed.

Hyland didn't land a clean blow during the entire fifth round. On the other hand McFarland pegged away, jabbed and pummeled Hyland all about the head and body.

Again in the sixth round Hyland was the receiver general for everything that counted. He got such a showing up that would have discouraged 90 per cent. of the fighters, but he didn't discourage a little bit. While he didn't land a blow that was worth anything, he showed conclusively that he wasn't afraid of any boy near his weight.

In the seventh round it was a case of McFarland's left and right on Dick's physique somewhere. Toward the end of the session Hyland took a desperate chance and piled in. He landed a couple of swings on McFarland's body, but try as he might he could not reach the Chicagoan's face. Packey gave him back full measure for all he received, and as the gong sounded Hyland was holding on again.

Hyland did something in the eighth that few have ever seen him do. He got onto himself and beat it around the ring with McFarland hot after him peppering him every second. He didn't get much chance to clinch in this round.

Hyland got the crowd yelling in the ninth by roughing up Packey in the clinches. He took three blows to give one, but nevertheless he didn't let a little thing like that bother him and kept trying all the time. Apparently he was strong, too, and showed no disposition to back away. In one of these roughing clinches he swiped his right arm across the tip of McFarland's nose and started a few drops of blood.

McFarland was mad as they squared off for the last period. He gave Hyland no time to get set or to hug him. Biff, bang, on the ear, the eye, the nose, mouth, neck, and a follow with rights on the body, with scarcely an instant to take aim or fiddle. Hyland was little Johnny on the spot. He didn't run away, and was just suited to McFarland if it was that Packey wanted to show how clever he could be. Hyland fought back all he knew how, which wasn't much, but he was there at the end with a bad left eye and a swollen face, and certainly a sore body.

Joe Mondol polished off Patsy Hughes in the first round of the semi-final, which was to have gone six rounds.

Sullivan and Ryan at Sharkey A. C.

At the Sharkey Athletic Club to-night Paddy Sullivan will meet Dave Ryan in a ten-round bout as the main feature of the club's weekly stag. Ryan has been beaten once by Sullivan, and is especially anxious to get to-night's bout to even up matters. Ryan is a cousin of Jimmy Gardner and has been training at Bond's camp at Stratford for this go. In the semi-final Young O'Hearne will box six rounds with Tom Ginty of Wilkesbarre, and Bill Brown, a brother of the Dixie Kid, will meet Christie Williams in one of the preliminaries.

Morningstar and Hoppe Practice.

While playing with John Hendricks at 18.2 balk line billiards yesterday at Daly's billiard parlor, Forty-ninth Street and Broadway, Ora Morningstar made a high run of 153. Willie Hoppe, in a practice game averaged 18, with a high run of 128. Morningstar and Hoppe are matched to play at 18.2 balk line for six nights at Daly's, commencing Oct. 3.

SENIORS' GOLF TOURNEY.

155 "Boys" 55 Years Old at Last Will Compete at Apawamis To-day.

Grandfathers, grizzle and weather-beaten, will be seen everywhere over the links of the Apawamis Club to-day when the seniors gather for their sixth annual reunion. Never before in the history of this event, which is rapidly assuming National proportions, have so many entries been received, and the 155 is the largest on record.

Golfers from as far west as San Francisco have sent in their names. There were some sixty-odd veterans practicing over the Rye links yesterday, and as many more promise to be on hand this morning, prepared to stick it out for the two days. The Rev. J. McBride Sterrett of Chevy Chase practiced over the course yesterday, as did Emerson Chamberlin of Morris County, Henry Van Arsdale of Baltusrol, W. B. M. Jordan of this city, and W. H. Canterbury of Brae Burn.

Because of the conditions governing this affair no "youngster" under 55 years of age has any good reason for putting in an appearance at Apawamis to-day. Just how old the dean of the gathering will be is at present somewhat in doubt, for rumor has it that Alexander Milne, who has carried off the ancient laurels for several seasons, may have to take a back seat in favor of an octogenarian from over Boston way. Milne owns up to 78 years.

The names of two prominent amateurs are missing in the personnel of the team selected to represent the Metropolitan Golf Association in the Lesley Cup matches at Myopia this week. They are Jerome D. AUTO'S UPKEEP STILL SMALL.

Motor Vehicle Again Shows to Better Advantage Than a Horse.

The second day of the economy test between an automobile and a horse and buggy, which is being conducted by the Maxwell-Briscoe Motor Company, was practically a repetition of the first day, and shows the cost of the auto to be much smaller than that of the horse and buggyq, the auto being operated at a cost of six-tenths of a cent per passenger mile which was less than one-half of what it cost to maintain the horse and buggy. Yesterday's test reduced the cost per mile of both horse and automobile. The car covered a mileage of 76.1 and the horse 35.5. The only expense of the automobile was ninety-two cents for five gallons of gasoline at sixteen cents per gallon and one and one-half pints of oil at sixty-five cents per gallon. No repairs or replacements or adjustments were made. The cost of the horse's upkeep was ninety-five cents for twelve quarts of oats and twenty pounds of hay. No other disbursements were made.

The totals for the first two days show 143.5 miles at $.065 per passenger mile by the automobile, and 64.3 miles by the horse at a cost of $.145 per passenger mile. The route taken by each vehicle yesterday led across the Queensboro Bridge to Thompson Avenue and Hoffman Boulevard, which was followed all the way to Hillside Avenue. At this point the vehicles followed Hillside Avenue to Peace Monument, where they turned off to Fulton Street, Jamaica. The return trip was made by way of Broadway and Rockaway Turnpike to East New York, where they entered Bushwick Avenue and Eastern Parkway.

ROBERTSON OUT OF VANDERBILT RACE

Daring American Driver Has Not Fully Recovered from Accident —Heim to Drive Benz.

George Robertson, who was thrown from his Benz racing car on the Long Island Motor Parkway last Friday, will not be able to be at his wheel in the Vanderbilt Cup race on Saturday. Robertson, while not badly injured, was bruised and scratched considerably and his physician has advised against attempting the strain of the nerve-racking 278.08-mile race.

The Benz car which turned turtle on the course and was damged has been repaired and it was announced by the Benz company yesterday that one of their foreign drivers, Franz Heim, would drive the racer. Heim is a German and was mechanician for Hemery in the Grand Prix of France and rode in the same capacity with Hanriot in the Grand Prize race at Savannah last year. He was on the course for the first time yesterday and made two circuits to study the turns.

Until yesterday Robertson had steadfastly refused to give up his place as pilot of the Benz car, and it was not until after prolonged pleading that he consented to listen to the advice of his friends and physician. Robertson's absence from the race will be a disppointment to many motor enthusiasts, who admire the daring driver.

The rain settled the dust on the course and made a perfect track, with the result that twenty-eight cars were out for yesterday's practice, and nearly all of them availed themselves of the excellent conditions to indulge in fast work. Col. C. H. Warner of Beloit, Wis., the inventor and designer of the Warner electrical timing apparatus, arrived at the course to perfect timing arrangements, and Alden McMurtry of the American Automobile Assocation Technical Committee inspected the new pits.

Fred J. Wagner, the official starter, also was at the course instructing a number of the drivers.

While taking the Westbury turn Joe Matson, in the Corbin car, came near meeting with a serious accident. Matson's goggles had become covered with steam condensation and he had slowed down slightly to replace them when a little girl tossed a small bouquet of wild flowers to the driver. She evidently had intended the flowers to land in his car, but poor aim caused the posies to hit Matson a stinging crack in both eyes. Matson has requested that spectators refrain from tossing tokens of appreciation at contestants, no matter how slowly they happen to be driving. Harry Van Tine, who has had considerable experience in racing, having driven in the Grand Prix abroad and numerous twenty-four-hour races, has been engaged to take charge of the Amplex team.

The excellent condition of the course permitted fast time yesterday morning, and Ralph E. Beardsley, the young driver of the Simplex, showed his stamina by reeling off one dizzy lap in 10:20. Other fastest laps recorded were as follows: Fleming, Pope-Hartford, 10:57; Chevrolet, Marquette-Buick, 10:24; Mulford, Lozier, 11:07; D. Bruce-Brown, Benz, 11:09; Aitken, National, 11:10; Burman, Marquette-Buick, 10:47; Dawson, Marmon, 12:38; Harroun, Marmon, 11:12; Scheiffler, Jackson, 12:16; Matson, Corbin, 11:28; Disbrow, National, 11:47; Wishart, Mercedes, 12:13; Stillman, Oldsmobile, 12:40; Nilson, Oldsmobile, 12:11; Endicott, Cole, 14:23; Wallace, American, 12:46; Belcher, Knox, 12:17; Stone, Columbia, 11:46; Livingston, National, 10:56.

FOUR RECORDS FOR OLDFIELD

Barney Drives Knox Car for New World's Marks at Milwaukee.

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 27.—Barney Oldfield set four new world's records on the State Fair track to-day. In the twenty-five-mile race aginst time, Oldfield, in a Knox car, traveled the distance in 22:47, beating the record which was held by Ralph De Palma. He covered the first twenty miles in new time, setting a mark of 18:15 1-15. De Palma held the former record of 18:30, made at Grand Rapids. The fifteen miles were made in 13:41 2-5. Oldfield also set a new mark for the one-hour event, traveling sixty and a half miles during the hour, beating the old record by one and a half miles.

FOOTBALL GAMES TO-DAY.

Yale and Harvard Will Line Up for Their First Tryout of New Rules.

Several of the college elevens will have their first tussle with the new football rules to-day, Yale opening the season at New Haven against Wesleyan. The Blue team has been at Lakeville, Conn., under Head Coach Coy and a number of other coaches, and are familiar with the new code. Harvard will meet Bates in the first game of the season at Cambridge. The Bates eleven has already had the experience of one game, while it will be the Crimson's first game since the revision of the sport.

The few games last week demonstrated that new players have as good a chance on the gridiron this season as the veterans, and it also showed that the coaches and officials as well as the players have much to learn about the new order of things. Pennsy's experience with Ursinus has awakened the big college teams to the fact that well-drilled elevens from the smaller institutions may be more important factors than ever before and that the preliminary battles of the early season will amount to more than one-sided try-out practice affairs.

To-day's schedule is as follows:

Yale vs. Wesleyan, at New Haven.
Harvard vs. Bates, at Cambridge.
Cornell vs. Hobart, at Ithaca.
Pennsylvania vs. Dickerson at Philadelphia.
Carlisle vs. Muhlenberg, at Carlisle.
Amherst vs. Norwich, at Amherst.
Lafayette vs. Bloomsburg, at Easton.
Lehigh vs. Western Maryland.

LIGHT WORK FOR ELIS.

Humidity and Heat Keep Yale Football Men Out of Hard Practice.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 27.—Yale's closing practice before the opening game of the season with Wesleyan here tomorrow was limited to signal work because of the heat and the fear that the Methodists might have some strenuous plays which would test the Eli's endurance.

Capt. Daly ordered some shifts which were tried out in a long signal drill, three elevens being put on the field for an hour's dummy play rehearsal. The 'Varsity line-up, which is close to that expected in to-morrow's game, follows: Left end, Bomeisler; left tackle, Francis; left guard, Romeyn; centre, Morris; right guard, Loree; right tackle, Fuller; right end, Brooks; quarter back, Corey; left half back, Philbin; right half back, Capt. Daly; full back, Field.

It has been decided to let the veteran "Pop" Corey handle the team instead of Strud, who since Quarter Back Howe was injured last week has been tried in that position with brilliant results. Holladay Philbin was moved to half back, where he has played until two weeks ago, when the coaches shifted him to end. His position at end was to-day filled by Bomeisler of the freshman crew, who is very fast and strong. Loree, the second eleven centre, was placed at guard and Fuller was shifted from guard to tackle. Although Romeyn had a tryout to-day it is believed that Paul will be found in his place to-morrow. Walter Camp, Jr., was sent to half back on the third eleven. Baker, who broke his finger last week, practiced in uniform this afternoon as half back on the second team, with his finger in splints. Vaughan and Kilpatrick were in uniform, and state that they expect to play in the late games this season. Vaughan has been examined by a physician since the team arrived here and has been told that he can play again. Two new graduate coaches joined the resident squad to-day—Carroll Cooney, centre for two years, and John Hall, formerly end rush.

HARVARD'S FIRST GAME.

Crimson Well Prepared for Opening Contest with Bates College.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 27.—Bates College will help Harvard open her football season to-morrow afternoon on the Stadium gridiron. The Crimson enters into this contest brimful of confidence, as the Harvard eleven this Fall is much further advanced than in other years and the material is exceptionally good.

The practice this afternoon, though long, was very light. After tackling the dummies the 'Varsity squad was divided into two sections, the linemen and the ends and backfield. Coaches Burr, Greene, and Blagden took the forwards aside and drilled them in offensive and defensive play. The others, under the tutelage of Leary, Cutting, and Coach Haughton, caught punts from Corbett, Wigglesworth, and Felton and ran them back, much attention being given to interference. Teams A and B were then lined up against each other, mainly for signal drill. No tackling was allowed. Forward passing, interspersed with straight football, occupied the most of this session. Wigglesworth executed some excellent forward tosses to Ends O'Flaherty and L. Smith. Tackle Bob McKay and Full Back Minot are in good standing now. Minot is still awaiting Faculty decision on his eligibility.

After almost coming back in the final inning of the opening battle, the Giants succeeded in doing the trick in the closing chapter of the second engagement with Clarke Griffith's Reds at the Polo Grounds yesterday afternoon, and a twilight victory gave the home herd an even break for the day. These peppery finishes were about the only things to draw any enthusiasm from the 6,000 faithful, who longed for a double victory as a big bracer in the fight for second place. For four hours the Giants failed to once show their heels to the invaders, a tie score, which lasted less than half an inning, being the nearest approach McGraw's men made to jumping into the lead. Then some timely hitting in the eighth inning of the second session turned what looked like a double trimming into an even break. The Reds took the curtain raiser, 4 to 2, and the Giants captured the nightcap number by a similar score.

The Giants never appeared dangerous in the opening clash. The Reds got busy in the early chapters, and succeeded in straightening Wiltse's slants until four pairs of pedals had ambled across the dish. All the time the Giants were having their troubles getting half way around the paths. Gaspar had everything that a pitcher is supposed to have, and bingles by McGraw's men were so well separated that for eight innings only one Giant reached third base and only two got as far as the midway. In the ninth the storm broke after one Giant had been laid away. Tommy Downey started the trouble by booting a grounder, and Gaspar began to shown signs of nervousness. He walked Bridwell, and Devlin followed with a single over second base, which choked the corners. Merkle's drive to Hans Lobert forced Murray at the plate, but Chief Meyers came across with a double along the left-field line, and two runners registered. With second and third bases occupied and only a hit needed to tie the score, Crandall was sent in to bat for Hendricks, and he fanned.

McGraw used three pitchers against the Reds. Wiltse opened the engagement, but he failed to puzzle, and the derrick got him after four frames. A wallop by Larry McLean, high and far away to the bleacher seats in left field, was the final wallop of five which the Reds turned in in three successive innings, all figuring in the run getting. For eight innings it seemed that Larry's clout was not needed, but it later turned out to be the winning punch. Ames succeeded Wiltse, and he was retired in the eighth inning to allow Becker to bat. Beals did a Casey stunt, and "beefed" so long and so loud on the third strike that Umpire Johnstone chased him to the clubhouse. Hendricks got by without trouble in the Reds' half of the ninth inning, and was then taken out to allow Crandall to fan. It was a bad day for pitchers and pinch hitters.

The Reds broke into prominence on the scoreboard in the second inning. With one down, Paskert drew a pass, and ambled down to second base when Merkle muffed a throw from Wiltse to catch him napping. After McLean's out had chased him along to third, Micky Corcoran, the ex-Buffalo second sacker, planted a double near the right-field foul line, and Paskert trotted home. Gaspar opened the next inning with a double to right field, and advanced a base on Bescher's infield hit. He was thrown out getting back to third base on Lobert's drive to Wiltse. Bescher died stealing, and Hoblitzel doubled along the left-field line, scoring Lobert. Paskert opened the fourth inning with a single past Bridwell, and finished the circuit ahead of McLean when Larry hit into the bleachers. Only one Red reached third base in the last five innings.

The Giants did nothing until the ninth inning. An error, a pass, and Devlin's hit filled the bases. Merkle forced Murray at the plate and Meyers scored two runs with a double to left field. Wiltse only a hit needed to tie the score Gaspar struck out Crandall, and it was all over.

In the second game Fromme almost strained himself trying to give the verdict to the Giants, but for seven innings they refused to accept any favors. The Red flinger handed out nine passes in the first seven innings, and the Harlem residents collected one run—a homer by Drucke into the left-field bleachers. In the first inning he filled the bases on passes after one Giant had been retired, and then got away without allowing a run. He handed out one or more gifts in every inning except the second, only to tighten up when the Giants threatened to score. He was as stingy with his hits as he was generous with his passes, and only three safe dents were made in his delivery up to the fatal eighth, when as many more were bunched and a defeat registered against him. Drucke pitched about the same kind of ball, handing out a half dozen walks and keeping the same number of hits widely sacttered.

Chief Meyers and Tommy Downey were excused before the second session was completed, after getting their fingers in the paths of fast traveling balls. Downey departed in the third, as the result of a throw from Clarke to catch Devore stealing. Meyers got in the way of a foul tip from Corcoran's bat in the fourth. Clarke Griffith left by request in the eighth inning for making too much noise on the coaching line. Umpire Johnstone delivered the message.

The Reds got busy in the first inning. With one down, Lobert singled to centre field and stole second base. He reached third while Bridwell was fumbling Hoblitzel's grounder, and scored on Mitchel's sacrifice fly to Snodgrass. Hoblitzel opened the sixth with a pass, and reached second base on Mitchell's infield hit. Paskert sacrificed both men up a base and Drucke uncorked a wild pitch which sent Hoblitzel in and put Mitchell on third. After Clarke had filed to Bridwell, Corcoran walked, and tried to work a double steal with Mitchell. Corcoran was run down between the bases and retired before Mitchell could score. In the ninth the Reds threatened to catch up with the Giants, who had gained a two-run lead in the eighth. Corcoran drew a pass, and Miller, batting for McMillan, singled. Two forceouts and a fly to Murray ended the rally.

After trailing from the first inning, the Giants tied the score in the fifth on Drucke's home run to the left-field stands. The Reds forged ahead again in the sixth, and held the lead until the eighth, when the Giants won out. Bridwell walked, and went around to third base on Devlin's wallop to right field for two bases. Merkle chased the pair home with a double along the left-field line. Schlei's sacrifice put Merkle on third, and he scored on Drucke's long fly to Paskert.

Superbas Finish Strong and Win.

In a whirlwind finish Brooklyn made it three straight from Pittsburg yesterday at Washington Park. Up to the ninth innnig the Superbas had made only one hit off Camnitz. Then three hits and a muff by Campbell, with Coulson's timely single, tied the score. In the tenth inning a pass, Stark's sacrifice, and singles by Bergen and Erwin, won the game. The score:

CLYMER TO MANAGE YANKS?

Farrell Said to be Striving to Engage Him to Pilot the Yankees.

Special to The New York Times.

WILKESBARRE, Penn., Sept. 27.—Manager William J. Clymer of the Wilkesbarre team of the New York State League may become manager of the New York Americans next season for owner Frank Farrell. It is understood here that a proposition has been made to him by Farrell, and that they will meet in New York in a few days to talk it over. Farrell called Clymer on the telephone last night and they had a long talk. Clymer refuses to say what it was about and will neither affirm nor deny the report that he has been offered the management of the Yankees. He says he is in such a position now that he cannot make a statement. He admitted, however, that he is to go to New York in a few days and is to see Farrell on business.

It is learned here that Chase is to remain as manager of the team only for the remainder of this season, and that Farrell is looking around for an experienced man to take charge next season. Clymer has been most successful as a manager of baseball teams. He had charge of the Columbus team of the American Association for five seasons, and in three of the seasons he won the pennant and also made the team financially successful. This year he had charge of the Wilkesbarre team, of which he is part owner, and besides winning a pennant the team cleared $15,000 for its owners. It is believed that if the salary is satisfactory he would accept an offer to manage the New York Americans.

EARLY START FOR GAMES.

World's Series Probably Will Begin on Oct. 15 or Earlier.

CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—C. W. Murphy, President of the Chicago Nationals, has agreed to advance the game with St. Louis set for Oct. 15 one day, thus closing the National League season Oct. 14.

"The National League schedule was adopted last February and ends on Saturday, Oct. 15," said Murphy, "and we would be willing to move up the last scheduled game to Oct. 14—an open date—so that the post-season series might start that much sooner, provided we were in those games."

At the American League headquarters President B. B. Johnson reiterated his ultimatum that the championships must be set in motion not later than Oct. 13. That something definite as regards the dates will be known soon is the news passed around by Johnson. August Herrmann, Chairman of the National Commission, wired from Lynchburg, Va., to the effect that a meeting of the baseball tribunal would probably be held here Monday, at which time the problem would come up for final decision.

"Hereafter the commission will see that the date difficulties are eliminated," said President Johnson. "The world's series, the biggest event in baseball, should start Oct. 5, and the American League will insist on this point. Our circuit schedule will be so arranged that next season the final games will be played not later than Oct. 3. The National League should contribute its share to the welfare of organized baseball by making a like arrangement."

Orioles Sign New Pitcher.

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 27.—Ashley Pope, a right-handed pitcher who worked in the South Atlantic League this season, has been signed by the Baltimore Club of the Eastern League. Pope had been drafted by the New York National League team, but was let go because Manager McGraw found he had gone above the limit permitted in the matter of players.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 27.—The Tigers never had a look in in to-day's game, the New Yorks winning—10 to 2. In the early stages Pitcher Willett was both wild and ineffective and the Yanks took full advantage of it. Later there were few hits, but the profusion of passes continued. They were backed up by a lot of errors. One hit and two runs was the record of three different innings and no hit and one run that of another. New York today climbed back into second place.

Ford's work was directly opposite in character. Not a pass did he contribute and in no round did he allow two hits. But for errors it would have been all ciphers for the Tigers. It was a cold, raw day, however, and all errors find therein some excuse.

Three bits of fielding stand out in the memories of the 1,812 spectators who shivered through the game. Two of them punctuated the sixth inning. Tiger half. O'Leary opened by chopping a brisk grounder to Knight, who threw high over Manager Chase's head. But that didn't bother Hal. He just aeroplaned after it, clawed the ball with his bare hand, and came down on the sack one inch ahead of O'Leary. Great applause.

Cobb died painlessly, but Crawford banged a grounder to right field, with which Gardner ran a desperate race, finally spearing the ball with one hand and getting his man. This young man Gardner closed the proceedings of the eighth inning in exactly the same way, the same Tige being the victim.

Daniels, Chase, and Knight manufactured the first two runs of the Yankee total, with the able assistance of Hemphill's sacrifice. Daniels walked and Chase doubled down the foul line. Knight immediately singled over second and Chase followed Daniels's tracks to the pate.

A pass started the tally of the third run also. Cree got it and Austin died a martyr. Mitchell slammed one too hot for Willett to hold, the ball going through to O'Leary too late for a play, Cree scoring.

In the third and fourth innings Willett steadied some, only one Yankee getting on base. Cree doubled to left in the fourth inning, took third base on an out, and died trying to steal home while Mitchell was batting.

Extreme liberality on the part of the Tigers, especially Willett, put Ford in a soft spot in the fifth inning. With one down, Bush foozled Ford's grounder. Willett wild pitched him to second, Daniels doubled past Moriarty, scoring Ford, and Willett wild-pitched Daniels to third base and to the plate.

Knight opened the sixth inning with a stroll, then stole second base. About the time he started Willett slyly pegged to first base to catch him napping. Jones hurled to second; that is, he intended to, but the ball went to the suburbs and Knight scampered on. Presently Cree hit to Moriarty, who threw home, but Schmidt dropped the ball.

Two more runs marked the seventh inning. This was when young Mr. Peasley, a new left-hander, made his début. He walked Ford and Daniels. Hemphill pop fouled and Ford died trying to snag third. Chase lifted to Tom Jones and it looked all over, but Tom muffed and Daniels scored. Knight doubled to left, scoring Chase. Gardner grounded out.

A single and a walk put Cree and Austin on bases in the eighth. Mitchell's out advanced them. Ford walked, filling the bases. Then came a play that is not staged every day. Two Yanks tallied on a force out at second base. Daniels hit to Bush, who tossed to O'Leary. Cree and Austin were legging it for home like rabbits. O'Leary turned to try for a double play, but was too late. He failed to see what Austin was pulling off until the third sacker was within a yard of the goal.

A hurried glance is all that is necessary to size up the total of the Tiger offensive work. In the fourth with two out Crawford survived on Gardner's error, advancing two stations on Moriarty's single and tallied on Mitchell's bad throw to catch Moriarty stealing. Davy Jones opened the eighth with a single, advanced when Daniels let it get by, took third on Chase's bad handling of the return to the diamond, and after being trapped between third and home, tallied when Mitchell hit him on the shoulder in the attempted running down, the ball bounding to the field again.

CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—Washington and Chicago divided a double-header to-day, Washington losing the first, 0 to 2, and taking the second game, 3 to 2. Both Scott and Gray were miserly in the first game, allowing two hits each, but Gray was responsible for both of the Chicago runs, making two wild pitches. Olmstead was driven to cover in the second game, Washington scoring all three runs in the first two innings. The scores:

NEW YORK, WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 28, 1910.

MR. GAYNOR'S WITHDRAWAL.

Mayor GAYNOR feared that the wording of his letter to Chairman DIX might be misinterpreted. To leave no doubt about his definite purpose to refuse the Democratic nomination for Governor if offered to him, the Mayor has authorized Mr. JAMES CREELMAN to publish his supplemental letter stating that he would not and could not "abandon to their fate the splendid men whom I have appointed to office," that he "could not abandon the people of the City of New York after so short a service," and "would decline to accept" the nomination.

That is perfectly clear and explicit. Mr. GAYNOR'S decision is wise, first, because of the very doubtful and precarious state of his health, which might not bear the heavy burdens of the campaign. Secondly, the conviction that has crystallized in his own mind that he is needed in the Mayor's chair is shared by many who have the interests of this city at heart.

The Democracy of the State is rich in men fit for the office of Governor, men who can lead it victoriously. Mr. HAVENS or Mr. OSBORNE would compare most favorably with any candidate which the Republican Convention at Saratoga can nominate. Mr. EDWARD M. SHEPARD, because of his lofty standards of public service and statesmanlike qualities, would make one of those Governors whose administrations are patterns to all the States.

MR. ROOSEVELT'S CONVENTION.

The proceedings of the Republican Convention at Saratoga yesterday consisted of a scene of disorder and tumult followed by a massacre. The immediate victim of the massacre was the Vice President of the United States. Mr. SHERMAN is a part of the National Administration. Nominated by the Convention that nominated Mr. TAFT, presented to the country in the campaign speeches as a noble specimen of American manhood and New York Republicanism, indorsed and supported by the very man who yesterday overthrew him, his natural, proper, and modest ambition to be Temporary Chairman of the Convention of his party was yesterday baffled and blasted by the Republicans of his own State as ruthlessly as though he had been some uncouth and impudent pretender to undeserved honor. Cruelest of all, he saw the head of the Administration of which he is a minor part not only refuse to give him any help, but actually give aid and comfort to his and its enemies.

The other victims of the massacre were the heads of the Republican organization in this State. Of these gentlemen we learn that they are the opponents of "cleanliness and honesty in public life," that they embody and represent "that peculiar baseness in political management which has made the very word politician obnoxious to the people." These are the words of an expert witness, THEODORE ROOSEVELT, who during his political career in this State was pretty intimately associated with these men and with their predecessors, hardened bosses who were quite as deeply implicated as they in that "peculiar baseness in political management" which the former beneficiary of their political activities so sternly rebuked yesterday.

Thus Mr. ROOSEVELT has won the first important battle preliminary to his campaign for the Presidency of 1912. Hosts of good citizens hoped he would lose the battle. They felt that defeat in his own State would make an end of him, or, at least, greatly diminish the danger that he will again become a candidate for the Presidency. It is just as well that he has won the victory. Defeat does not make an end of such a man. Defeat did not make an end of Mr. BRYAN, whom Mr. ROOSEVELT so much resembles, and surpasses. Indeed, he would have carried on his campaign with greater freedom and not with less pertinacity had the bosses repulsed his assault yesterday. In many ways he would have been strengthened. He would have had all the time for his battle cry that phrase about the "peculiar baseness" of these leaders. He would have made the most of it.

Now he shoulders the responsibility of the Republican campaign in this State. Defeat at Saratoga he could have laid to the bosses. Defeat at the polls or on Election Day will be the work of the people, and it will not merely be the defeat of the candidate, but the defeat of ROOSEVELT and Rooseveltism in the State of New York. The Democrats at Rochester, entering upon their work with a full knowledge of the ravages of Mr. ROOSEVELT within and upon his party, alive to the greatness of their opportunity, will, if they are wisely guided, make that defeat certain.

NO FEDERAL CONSERVATION.

In the State of Maine there can be no Federal conservation of natural resources Mr. GIFFORD PINCHOT and Mr. THEODORE ROOSEVELT never speak in behalf of Maine's vast forests.

There can be no Federal conservation in the State of Connecticut.

There can be no Federal conservation in the State of Delaware.

There can be no Federal conservation in the State of Georgia.

There can be no Federal conservation in the State of Illinois.

There can be no Federal conservation in the State of Indiana.

There can be no Federal conservation in the State of Iowa.

There can be no Federal conservation in the State of Kentucky.

There can be no Federal conservation in the State of Maryland.

There can be no Federal conservation in the State of Massachusetts.

There can be no Federal conservation in the State of New Hampshire.

There can be no Federal conservation in the State of New Jersey.

There can be no Federal conservation in the State of New York.

There can be no Federal conservation in the State of Ohio.

There can be no Federal conservation in the State of Pennsylvania.

There can be no Federal conservation in the State of Rhode Island.

There can be no Federal conservation in the State of South Carolina.

There can be no Federal conservation in the State of Tennessee.

There can be no Federal conservation in the State of Texas.

There can be no Federal conservation in the State of Vermont.

There can be no Federal conservation in the States of Virginia and West Virginia.

In all these twenty-two States there is, admittedly, no Federal domain. But we have more States than these to consider. In Alabama, Kansas, Louisiana, Michigan, Mississippi, Missouri, Oklahoma, and Wisconsin the combined areas of public lands would not cover thirty miles square. And in the States of Arkansas, Florida, Minnesota, Nebraska, North Dakota, and South Dakota the aggregate of public lands is less than 150 miles square.

In not less than thirty-six States, then, the vast natural resources of this country are indisputably beyond the ownership and influence of the Government at Washington. In the remaining States of the forty-six, according to able Constitutional lawyers like Senator BORAH of Idaho, the Federal possessions are under the protective sovereignty of the States, and are unprotected by the Nation. According to Mr. PINCHOT himself, four-fifths of the forests of the country are in private ownership, but subject to the conserving powers of the States.

Why this insincere cry for Federal conservation? Why do not Mr. PINCHOT and Mr. ROOSEVELT and Mr. GARFIELD urge the advantages of conservation by concerted State action through the House of Governors?

THE PLIGHT OF THE SENSIBLE REPUBLICAN.

The sensible Republican must regard the performances at Saratoga with mingled feelings. He is naturally glad that the old system of the bosses who have been in control while the actual corruption now exposed has been developing is in a way to be broken up for the time being, and in the task he must recognize the obvious effectiveness of Mr. ROOSEVELT'S labors. It is good to see bosses beaten in their attempts to retain the influence they have exercised so long and with such wretched results.

At the same time no self-respecting member of the Republican Party can fail to be humiliated by the methods employed to accomplish this, the horde of Federal office holders summoned to the convention, the scheming and bargaining, in a word, the tactics of the bosses turned against themselves. There is much the appearance of a fight not to suppress bossism but to replace one set of bosses by another.

There are many Republicans who are glad enough to have Mr. ROOSEVELT contending against BARNES and WOODRUFF, who do not conceal from themselves the possibility that the result may be to strengthen him in his future plans, and who do not like the prospect. But this feeling is found in the convention itself, and it is sufficient to prevent the triumph of Mr. ROOSEVELT constituting an indorsement of his policies, and still less of his ambitions. That is the undertone of sentiment throughout the State, as reported by independent observers. Possibly it is some assuagement to the disagreeable sensations the situation arouses in the average sensible Republican.

RAPID TRANSIT RELIEF.

There are differences between the present and previous proposals to extend the routes of the Manhattan elevated lines, and to put the Forty-second Street tunnel into operation, but it is hardly worth while to examine them too critically. The present agreement is more important than past disagreements, and whatever the differences of opinion regarding the present proposal it will hardly be denied that it promises the greatest and promptest measure of relief which is practical. The extension of the Third Avenue elevated will do more than enlarge its facilities for its present passengers. It will divert to the elevated lines West Farms passengers, and will thus relieve the Broadway and Lenox Avenue divisions of the Subway. The extension of the Second Avenue elevated across the Queensboro Bridge will give a 5-cent fare from Long Island City plaza throughout the central borough to all riders from Queens. The operation of the Steinway tunnel will give a like privilege from another section of Queens Borough. The realization of these benefits need be a matter merely of months. There are no questions of organization or finance such as make trouble for new routes. All these routes are in existence, and will work smoothly from the day of completion by the company which is an old hand at the business.

This is a surprising installment of rapid transit to be secured by the expenditure of some thirty millions of dollars, and that not city money except in too small a part to be considered. The city will advance the money necessary to make the physical connection between the Steinway tunnel and the Manhattan Subway, but this will be collected and amortized from the fares paid by those who will avail themselves of these accommodations. The city takes the title to the tunnel, the builders get the franchise for operation, and the riders pay the sums necessary ultimately to make the city owner free and clear in the manner so familiar in the case of the present Subway. There is nothing said about a perpetual franchise for the elevated road extensions, nor about what is paid for the new privileges. Apparently the company is willing to build the elevated extensions in reliance that there can be no practical distinction between the old and the new structures, one remaining as long as the other. Some months ago it was willing to pay 2 per cent. of the enlarged receipts from stations served by the new construction. It is more important that the city should get what the company proposes to give than that it should collect a price for the franchise. The real consideration will be the accommodation to the citizens, and the increase in tax values which uniformly results from transit improvements.

It is easy to suggest criticisms in detail. The concessions to the elevated roads will disappoint those who had hoped that the next development in connection with those roads would be their replacement by subways. This hope will remain as an aspiration, and there will be some regret that the additional construction in places now free from this disfigurement could not be made to purchase the removal of some lengths which are most objectionable in Manhattan Borough. The Sixth Avenue section above Thirty-second Street, for example, disfigures a park street, is of no especial service to the elevated, and might be joined to the Ninth Avenue line by short construction in the neighborhood of the Pennsylvania Station instead of through Fifty-third Street, to advantage to all concerned. Former plans have contemplated the extension of the Steinway tunnel across Forty-second Street, but nothing is now said about it. And all the terminals in the outer boroughs are to be dead ends, such as have proved so objectionable in the cases of the bridges, thus preserving the double-fare system to which the Brooklyn extension of the Subway gave a first blow which fare payers would like to see repeated.

These are objections in detail, not in principle. There is surprisingly little that is new in principle, and nothing that is new in detail. When the promise is realized in the near future it will be wondered that the realization was so long deferred, and that so much difficulty was made about a matter really so simple and natural of solution.

HAMLIN OF MASSACHUSETTS.

The withdrawal of Mayor FITZGERALD of Boston from candidacy for the Democratic Gubernatorial nomination in Massachusetts makes it possible for that State to nominate and elect as its next Governor CHARLES SUMNER HAMLIN.

Mr. HAMLIN, by his liberal influence in State and National politics, by his services as Assistant Secretary of the Federal Treasury and as executor of important commissions to foreign Governments, and by his eminence as a lawyer, belongs of right in that singular company of State Governors which the Democracy is this year asking the people to elect. The deadlock between the candidacies of VAHEY and FOSS in Massachusetts, now that FITZGERALD has quit the field, makes the nomination of HAMLIN seem most feasible. Democratic Maine has elected PLAISTED Governor. New Jersey has nominated WOODROW WILSON. Connecticut's splendid candidate is Judge BALDWIN. In this State the Democracy has men like SHEPARD, OSBORNE, and HAVENS. We trust that the Democratic leaders of Massachusetts will think not only of the present campaign but of 1912 when they consider the name of CHARLES S. HAMLIN.

THE POLICE?

An interrogation mark is really the appropriate symbol for the Police Department of this great city. It is so now, after the honest and industrious administration of Mayor GAYNOR and the Board of Estimate has been actively at work for three-quarters of the year. With the exception of the Bureau of Supplies, on which the light has been turned, it is shrouded in mystery about as impenetrable as that of previous years.

On Sunday last we printed an article based on the studies of the Bureau of Municipal Research, in which the causes of this puzzling phenomenon were analyzed and clearly and suggestively described. The primary fact is that the work of the police—the prevention, detection, and reduction of crime—is, on the one hand, interlaced with that of a half dozen public agencies, and, on the other, so far as the force itself is concerned, is subject to no adequate, systematic, and business-like inspection and supervision. A striking proof of this state of things is that in the last ten years there have been men of exceptional ability, undoubted honesty, and unusual force of character at the head of the police as Commissioners, who have devoted all their energies to its study and reform, and have been practically foiled in their purpose. Not only this, but they have been compelled to admit that there were important elements in the police situation which they could not precisely define and the source of which they could not trace. These constitute what is vaguely known as "the system," and with the system they have been unable to contend.

One fact is acknowledged which underlies the evils connected with the police. It is that there are certain forms of lawbreaking which are not merely criminal, not sporadic attempts at crime, like burglary or the various kinds of robbery, but are in the nature of continuous businesses. Of these gambling and the keeping of houses of prostitution are the most prominent, though there are minor occupations of much the same character. In these there are engaged a considerable body of men, with substantial capital, who reap large profits from their illicit trades. They form what may be regarded as the standing army of the lawless. To some extent they are organized, but in the main they operate individually, and make up in daring, in persistence, and in unscrupulousness for the lack of united effort. They depend entirely on inefficiency or on corruption in the police, and this they seek and generally obtain through the agency of politicians. Naturally their business is secret as far as possible, and its dimensions can only be inferred from general indications. They constitute a permanent and continuing force for the demoralization of all forms of police work, direct and indirect.

The only possible way of dealing with the mischief thus caused is in the establishment and organization of an independent official branch of the public service devised with immediate reference to turning a full and constant light on all the proceedings and functions of the police, so that the Commissioner, the Mayor, the Board of Estimate, and, indirectly, the public, may know with reasonable accuracy what is going on from day to day. In the Commissioners of Accounts we have an agency that has done excellent service in connection with several branches of administration, and though the work in connection with the police would be necessarily more difficult and complex, it is not by any means impracticable to get it done. The main requirement is that it should be permanent and continuous and not accidental and intermittent. Until such an agency can be set at work it will be idle to hope for any thorough or lasting improvement.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Very Good Lions, Considering.

Perhaps it only illustrates within what narrow circles appreciation for real high art is still confined in this country, but a large majority of the people who stop in front of the new Public Library to look at the big plaster lions that have been placed on guard at its main entrance regard the beasts with an astonishment that soon turns into smiles obviously expressive of something quite different from either awe or admiration.

Just why this should be so is not easy to discover, for, as plaster lions go, these are of far above average merit. They do not suggest nearly as much as does the lion of St. Mark's the results a biologist would expect to get from crossing a dachshund with a Welsh rabbit, and if they do not look as much like real lions as does the lion of Lucerne or the one in the Bargello of Venice, that is nothing against them, since it was not fairly to be expected. Realism, it must be remembered, is of various kinds, and it would have been a grave artistic error if the designer of these lions had forgotten that it was his duty to make some lions that would stand without hitching, and also without alarming the gentle folk who in after years are to pass up those broad stairs to the quiet halls within or the capitalists—of proverbial timidity—who will ride up and down the avenue in front.

He has not forgotten and he has done his duty conscientiously and successfully. His lions differ in many respects from those that wander over African plains—or did until their recent extermination by a benefactor of his race who gets so much space this morning in other parts of the paper that he can not, or at least should not, complain if his name is not mentioned here. They are also different from menagerie lions. As library lions, however, they are all right. Their cast of countenance is distinctly reflective and intellectual, and if their faces show in combination melancholy and ennui, that is natural enough in the circumstances. Surely nobody would have them exhibit either the ferocity of some of their nearest relatives, the heraldic lions, or the levity which characterizes other members of that branch of the family.

If anybody should ask, as somebody may, "Why lions at all?" the question can be answered or the questioner silenced by asking, "Why not lions?"

Illusion Is Never Harmless.

Whenever a big storm comes at the time of the Autumnal equality of nights and days, everybody calls it the equinoctial gale—everybody, that is, except the seafaring and near-seafaring folk up on the New England coast, who usually refer to it as the line gale, which is reminiscent of astronomy and navigation. There are, indeed, innumerable witnesses who are willing to swear, and even to bet, that there is an equinoctial or line gale every year, and most of them have in mind the years when these tempests were particularly severe.

Curiously enough, though this belief is supposed by all who hold it to be founded on knowledge derived from observation and experience, it has no basis in either, and, as a matter of fact, there is not the slightest reason or excuse for thinking that storms and the equinox go together. What do go together with something of regularity are storms and the change from Summer to Fall. Then there is quite apt to be unsettled weather, with one or more periods marked by high winds, and it cannot be denied that Sept. 22 is as likely as any day not long before or after it to make trouble for the mariners. A good deal oftener than not, however, that day is as pleasant as any of its mates, and not infrequently, as this year, the whole indefinitely prolonged season described as equinoctial goes by without a single meteorological disturbance of any seriousness.

The belief in an equinoctial gale is, therefore, a mere superstition, and though it is one of the kind that passes as harmless, it does its share with other superstitions toward befogging the minds of those who entertain it and making them live in a world of illusion instead of reality. It is consequently to be condemned, or better, perhaps, ridiculed, whenever it makes its appearance. For to kindly toleration does superstition owe its survival more than to anything else, and if those who are free from it would only speak out when other people yield to its mysterious spell we would hear much less than we do of the assorted imbecilities that disgrace the day—of women who change their names, for instance, in order to "make the vibrations harmonious," and of others who deny the existence of disease. These are not mere innocent follies and eccentricities—they are degrading and demoralizing abandonments of reason, rather more than less harmful than the narcotic drugs to which other weak-minded persons resort for the same soothing and comforting effects, and from which they get them at much the same dreadful price.

Assuming Heavy Responsibility.

With the official confession, as stupidly as wickedly belated, that cholera is epidemic in Naples, comes the announcement, seemingly with intelligent promptness, that the disease has gained a foothold in Rome. The latter city is none too well prepared for keeping "sporadic" the cases of the victims who carry infection there, but at least the local authorities have not adopted the miserable policy of concealment, and there is room for reasonable hope that the Italian capital will not suffer severely.

It is entirely congruous with the reputation of Naples—the old, bad reputation which the Neapolitans have recently been claiming to be no longer deserved—that there the presence of cholera should have been denied for weeks after its arrival. This was in direct violation of the international agreement reached at the Paris conference, and it not only rendered inevitable the wide extension of the infection in Naples, which is now reported, but it endangered every country that sends its tourists to what is, after all, one of the most interesting towns in Europe, and from it receives most of the migrating millions that are swarming out of Italy.

Since there is as yet no international police to enforce international agreements, Naples will doubtless escape without other punishment than the heavy one which her futile secrecy has brought upon herself, but for her sins the Italian Government is in some measure responsible, and it can reasonably be expected at least to give the rest of the world convincing assurance that no other Italian city will be allowed to imitate the example of Naples.

Fortunately cholera is a hot-weather disease, and the Autumnal chills of Italy are probably keen enough soon to check its ravages—for this year. Next Summer—but next Summer is a good way off, and many things can happen before then. Even Naples may by that time have attained to the knowledge that no epidemic can be effectively fought while its existence is concealed and denied, and that, whatever injury "business" may suffer from prompt confession, it is vastly less in the end than that which comes from following the contrary course.

Record of the Dog.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

"J. F. O." has apparently gone to great pains to collect data as to the injuries inflicted by dogs in New York. Why didn't he also take the trouble to particularize as to the lives saved and protected by them? I shall endeavor to do that for him.

When the White House, at Clinton and Division Streets, was burned down, a dog gave an alarm and saved the lives of all the guests. It did this by dashing from room to room and arousing the sleepers.

Jack, a Newfoundland dog, in Jersey City, dragged its nine-year-old master, Timothy Hayden, out of the river when he fell in at the foot of Sixth Street, Jersey City, and thus saved his life.

Lucy, a dog once owned by Engine Company 53, in East 104th Street, wore a medal for the number of lives she had saved.

At Trenton, N. J., a sheep dog saved two ministers after a canoe in which they were riding had turned over.

Miss Margaret Kreutsman tried to leap from the roof of her home, at 209 East 100th Street. Her pet dog held her.

Who does not know that Spanish bloodhounds helped in the conquest of Mexico and Peru, and who does not know of the spaniel which saved the Dutch Republic by waking William the Silent during the night attack on the camp before Mons? Who does not know of the dog of Montargis that avenged its master's death upon his murderer?

Let Hercules himself do what he may,
The cat will mew and dog will have his day.

New York, Sept. 26, 1910. H. B.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I was very much interested in the letter in your paper to-day, "Record of the Dog," by "J. F. O.," inasmuch as I was bitten by a mongrel some time ago. I had some correspondence with Mayor Gaynor on the matter, and he coincided with me that some measures should be taken to rid the city of a lot of apparently homeless dogs. He advised me to communicate with the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, which I did, and said he would do the same, and see if something could not be done. It is high time that some strenuous method be adopted to rid us of this dangerous nuisance. O. W. H.

New York, Sept. 26, 1910.

Giving Up the Straw Hat.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have lived among seven different nations, and nowhere at this time of year except the United States have I seen thousands of men actually suffering with heavy, uncomfortable, hot derby and felt hats. It seems to me that your unwritten law to discard the cool straw hat so promptly on Sept. 15, regardless of weather and personal comfort, is a most absurd idea. VERITAS.

New York, Sept. 26, 1910.

A Sure Thing.

Overheard in Wall Street: "Bet you $500 I can name the next Governor of New York."

"What, against the field?"

"Yes."

"You're on!"

"All right; it's Horace White—where's the money?"

THE REPUBLICAN UNREST.

Partly Due to the Tariff, but More to Partly Exposed Corruption.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In introducing himself to the people, Mr. Woodrow Wilson says the discontent and unrest now prevailing in the Republican Party, and generally, grows out of the tariff. Granted that it is a prolific source of discontent, it is not all.

The widespread corruptions that have prevailed, some of which have been partially exposed, have caused a feeling of distrust and disgust which cannot be repressed longer. This is not confined to one party; it extends to both. The most marked examples, being here at our very doors, should require from Mr. Wilson, and others, the most marked attention, even if not in his particular bailiwick.

The Republicans seem to be very particular about handling the matter and about exposing and correcting the evil, the natural inference being that they fear to have the truth known, for fear that some of their associates may be so involved and thus discredit may be brought on all.

This repression is a great mistake. A thorough and complete exposure and correction cannot be made too speedily.

In announcing that such a course will be pursued as far as in him lies, Mr. Wilson will do a public service and strengthen himself in the good opinions of his fellow-citizens. The treatment of this subject by the Republicans of New York should furnish him a fine text for an exhibit to the Democrats of New Jersey.

New York, Sept. 26, 1910. E. T. W.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Eugene V. Debs says that Mr. Roosevelt is "a political mountebank, an arch hypocrite, who never had a generous impulse or an unselfish thought." THE TIMES and Mr. Debs seem to be of one mind on the subject.

Yet in all his speeches Mr. Roosevelt has preached civic righteousness, honesty, and the square deal. He has denounced equally mob violence and political and business corruption, and has pleaded for a sufficiently strong government to adequately deal with both. He has denounced the crook who is poor as he has denounced the crook who is rich, and corruption in labor unions as in wealthy corporations.

Are his proposals for regulation different from those of Mr. Woodrow Wilson, who says (I am quoting from THE TIMES of Sept. 19:)

> We have come to a new era. We've got to reconstruct a new economic society, and in doing this will have to indirectly govern the political methods. * * * We must study our present laws of trade, and this means there will arise new laws of procedure in the government of corporations of our land. A PERSISTENT READER.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I read and reread your "Who Owns the Railroads" editorial article in this morning's issue and believe that an article so expressive and pertinent would prove invaluable as a campaign document. If so used by the Democrats it will undoubtedly have great weight.

As a Republican of many years' standing I am unable to give adequate expression to the disgust I feel toward Mr. Roosevelt for the dictatorial position he has assumed since his return from the "jungles." His admirers proclaim that he is the "fearless, the honest one." Fearless? Well, yes; fearless in bringing misery, poverty, and distress to millions of the people of this great country, whose savings are being wiped out by his villainous attacks upon vested capital.

For the first time in my life I shall vote the Democratic ticket from stem to stern. There are others, Mr. Editor, who will be "pall-bearers" to the Republican obsequies. We await that pleasure in all patience.

AN OLD REPUBLICAN.

Justice Gerard for Governor.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Realizing the bright outlook for a successful Democratic campaign in this State, with the far-reaching effect of such a victory, it behooves the politicians to put forward their very best effort.

The quality of leadership must be such as not alone to inspire the masses with confidence, but one which will unite the party to the fullest extent.

A man who fulfills these qualities is Justice James W. Gerard.

His broadmindedness, yet of the greatest caution and method, integrity and trustworthiness, his legal ability, make him an ideal candidate for Governor.

Should public office be bestowed as a reward for public service? Then no man more than he merits this reward. Is public office a public trust? Then in no better hands can this great trust, in the gift of the people, be lodged.

ELLSWORTH LOFTUS.

A Tariff Fallacy.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The fact that a tariff on potatoes does not cause the price of potatoes to advance leads Mr. Payne to the general conclusion that a tariff does not raise prices. A tariff on imported goods necessarily raises prices, provided, of course, that they are goods in the production of which the foreigner has a relative economic advantage. Unless there is a demand for the imported article the tariff is without effect. A tariff on rotten apples, or tuberculosis germs, or mad dogs would hardly be expected to raise the prices of those goods.

WILBUR LA ROE, Jr.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May I answer Mrs. Heath's objection to the use of the slogan, "Taxation without representation is tyranny"?

All human principles are generalizations and only in their application do they assume definite practical form. Our Revolution was fought to establish a principle which was not carried out in the Government established by our forefathers. However, they gave to the world this grand old slogan, which we all know in our hearts to be a true ideal, and if we only shout it long enough and loud enough it may in time be realized. Even thus do the woman suffragists serve society by holding aloft this ideal of human justice.

That property is taxed rather than the individual matters little, since to separate them is often impossible. As Benjamin Franklin said:

> A man with a mule votes. The mule dies and he being without property loses his vote. Then who voted, the man or the mule?"

So when a poor woman finds the food taxed out of her stomach and the clothes taxed off her back and the blankets taxed off her bed it is small comfort to her to be told that taxes are paid to protect property. She is taxed not only to protect property but to create it for others, notably the Sugar Trust. She as well as the thousands who are always on the ragged edge of subsistence may be literally taxed off the face of the earth and the sole remedy lies in voting for men who will remove the iniquities of the tariff schedule.

Only when public welfare requires must the rights of the individual give away. This principle underlies the disfranchisement of minors, criminals, the insane, and aliens. But it has never been made clear why it was necessary to the best interests of the State that half the adult citizens, because women, should be deprived of the protection to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness that lies only in the free exercise of the elective franchise.

OCTOBERESQUE.

Ho, bring the brown October ale
And fill a foaming beaker!
(That "beaker" seemeth somewhat stale,
Yet "dipper" soundeth weaker.)

Now hands to cup, come, stand ye up,
Make ring the oaken rafter!
(In thus inciting you to sup
'T is Scott I model after.)

Quaff every Jack and toast his Jill,
Till not a man be sober!
(I'm strictly Prohibition, still,
One has to rhyme "October".)

8,000 MORE POSTS UNDER CIVIL SERVICE

Taft to Order That Many Assistant Postmasterships Out of Politics.

CHANGE DUE TO HITCHCOCK

President Also Sees His Cabinet and Entertains Prince Tsuun and Hears of a "President Taft" Cigar.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—President Taft to-day spent the busiest fifteen hours he has passed through in a long time. He decided definitely to issue an order to-morrow putting 8,000 Assistant Postmasters under the Civil Service rules. He discussed a revision of the Alaskan Government with Secretary Nagel and Attorney General Wickersham. With all the members of his Cabinet he made progress in the direction of departmental economies and discussed the pensioning of superannuated civil servants.

The vacancies on the Supreme bench were under brief consideration, though it can be stated now that no appointments will be made until December, and that Justice Hughes will take his seat as an Associate Justice, and not in the place of the late Chief Justice Fuller.

In addition to these matters the President first received and later entertained formally at dinner Tsai Tsuun, a Chinese Prince of the Imperial family. To-morrow the President will have the same mass of executive business to attend to, and he will vary the day by giving an audience to the Sultan of Sulu.

The order the President will issue to-morrow fixing the status of practically all Assistant Postmasters in money order Post Offices is considered the most important executive act of his career, with the possible exception of certain land withdrawals. It will mean a long step toward the removal of the Post Office Department from the field of politics, and the President and Postmaster General Hitchcock have decided to recommend legislation at the next session that will put all Postmasters, save those in the first-class Post Offices, under the civil service.

The order has been decided on the advice of the Postmaster General, who is described by his friends as being delighted at escaping the responsibility for the political management of the Administration in order to devote himself to the direction of his own department from a strictly business point of view.

To-morrow's executive order will subject future applicants for Assistant Postmasterships to competitive examinations, and will protect the 8,000 men already holding those posts from their political enemies.

During the closing days of the fight on the railroad bill the President went far toward restoring the Administration's prestige by securing from the railroads the suspension of a wholesale increase on the rates. To-day he indicated his continued interest in that subject by holding a conference with Commissioner Lane of the Inter-State Commerce Commission. Mr. Lane reported progress in the pending rate hearings and said that the railroads' presentation of their side at Chicago would be completed this week, and would soon be resumed in New York.

Mr. Lane, who is recently home from Berne, amused the President by telling him that in his travels at Amsterdam he had seen in a shop window a "President Taft" cigar.

"It must have been a 'twofer,'" said the President, laughing heartily.

"No, Mr. President," the Commissioner assured him. "It cost me 10 cents and was first class."

The President's reception of Prince Tsai Tsuun was the most elaborate tendered any visting personage in a long time. The Prince this morning received formal calls from the Secretary of State and the Secretary of the Navy.

These calls he promptly returned, and after luncheon, escorted by a squadron of cavalry from Fort Myer, he called on the President at the White House. Later the whole party attended a drill of cavalry and artillery at Fort Myer, and returned in time for dinner at the White House.

Oshkosh, Wis., 33,062, an increase of 4,778, or 16.9 per cent. over 28,284 in 1900.

SOCIAL REFORM DISCUSSED.

Catholic Charities Conference Also Takes Up Dependent Family Problem.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—The first National Conference of Catholic Charities considered to-night the general question of social reform. Mgr. William J. White, Diocesan Director of Charities of Brooklyn, N. Y.; the Very Rev. Joseph McSorley, C. S. P., of New York, and Thomas Woodlock of New York were the principal speakers.

The day meeting of the conference was devoted to the consideration of the dependent family, and out of this grew a general discussion of the causes of poverty and of the most practical and efficacious means of raising the poor to a plane of independence. The speakers strongly urged on Catholics co-operation with all charitable organizations.

The Very Rev. Peter J. O'Callaghan, C. S. P., National President of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union of America, declared that most of the inmates of jails and penitentiaries were put there by the saloon.

"If the Catholic Church would do its full duty on the temperance question," he said, "poverty would be cut in half."

Bishop Collins of Jamaica, the Right Rev. Mgr. D. J. McMahon of New York, James A. McMurray of Dorchester, Mass.; Mrs. John M. McLamphy of Pittsburg, and Mrs. James MacMahon of Chicago also spoke.

During the afternoon the delegates made the trip down the Potomac to Mount Vernon.

HAVEMEYER HEIR GUARDIAN.

Mrs. Havemeyer's Suit Called Friendly One to Settle Estate.

Supreme Court Justice Whitney appointed Peter H. B. Frelinghuysen yesterday to be the guardian of Frederica Louisine Havemeyer, a defendant in a suit brought by her grandmother, Mrs. Louisine W. Havemeyer, widow of Henry O. Havemeyer. Mrs. Havemeyer is suing the executors and trustees of her husband's will, as well as his heirs and legatees, to compel the Havemeyer residence and other realty in Manhattan to be turned over to her. According to the lawyer who filed the application for the guardianship, which was applied for in the name of the girl's mother, Mrs. Adeline H. Frelinghuysen, the suit is a friendly one to settle the Havemeyer estate.

TIMES COMPETITION FOR JERSEY PUPILS

TO MARK 250TH ANNIVERSARY

Seven Articles by Daniel Van Winkle to Furnish Basis for Competition—Medals and Certificates to be Given.

Every man, woman, and child in Jersey City, and indeed in Hudson County, will be alive to the ceremonies with which the city is, all through the week beginning Sunday, Oct. 16 and ending Sunday, Oct. 23, to celebrate the two hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the founding of Bergen Village, now a part of Jersey City Heights.

THE NEW YORK TIMES hopes to stimulate them to an equally keen interest in the romantic beginnings of the Bergen Settlement by the award of 500 Tiffany silver medals and 500 engraved certificates of merit to the pupils in the public, parochial, and private schools of Jersey City who shall write the best compositions on the subject. An award to the school children of Jersey City is peculiarly appropriate, because the first schoolhouse in New Jersey was erected on the site now occupied by Public School 11 in Bergen Square, and in all the 250 years since Bergen was settled a school has stood on that ground.

In spite of the historical importance of Bergen as the first settlement on Jersey soil, one can learn the story only by digging deep into cobwebbed records of the past that are not within easy reach. THE NEW YORK TIMES has arranged with Daniel Van Winkle of Jersey City, who has made these early records his special study, to write for it a series of seven daily articles for the instruction of its readers. The first of these articles will appear in THE NEW YORK TIMES on Monday, Oct. 3, to be followed by the rest of the series on Oct. 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, and 9.

Times Articles Will Give Facts.

The compositions for which the awards are to be made are to be based entirely upon these articles of Mr. Van Winkle's. The pupil competitor must derive his inspiration as well as his information from them alone. Compositions based on other information or written without reading Mr. Van Winkle's series will not be considered in making the award.

Apart from their value to the competition, THE NEW YORK TIMES's articles will prove attractive and instructive to older persons interested in the history and affairs of the State. The everyday reader will find in them a tale of absorbing interest. Every true Jerseyman will be interested in Mr. Van Winkle's narration of the beginnings of civilization amid the primeval forests of the now great commonwealth.

Here are the topics of which Mr. Van Winkle's articles will treat:

First Article, Oct. 3—The causes that led to the voyage of Hudson. His discovery and the earliest settlements.

Second Article, Oct. 4—The Dutch West India Enterprises. The system of patronage. Michael Pauw settles at Pavonia.

Third Article, Oct. 5—Indian troubles. The settlers reach the site of old Bergen and open houses there.

Fourth Article, Oct. 6—The first church. The first schoolhouse. Habits and customs.

Fifth Article, Oct. 7—Occupancy by the English. Confirmation of laws and customs by Gov. Carteret.

Sixth Article, Oct. 8—Bergen in the Revolutionary Period.

Seventh Article, Oct. 9—Civic and Governmental changes. Later history of the settlement to the date of consolidation with Jersey City.

The school competition has the indorsement of the General Citizens' Committee named by Mayor Wittpenn to arrange for the week-long celebration of the anniversary in Jersey City, and of the Jersey City Board of Education, which at its meeting of Aug. 29 adopted these resolutions:

Whereas, THE NEW YORK TIMES desires to give recognition to the importance of the coming celebration of the founding of Bergen by publishing matter relating thereto, and to imbue the school children of the city with an intelligent interest in said celebration and requests permission to conduct a competition among the school children of the city; and,

Whereas, The General Committee appointed by Mayor Wittpenn having in charge the details of the celebration has, through its Executive Committee, approved the competition suggested by THE NEW YORK TIMES; has expressed the opinion that the contest suggested will stimulate interest in the celebration, and at the same time be of benefit to the children, and has urged the favorable consideration of the proposition of THE TIMES by this board;

Resolved, That the proposition of THE NEW YORK TIMES to hold competitions in composition on the subject of the early history of Bergen be and the same is hereby approved on the terms stated in the letter of the said NEW YORK TIMES.

Resolved, That the principals, teachers, and pupils be and they are hereby permitted to participate in said competition if they so desire, under the direction of the Superintendent of Schools, it being understood that neither the Board of Education nor the principals, nor the teachers, nor the pupils shall be subject to any expense on account thereof.

Method of Making Awards.

Here are the awards to be made by THE NEW YORK TIMES:

1. To the pupil in each class in the grammar departments of the public and parochial schools writing the best composition, a Tiffany silver medal.

2. To the pupil writing the second best composition, an engraved certificate of merit.

3. To the pupil in each grade of the Jersey City High School offering the best composition, a cash prize of $10.

4. To the pupil in each grade of the Jersey City High School offering the second best composition, a cash prize of $5.

5. To the pupil in each grammar grade of the private schools offering the best composition, a Tiffany silver medal.

6. To the pupil in each grammar grade of the private schools offering the second best composition, an engraved certificate of merit.

7. To the teacher in each grade of the grammar department in the public, parochial, and High Schools, whose pupils shall produce the five best compositions, a cash prize of $10.

THE NEW YORK TIMES has assumed that because of their youth the pupils in the primary grades will not be likely to compete, and the awards it proposes are, therefore, for those in the grammar departments and in the High School of the city among the public schools; in the grammar departments of the parochial schools, and in the higher grades of the private schools. In planning its system of awards THE NEW YORK TIMES has found it necessary to differentiate those for the High School compositions from those in the grammar departments. This is because the system of instruction in one differs from that in the others. The High School has no class division that answers to that in the grammar schools. The section method of tutoring which holds there makes the grade rather than the class the proper basis of award.

The teachers of the classes will be asked to give THE NEW YORK TIMES the aid of their skill and judgment by selecting the five best compositions their respective classes produce, and from these the final selections will be made by the judges. The names of the judges as well as the time for the closing of the competition will be announced in these columns in due season.

City School Supt. Snyder has lent valuable assistance in the matter, and the teachers in the schools are looking forward with keen interest to the rivalries the competition is sure to excite among their pupils ambitious to excel.

"MY MAN" CONTAINS PLENTY OF THRILLS

Forrest Halsey's Dramatization of "The Quality of Mercy" Is Slow, but Gripping.

CONSTRUCTION IS FAULTY

MY MAN. A Drama in Four Acts. By Forrest Halsey. Bijou Theatre.

Teddy	Addie Frank
Lizzie	Anna Wynne
Edith	Mary Carter
Jim Roberts	Robert Drouet
Mabel	Anne Sutherland
Jordan	Campbell Gollan
Bill	George Spelvin
Bert	John Beck

Forrest Halsey has reconstructed his own magazine story, "The Quality of Mercy," into "My Man," a slow-moving but occasionally very gripping drama that is extraordinary in its development. The piece has long passages of dialogue that frequently do not advance the action at all, and then there are scenes of rapid motion, verging to melodrama, which sometimes fall of their object by their very rapidity. Considerable credulity is demanded of the audience in some of the scenes, and there is a crudity of construction that might be remedied to advantage.

The audience last night rose to the "big scenes" very enthusiastically, and were very patient during the stretches of talk. It should be acknowledged that some of the talk, furnished by a worldly-wise young woman with a drunken father to look after, and by Mabel, a reformed crook, was well worth listening to. Some new slang was delivered by these two that was pertinent. One expression of the reformed crook should be recorded. It was this: "I am a good woman if God did make me look like Upper Broadway."

As to the story, it ran something like this after it got started. Edith, who makes a living at painting shells, lives in an east side tenement with her little boy, who has been reared in an orphan asylum. One of her callers is Mabel, from whom the audience learns that Edith has been in prison, has been paroled, has broken her parole, and has stolen her child from the asylum. Mabel, telling her that she is bound to be found out some day if she stays in the city, tries to persuade her to take one more "job" with Mabel's husband and "make" enough money for a "clean getaway." Edith will not.

However, when Jim, Edith's friend in the store where she paints shells, comes in and tells her she will lose her job if she will not paint shells in the show window as an advertisement, she is almost ready to consider Mabel's offer. Jim, however, gets ahead of Mabel by asking Edith to marry him, which she does before the second act.

In this act they are very happy in a Harlem flat with electric light and telephone. Jim has a lodge friend named Jordan who wants Jim to get him a manager's position in the store where Jim is employed. Mabel's husband is being haunted by the police for something he did not do. Mabel recognizes Jordan as a detective and deftly abstracts his credentials from his pocket. Mabel's husband is arrested, and Mabel steals $15 and pawns her rings to hire a lawyer. She also comes to the point of making Edith steal $400 that Jim is holding for the benevolent association. Then Jordan and Jim catch Edith trying to get at the cash box and Edith confesses to Jim what she has been, and Mabel tells Jim what he ought to think of Edith, and Jordan threatens to have her locked up if he does not get the $400, and Edith says she is willing so that Jim may not be a thief, and it is all rather confusing but very thrilling. In the last act they move to Long Island and are very much happier.

Anne Sutherland played Mabel, whom "God made to look like Upper Broadway." That she gave a characterization so nearly perfect as to be almost uncanny, and that her acting of the rôle was almost flawless, is about all that can be said of her work. Mary Carter did pretty well with the rôle of Edith, a part almost impossible to make seem sincere. Robert Drouet was the husband Jim, Anna Wynne impersonated the "little mother" with a drunken father, Addie Frank played the precocious "asylum child," Teddy, and Campbell Gollan had the rôle of the detective who turned out bad. George Spelvin as Bill, Mabel's husband, and John Beck, as a rural postman, did not appear until the last act.

Gatti-Casazza Sails for New York.

Mr. Gatti-Casazza, general manager of the Metropolitan Opera Company, sailed yesterday for New York on the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse. He is accompanied by Mme. Gatti-Casazza (Mme. Kyrle Bellew Acts in "The Scandal."

Special to The New York Times.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Sept. 27.—Kyrle Bellew appeared in the first American production of Bataillie's "The Scandal" at Jackson's Theatre to-night. The problem of "The Scandal" is a new one. A married woman thinks she has fallen in love with another man. She does not sin, except perhaps in thought. The question raised by "The Scandal" is whether she can adequately repent, and, repenting, does she deserve forgiveness? Mr. Bellew's company includes Gladys Hanson, Foletto Paget, Vincent Serrano, Frank Connor, and Ernest Stallard. Daniel Frohman attended the performance to-night.

Billie Burke's Ward to Make Debut.

Adele Cheridah, the eighteen-year-old ward of Billie Burke, will make her metropolitan stage début next Monday night as one of the bridesmaids in "The Girl in the Train." Miss Burke has withheld her consents to her ward's appearing on the stage during the three years they have been together, but this Fall she consented to let her start at the bottom and in a musical play.

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

A complete dress rehearsal of "Madame Troubadour" will be given at the Hackett Theatre next Friday afternoon. The piece, which is a light operetta, will come to the Lyric Theatre on Oct. 10.

Additional engagements for Eugene Walter's military drama, "Boots and Saddles," are Marshall Farnum, Guy Coombs, Austin Webb, and Charles Wilson.

Gertrude Elliott attended the rehearsals yesterday of the company that is to support her in her starring tour in "The Dawn of a To-Morrow." Miss Elliott arrived from Europe last Monday, and will begin her season in Albany next Friday night.

The Court of Appeals handed down a decision yesterday in the case of Frank L. Perley against Lee Shubert, sustaining the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court in dismissing the complaint and sustaining the position of the defendant. The case was brought some years ago, when Frank L. Perley sued Lee Shubert for $25,000 damages, claiming that Mr. Shubert had broken his contract to supply Perley with a route for his play.

Asks $25,000 for Wife Killed by Auto.

Supreme Court Justice Gavegan signed an order yesterday for taking the testimony of Dr. William M. Mills, formerly in charge of the accident ward of the Roosevelt Hospital in the $25,000 damage suit brought by Guilford Dudley of Topeka, Kan., against Harry Raymond of 2 East Forty-fifth Street, for the death of Mrs. Samantha V. Dudley, his wife, who, Dudley says, was killed by Raymond's automobile in Times Square on Dec. 2, 1908. Dr. Mills recognized Mrs. Dudley as an old friend, it is alleged, when she was brought to the hospital.

BATTLESHIP FLEET HERE.

Two Divisions Arrive and the Rest to Pass Up the River To-day.

All the battleships of the Atlantic Fleet will be in New York waters to-day, with the exception of the Dreadnought North Dakota of the First Division. The other ships of the First Division and all those in the Second Division reached this port yesterday. The second and third divisions are on the way, and will be at anchor some time during the day. The fleet comes for a visit of ten days, during which the bluejackets will get shore leave and a chance of a good time.

This afternoon there will be riding at anchor in the Hudson north of Seventy-second Street the largest number of American first-class battleships ever seen in these waters.

The battleships arriving yesterday were the Connecticut, flying the flag of Rear Admiral Seaton Schroeder, Commander-in-Chief of the fleet; the Dreadnoughts Delaware and South Carolina, and the Louisiana, Kansas, and New Hampshire. The Michigan, sister ship of the South Carolina, arrived Monday night. The warships that will arrive to-day are the Georgia, Rhode Island, Nebraska, Virginia, Minnesota, Vermont, Mississippi, and Idaho. The naval tender Yankton got in last night, and so did the hospital ship Solace, the repair cruiser Panther, and the supply ship Culgoa.

Every bluejacket in the fleet will be paid while the ships are here, and it was said yesterday that the amount of Government gold that may be turned loose in New York will probably total $500,000. The lowest amount paid to any sailor will be nearly $70. The officers, of course, get their pay at the same time.

The battleships come in from the stormiest target practice that the Atlantic Fleet has engaged in since its organization. The practice should have ended in time to have brought every battleship to New York eight days ago, bu the weather was such that it was impossible to control the floating targets, and it was not until the middle of last week that Admiral Schroeder was favored with weather that made target work practicable. When they did get the weather, it is said the gunners made some of the finest records at long distances in the history of the service.

The Dreadnought Delaware, which is now off Tompkinsville, but which will go to an anchorage in the Hudson this morning, is the first vessel of her type that has ever visited New York. With her sister, the North Dakota, she will form the nucleus of the first division of all big gunships, to form a part of the Atlantic Fleet. Two other dreadnoughts are the Arkansas and Wyoming, now nearing completion. Their main batteries are made up of ten twelve-inch guns.

Capt. Charles A. Gove, commanding the Delaware, said yesterday that his ship had driven up splendidly during the practice off the capes of the Chesapeake, and he was proud to say that since she went into commission six months ago only nine of her crew of nearly a thousand men had deserted. Capt. Gove said that the practice off the capes was interfered with by the "mad manners" of some merchant vessels that steamed into the target zone.

At the end of the visit to New York the ships will go to the various navy yards to be overhauled. On Nov. 1 the fleet reassembles in Hampton Roads, and as soon as possible thereafter will sail on a long cruise to the ports of the Mediterranean. They will be gone until early in January.

While in the Hudson the fleet will be anchored in division formation. The Dreadnought Delaware, the most interesting of the ships and by far the largest, can be distinguished by the fact that she has only two funnels and is the only one with five 12-inch turrets. The South Carolina also has two funnels, but only four 12-inch turrets. All the rest have three funnels and two 12-inch turrets.

DUNCAN C. FRASER DEAD.

Lieutenant Governor of Nova Scotia Was Reported "Lost" Here in 1908.

HALIFAX, N. S., Sept. 27.—Duncan Cameron Fraser, Lieutenant Governor of Nova Scotia, died to-day at his residence in Guysboro, aged 65 years. He had been ill for several months.

Lieut. Gov. Duncan Cameron Fraser of Nova Scotia entered into office four years ago, on the death of Lieut. Gov. A. G. Jones.

He paid a brief visit to this city two years ago and had some undesirable notoriety thrust upon him by well-meaning friends who became alarmed when he failed to keep a luncheon appointment, and who telephoned to the police that he was lost. The incident occurred in March, 1908, when the Lieutenant Governor came here to attend a dinner of the Canadian Club at the Hotel Astor. After spending the morning with Andrew Carnegie he went to luncheon at the Waldorf with a Dr. William Ferguson, a man whom he had never seen before. The two men had thought that it would be easy for them to recognize each other in the Waldorf dining room.

But Dr. Ferguson failed to identify the Lieutenant Governor. After waiting for an hour, he telephoned to the St. Andrew, where the Lieutenant Governor was stopping. As the Lieutenant Governor wasn't there, Dr. Ferguson telephoned to the police that the Canadian official was lost. All this time the Lieutenant Governor, put out himself at having found Dr. Ferguson, was seated at a table in the Waldorf close to where Dr. Cameron had been seated. Finally, he went down to the Café Martin to meet some other friends. When he went back to the St. Andrew to dress for the Canadian dinner, he was startled at hearing his name being shouted through the streets by the newsboys. Buying a paper, he found that the police and his friends were searching for him as "lost."

RUSSIAN DANCERS ARRIVE IN FURS

Mlle. Pavlowa, Mordkin, and Others Ready for Sleigh Ride —Expected Winter Weather.

BEGIN ROAD TOUR OCT. 16

Mme. Gadski Brings a Protege, Miss Riegelman, an American, Who Is to Sing with Chicago Opera Company.

When the Kaiser Wilhelm II. docked yesterday morning among the first of the passengers to alight was Mlle. Anna Pavlowa, the Russian dancer, enveloped to her ears in furs. Mikail Mordkin, her companion dancer, followed, and he also carried a heavy coat. Presently eight other dancers emerged, all evidently prepared to go on a sleigh ride.

"But it is hot here!" were Pavlowa's first words, uttered in the greatest astonishment. "When we left St. Petersburg it was almost freezing, and I had no idea that we would land in America in midsummer weather. Luckily I have some lighter gowns with me."

The steamer was packed, and the extra amount of baggage delayed everybody, so that it was almost two hours after the steamer had docked before the Pavlowa-Mordkin baggage commenced to come to light. In the meantime, however, the little dancer, having doffed her furs, walked up and down the pier flirting a cane which she had taken from one of the newspaper men. She wore a gray suit of the hobble-skirt model, purple orchids, and a blue turban.

Finally the trunks belonging to the dancers were extricated from the general luggage. Pavlowa alone brought over ten. Those containing her costumes were taken to the general stores for appraisal, but those containing her personal belongings, which she wanted at the hotel, had to be gone over at once. Walter H. Stiner, the customs broker of the Metropolitan Opera Company; G. P. Centanini, Mlle. Pavlowa's manager, and Ben Atwell, the press representative of the Russian dancers' tour, were all kept busy in an attempt to get matters straightened out. The little dancer herself sat on trunks and watched the Customs Inspectors take out American ladies' gowns and hats.

"It's a very strange custom," she said. "I wonder why they do it." And she asked all sorts of questions about the tariff.

When it came her turn her maid opened up the trunks. All went well until a wooden box, which happened to be locked, appeared. The Customs Inspector was sure this contained jewels, and insisted that it should be opened.

The maid searched until she found the key, opened the box, and brought out seven thirty spools of thread.

Mlle. Pavlowa and her party left the pier about 12 o'clock, four hours after landing. They rode in an open victoria to the Hotel Knickerbocker, where they will remain until they start on their tour Oct. 16. The dancers' season will open at the Metropolitan Opera House on the afternoon of Oct. 15. The same evening they will dance in Brooklyn.

They will be seen in Adam's ballet, "Giselle," and in an arrangement of Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Schehrrazade," to be called "The Arabian Nights," besides various divertissements. The costumes for the dances have all been made in Paris and Russia.

In answer to a question Mlle. Pavlowa said that she had been forced to pay an indemnity of $15,000 to the Imperial Opera in St. Petersburg for the privilege of dancing in America this season.

After the road tour the dancers will appear with the opera at the Metropolitan during December. They will return to the Metropolitan in March.

Mme. Gadski also arrived on the Kaiser Wilhelm II., together with her husband. Herr Tauscher's new daughter, Lotta Gadski-Tauscher, and a protégé, Miss Mabel Riegelman.

The protégé is an American girl, whom Mme. Gadski heard sing some five years ago, and whom she had study with her teacher in Germany. Miss Riegelman has been engaged to sing with the Chicago Opera Company, and she will appear there with Mme. Gadski in "The Marriage of Figaro."

Mme. Gadski said she would leave at once for Canada, where she begins a long concert tour. She will be heard in the larger cities of the North and the Northwest en route for the Pacific Coast. In December and January she will sing with the Chicago Opera Company, and she will not be heard at the Metropolitan until February.

Frederick Stock, the conductor of the Theodore Thomas Orchestra of Chicago, and William Beck, a baritone, heard last year at the Manhattan, who has been engaged to sing next season with the Chicago Opera Company, also arrived on this boat.

A Man's Teeth, an Auto Party's Clothing, and a Bookkeeper's Medal.

A reward is offered in THE TIMES's Lost Column this morning for a lower set of artificial teeth, inadvertently abandoned by the owner while riding in an Amsterdam Avenue car on Monday.

Yesterday a brief notice revealed a minor auto catastrophe. Two suitcases containing the occupants' apparel had been dropped from a car on the road between Boston and New Haven.

A medal conferred on Walter R. Whiteford "for excellence in bookkeeping" was also advertised yesterday as missing.

Capt. Francis J. Werneck.

The End of an Epoch

We are approaching the end of an epoch in which great fortunes have been made in realty investments. It is significant, however, that the end of this epoch is marked by a perfect blaze of opportunity. In a single word, Long Beach transcends all the opportunities of a decade.

It is the last roll call to the opportunists! It is the one great chance for a man to safely re-embark his fortunes. It is a vital opportunity.

Long Beach, already a flourishing ocean city, and endowed by Nature with a glorious surf, a perfect climate and far-flung miles of level beaches, is unquestionably destined to be America's first coast resort.

You will always be able to visit it—but you won't always be able to buy. Don't let opportunity eternally get away from you—Get after it.

The Opinion of Experts

If you have money to invest, you should focus your attention upon the situation now existing in the bond market. Prices of high-grade bonds are lower than they have been for a long time, notwithstanding that the value and earning power of the properties securing the bonds were never greater than at present. If, as is predicted by experts, lower interest rates are to prevail once the crops are moved, high-grade bonds purchased now are certain to prove profitable investments.

If you are especially interested in Railroad Bonds, write for our Circular No. 821. If you prefer high-grade Corporation Bonds yielding about 5%, write for Circular No. 823.

A PURCHASE

We advise investors not to delay in making purchases of bonds at current levels. Cheap money, business contraction and fear of dividend reductions will, we believe, cause a marked advance in securities of fixed income.

A special list of bonds we can recommend will be mailed to those interested.

Improvement

The bond market shows indications of broadening, prices of investment bonds are slightly higher, and bonds are becoming scarcer. However, many safe first mortgage bonds are still obtainable to yield from 5% to 7%.

For instance, we offer a First Mortgage Steam Railroad Bond to yield 5.20%. The road is bonded at $8,000 a mile, and net earnings for the year ended June 30, 1910, were about 3 times interest charges. The country served is fertile and productive, and the road's freight revenue is largely derived from the transportation of agricultural products.

MONEY MARKETS HARDENING

Advance Simultaneous with Rise in Discounts in London and on Continent—Demand Sterling Up 30 Points.

It is impossible to discover any interest in stock market movements which, like current ones, owe their origin altogether to the changing fancies of professional traders, and for that reason it is useless to deal with such a market as yesterday's save for purposes of record. Speculators bought stocks on Monday because the railroad employes naturally backed up the demands of their employers for higher rates, out of which still higher wages might in time come, and even more directly because of the stirring up of Reading on "melon" stories. They sold stocks yesterday because the Reading stories were authoritatively denied, and because they believed the market strong enough to take realizing sales comfortably. In this last belief they were somewhat disappointed, for the movement of prices was heavy throughout, and at the close declines were as numerous as advances, although changes in either direction were for the most part confined to fractions.

The real news of the day came not from Saratoga, where nothing more than the expected happened, but from the money markets, home and foreign. Here call money rose to 2½ per cent. for the first time since the week of July 23 last, demand sterling advanced 30 points, the banks shipped $500,000 gold to Canada, and reported a loss of above $4,200,000 to the Sub-Treasury on routine transactions since Friday last. In London discounts moved forward sharply, rates charged on securities involved in the fortnightly settlement were substantially higher than two weeks ago, and bankers impressed by these and other developments which have followed the elevation of the German Bank rate expressed the opinion that the English Bank rate might possibly go up a full 1 per cent. at Thursday's meeting of the Directors. All this is in a way seasonable; on this side we have the great October disbursements to finance this week as well as an enormous crop demand, but there are two elements of uncertainty in the situation not ordinarily present, these being the banking deadlock over cotton bills of lading and the expansion of banking loans throughout the country to record figures in the face of what is everywhere conceded to be quiet trade and trifling stock speculation. It is obvious that the credit fabric is greatly inflated, but the consequences are not yet clear.

Routine matters claiming some attention included the August earning statements of the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific, where heavy losses in net followed large gross increases, and cheerful reports from the corn belt, particularly from Iowa, where 90 per cent. of the crop is officially pronounced safe from frost damage, a proportion which will perhaps hold true for other surplus States. Grain markets were naturally heavy under the circumstances in spite of the feeble efforts made to unsettle sentiment by the use of the reports of light frosts in certain sections of the corn country on Monday night.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Tuesday.

Much attention was paid on the Consolidated Stock Exchange in the late afternoon to the political news bulletins, and the latter were responsible for the closing out of a good many long lines in the final half hour, imparting a weak tone at the close. The market was strong for the greater part of the day, and higher prices by a small fraction than were attained on the New York Stock Exchange were registered by a number of prominent stocks. Transactions totaled 74,750 shares, with forty-eight different stocks on the list.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Sept. 27.—The local market was irregular, and rather inclined to sag to-day. Lake declined to 32¼, North Butte to 25¼, and Amalgamated to 61½. Losses in the balance of the list were confined to fractions. The market closed steady at a slight rally from the low point of the day.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

The Market's Position.

There were a number of topics of much more interest to Wall Street yesterday than the convention under way in Saratoga. The results there were taken for granted and interest went forward to the outcome of the Democratic gathering at Rochester. Mayor Gaynor's first letter—the Mayor's second letter, that to James Creelman, did not come out until after market hours—was looked upon as placing him definitely in the running, and comment on it indicated that the Stock Exchange would have looked upon it as a favorable development. The point of immediate interest, however, was the excellent account, in a purely technical way, which traders insisted the market had been giving of itself for several days. Their contention was that at no time during the Summer had such an exhibition of sustained strength as that presented by the market over much of last week, and particularly on Monday, failed to produce a volume of selling which could be safely set down as genuine liquidation. No such liquidation has followed in the present case and the deduction made is that the market is well on toward a sold-out condition and is responding by preference to good rather than unfavorable news. What puzzles the professional element sorely is the question whether all this is to be interpreted as the inception of a sustained advance or merely the familiar bull move in a bear market.

No Reading Melon.

Reading was again a decided feature of the day's business, its renewal of strength bringing forth a report that the Directors would meet in Philadelphia in the course of the day to declare that extra dividend which so many traders have already spent several times over. Philadelphia sent denials of the rumored meeting, asserting that the board did not come together again in regular session until Oct. 19, and that the first meeting for dividend purposes was not scheduled until the last month of the present year. Very few of those who discussed this question of extra dividends stopped to consider the bearing of such payments at present upon the current campaign for higher freight rates, and a similar disregard for the fitness of things marked another of the day's reports regarding railroad affairs, that having it that the Rock Island system would shortly turn up in the Southern Pacific's possession. There now exists a little difference of opinion between the Harriman roads and the Government over the status of Union Pacific and Southern Pacific as regards competition, and a further controversy of the same character probably will not be invited until the first is out of the way at least.

London on German Position.

In connection with the advance in the discount of the German Bank it is interesting to learn from the latest issue of The London Statist to reach this side just what the English money market looks for from the German market. Referring to Germany, The Statist, speaking in advance, of course, of Monday's rise in the German discount, has the following to say:

"There the value of money is rapidly rising, and everybody in a position to judge anticipates that at the end of the month there will be, as there always is, an immense overissue of notes. Germany may take some gold, therefore. And, what is more probable, the Imperial Bank of Germany may put up its rate of discount even before the end of the month. But that Germany will be a large taker of gold is not probable. On the other hand, every one who studies matters economic is aware that France already has begun to buy wheat on a considerable scale, and that in all reasonable probability she will have to go on buying. Matters being so, it may safely be taken for granted that the Bank of France will find it expedient to allow whatever gold may be required to secure wheat to be withdrawn from it. The gold parted with by the Bank of France will, therefore, be available for the demands of some taker of gold, whoever that taker may be. It is therefore to be set off against all the demands that are at all likely to come upon the London market. It is true, of course, that the money market changes very rapidly, and there may be a change for which nobody is now looking for. But, judging from the facts that exist at the moment, we repeat that there is no probability of a disturbing demand for gold for any country."

Transatlantic Earnings Better.

A large increase in net earnings by the North German Lloyd for the first half of the current year is attributed by the Executive Board of the company in cable dispatches received by the New York agents as "principally due to the better business conditions in North America." The surplus for the first six months of 1910 after the payment of general expenses and interest, was approximately $2,300,000. The improvement over the same period last year amounts to $1,050,000, a gain of 84 per cent.

The steady progress of corn havesting is rapidly putting the crop out of danger of frost damage and thereby giving daily greater surety to the Sept. 1 promise of a bumper yield. The report of the Iowa Crop Bureau, made public yesterday, shows 90 per cent. of the corn in that State already harvested and makes the prediction that much of the remainder will be out of danger from even a heavy hoar frost within from ten days to two weeks. The report makes favorable comment on agricultural conditions generally in the State and speaks of a large increase in the acreage of wheat the planting of which, with other Fall seeding, is going on under highly favorable conditions.

Curb Brokers Go Inside.

The last two purchases of Stock Exchange memberships have been by Curb brokers. The outside market this Summer has been passing through the dullest period since the collapse of the mining boom four years ago. It is not only the stagnation in mining shares that the Curb is suffering under, but brokers have had the added discourage of seeing stock after stock of the most important mining companies, and therefore the most active in the legitimate trading, taken over by the big board.

Oriental Bank Finally Closes.

Stockholders of the Oriental Bank, which closed its doors early in 1908 after surviving the immediate panic period, formally voted yesterday to dissolve the organization. Depositors of the bank were paid in full. The bank has done no business for over two years.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

Happenings of a Day in London, Paris, and Berlin.

LONDON, Sept. 27.—Money was in increased demand and discount rates were firmer to-day.

The settlement restricted business on the Stock Exchange. Carry-over rates were harder for Americans ranging from 3 to 4 per cent. Business for the new account was small. Consols recovered a fraction, and trunk lines, Mexican rails, and Kaffirs improved, but rubber shares closed weak.

American securities opened quiet and about unchanged. During the forenoon trading was light, and prices after a slight advance eased to the opening level. New York alternately bought and sold in the afternoon, and the market closed irregular.

Bar silver steady, 24⅞d per ounce.

Money, 1 per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 2⅞@3 per cent.; for three months' bills 3⅛@3¼ per cent.

PARIS, Sept. 27.—Prices were firm on the Bourse to-day.

Exchange on London, 25f 23c for checks.

BERLIN, Sept. 27.—Prices were strong on the Boerse to-day.

Exchange, on London, 20 marks 43 pfennigs for checks.

Private discount rate, 4⅛ per cent.

WATER STILL SCARCE IN WESTCHESTER

New York Allows Big Main to be Tapped, Giving Mount Vernon 1,000,000 Gallons a Day.

ONLY ONE-THIRD OF NEEDS

Two Pailfuls a Day for a Family—Shortage at Hastings, Dobbs Ferry, and Ardsley.

Although the water famine in Mount Vernon has been somewhat relieved by tapping one of the big mains of the City of New York between East Chester and Pelham Manor and pumping the water into the Pelham reservoir, the supply is still inadequate. In other sections of Westchester County fully 200,000 people are menaced by the shortage, and the danger of fire grows. Mayor Edwin W. Fiske of Mount Vernon, who worked all night on the tapping of the New York supply, was on the line again yesterday without a wink of sleep.

There was water on the first floor of all residences in Mount Vernon, but the pressure was so low it did not flow on the second floors in many sections of the city until to-night. Between 50,000 and 60,000 gallons were pumped hourly from the New York City main into the Pelham Reservoir, and by nightfall there were nearly a million gallons there. Mount Vernon normally uses 4,000,000 gallons a day.

By to-morrow Mayor Fiske says he expects 1,800,000 gallons will be running into the reservoir daily. The Mount Vernon schools were again closed to-day because of the shortage of water. Families of from three to seven persons have had to get along on two pails of water a day. Fire Chief Howard says it is of great importance that the people continue to take extra precautions against fire.

To supply Hastings, Dobbs' Ferry, and Ardsley the Westchester County Chamber of Commerce through its representatives was able to get 1,000,000 gallons a day from the Tarrytown Water Company, and this water is running in the Ardsley Reservoir.

At the present time a 3,000,000-gallon pump is being installed at Ardsley, on the Saw Mill River, where it is planned to pump water from that stream into the mains of the Consolidated Water Company.

WINNING YACHTS IN NEW YORK BAY RACES

Most Successful Season in the History of That Water—Competitions Were Close.

Racing yachts in New York Bay concluded the most successful season in history with the Fall regatta of the Atlantic Yacht Club. Forty-one boats raced pretty consistently, as shown by the 474 starts in the twenty open regattas held, and finishes were in most cases so close as to afford fine competition.

The names of the champions in each class have already been published, but since the awards of pennants are calculated on a percentage basis championship results do not always furnish a comprehensive review of the season's work.

Four Class Q boats raced steadily, and one has only to glance over the even distribution of the prizes to realize how keen was the fight for honors. Seconds only separated the first from the last boat at times, and seldom was the difference greater than one or two minutes. T. S. Noble's Gray Jacket proved the most successful, winning 7 firsts, 5 seconds, and 2 thirds out of seventeen starts, and Hendon Chubb's Spider II. came next with 5 firsts, 3 seconds, and 8 thirds. W. H. Childs's More Joy might have given the Gray Jacket a good run for the pennant had she stuck to the lower bay, but she was on the Sound most of the time. Her five races in the Atlantic Yacht Club meet ,however, seemed to prove her a close rival to Gray Jacket, and faster than the others in the class.

The two divisions of the handicap class furnished the opportunity to owners of outclassed craft to enjoy excellent sport, and they were not slow in taking advantage of it. In the first division Le Sauvage and Geer's Joy took most of the plate ,winning 10 firsts, 4 seconds, and 3 thirds ,while J. H. Ives's La Cubana corraled 5 firsts, 2 seconds, and 5 thirds. In the second division W. Pendleton's Breeze led with 7 firsts, 5 seconds, and 1 third, closely followed by R. Rumnell's Careless with 9 firsts and 4 seconds.

R. B. Moore earned a sweeping victory in Class S with his little sloop Blue Bill. He captured 13 firsts, 4 seconds, and 2 thirds out of nineteen starts, a prize in eevry race, while his nearest competitor, F. P. Currier's Bensonhurst, took but 1 first, 7 seconds, and 5 thirds.

Class X provided the largest fleets throughout the season, seldom showing less than ten starters. Premier honors went to Hall, Thum and Durland's Slow Poke, with 6 firsts, 5 seconds, and 4 thirds, while F. L. Billingham's Skylark and R. E. Speir's Bobs were close for second place, the former with 4 firsts, 1 second, and 2 thirds, and the latter with 3 firsts, 3 seconds, and 2 thirds.

Aries, owned by F. C. Moore, cleaned up the Y class in a conclusive manner. She only missed getting a trophy in one race out of twelve starts, and finished with 9firsts and 2 seconds to her credit. F. de F. Bailey's Skeets was second best with 2 firsts, 7 seconds, and 2 thirds.

Suit On to Dissolve Patterson & Co., Contractors on Catskill Aqueduct.

Benjamin Barker, Jr., and James G. Shaw of this city have been appointed temporary receivers for the firm of Patterson & Co., contractors on the Bull Hill tunnel of the Catskill Aqueduct, by Judge Ward of the United States Circuit Court, with a bond of $20,000, in a suit for a dissolution of the partnership brought by James W. Patterson, Jr., of Pittsburg, against John W. Patterson of Putnam County, N. Y. The receivers are authorized to continue work on the contract, and creditors are ordered to show cause on Oct. 6 why the receivership should not be made permanent.

The liabilities are said to be $107,649, consisting of secured, $38,495; on open account, $26,000, and notes not due, $43,154. The assets are nominally $281,142, consisting of plant, $91,000; estimates, $29,142; retained percentage, $32,000; held for tunnel trimming, $20,000; profit on cement, $20,000; calculated profit on concrete, $89,000.

The partnership was formed on March 23, 1909. It is said that about half the work is completed on the tunnel contract.

MULATTO HELD FOR SWINDLE

Court Dismisses Habeas Corpus Writs —Boston Police Want Him.

P. Sheridan Ball, a mulatto, who said he was President of the Mercantile Real Estate Agency, was before Supreme Court Justice Gavegan yesterday on a writ of habeas corpus. He had been arrested on a warrant charged with grand larceny in Suffolk County, Mass.

Andrew H. Williams, a negro machinist, appeared against Ball, who was in the custody of Police Inspector William J. Irwin of Boston, and said that Ball had obtained $300 from him on May 26 last.

"I was looking around to buy on the installment plan a $6,000 house at 63 Camden Street, Boston. Ball's agent told me Ball could buy the house much cheaper for cash, and if I paid $300 he could save me $500. I gave him the money and he left Boston."

Ball's defense was that Williams had got his money back through a civil suit. He denied he had stolen the money, if it was stealing, until he took it out of the State of Massachusetts, but these defenses Justice Gavegan ruled were incompetent, and dismissed the writ. Inspector Irwin said that the Boston police had many claims against Ball, who, he said, had operated extensively among negroes.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

A Twelve-Story Loft Building to be Erected in the Murray Hill District—Signs of Renewed Activity in Auction Market—Big Foreclosure Suit.

Plans for a twelve-story office building almost on the corner of Madison Avenue and Fortieth Street were filed yesterday, the most forcible indication given thus far of the commercializing of the old-time exclusive residential section of Murray Hill. The building is to be erected on the vacant plot adjoining Mrs. Clarence M. Hyde's house, on the northwest corner of Madison Avenue and Fortieth Street, ninety-two feet west of Madison Avenue, and which was purchased some time ago by Mrs. Hyde to protect her residence.

Mrs. Hyde leased the entire property a short time ago to the Anderson Auction Company for twenty-one years, with renewal privileges, the price to be paid for the first period being $25,000 a year. The Anderson Auction Company has now decided to utilize the vacant lot by erecting a tall office building, a portion of which will be used for its business and the remainder rented to other tenants. N. C. Mellen, the architect, places the cost of the structure at $100,000. In the building plans it is called an extension of the Hyde residence, but although it will be connected with the dwelling, the exterior of which will be unaltered, the new twelve-story structure will actualy be a distinct building.

It is significant, in the light of the recent startling changes in this fine old residential quarter of the city, to note that Mrs. Hyde was one of the leaders a few years ago in the effort to drive every vestige of business from that part of Madison Avenue. She purchased the house on the southwest corner of Fortieth Street, exactly opposite her former residence, for the purpose of preventing its continued use for a dressmaking establishment.

Only last week it was announced that James Speyer had bought a fifty-foot plot on Fifth Avenue, below Eighty-seventh Street, for his future home when he thinks the time has come to leave his fine residence at 257 Madison Avenue.

Diagonally opposite the projected Anderson twelve-story building the old dwellings at 16 and 18 East Fortieth Street are being torn down for the erection of a twelve-story loft for the Sterling Bronze Company, which will extend through to 13 East Thirty-ninth Street.

Just west of the newly projected building, at 9 and 11 East Fortieth Street, are the dwellings once occupied by James Hazen Hyde, and still owned by him.

Renewed Activity in Auction Market

The auction market showed signs of renewed activity yesterday when a number of well-known operators and investors attended the executors' and partition sales held in the Vesey Street salesroom.

There was some lively bidding, especially on the Bronx property, and several of the parcels were secured by outside bidders.

One of the most important sales scheduled was a large plot at the northwest corner of Lexington Avenue and Twenty-third Street, opposite the College of the City of New York, which was put up for sale by Bryan L. Kennelly to recover a mortgage of $110,000 made by the American Ice Company. It was bid in by the company for $175,000. There is a prior mortgage of $100,000 outstanding against the property, which was purchased several years ago by the Matlock Realty Company.

A partition sale by Joseph P. Day of lots on Monroe and Clay Avenues, Bronx, resulted in purchases by Thomas Darby and Charles Buckbee, the former paying $10,500 for the northeast corner of Clay Avenue and 174th Street, and the latter got three lots forming the northeast corner of Monroe Avenue and 174th Street for $9,600.

Several tenements and Bronx parcels are to go under the hammer to-day in the salesroom.

Bronx Sales.

Charles A. Weber has sold for a client 1,353 Webster Avenue, a four-story and basement double flat, on a lot 25 by 90 feet, to an investor, who gives in payment 110 and 112 South Twelfth Avenue, Mount Vernon, N. Y., two two-story and cellar frame two-family houses, on a plot 50 by 110 feet. The same broker has also sold for George Schutz 674 St. Ann's Avenue, a four-story and basement double flat, on a lot 27.5 by 95 feet, to an investor.

Louis Reiss has sold for David S. Carruth to Eilen Hills the two-family frame dwelling 1,039 Jackson Avenue, on lot 19 by 85.

The Tuben Realty Company has sold four lots on the north side of Town Dock Road, one block east of Eastern Boulevard, Lohbauer Park. The buyers intend to make improvements.

Bank of Canada Leases Offices.

The Royal Bank of Canada has leased from the City Investing Company the ground floor and basement offices in 68 William Street, northeast corner of Cedar Street. The lease is for sixteen years and seven months from Oct. 1. The rental will be at the rate of $15,000 a year to May 1, 1922, and at the rate of $17,500 per year for the rest of the term.

Silk Firm Moves to Fourth Avenue.

The new Fourth Avenue business colony has received another recruit in the firm of Ernest & Herman Levy, manufacturers of ribbons, at present located at 72-78 Greene Street, who have leased the store, basement, and first loft in the rear of the Pocono Building at Fourth Avenue and Nineteenth Street for a long term of years. Robert S. Kaminski, who negotiated the lease, reports that the aggregate rental is about $300,000.

More Trinity Tenements to Go.

Plans were filed yesterday by the Trinity Church Corporation for another improvement to cost $80,000 on the northwest corner of Clark and Dominick Streets. It will be a four-story loft building covering a plot 75 by 125, now containing several old tenements. Renwick, Aspinwall & Tucker, the architects, have prepared for a foundation sufficiently heavy to carry two additional stories.

A $500,000 33d Street Lease.

M. Morgenthau, Jr., Company were interested as brokers in the lease which has just been consummated for the premises 43, 45, and 47 West Thirty-third Street to L. C. Riggs, the restaurateur. Mr. Riggs has taken a lease of the store, basement, and first loft for a long term of years, and will remodel the premises for his own immediate occupancy. The aggregate rental for the term is about $500,000.

Receiver of Rents.

T. Tecumseh Sherman has been appointed receiver of the rents of Clementine Court, a seven-story and basement apartment house on the northwest corner of Madison Avenue and Ninety-ninth Street, on plot 100.11 by 120, by Justice Gavagan of the Supreme Court, in proceedings brought by the Baron de Hirsch Fund against Samuel Love and others to foreclose a first mortgage of $210,000 recorded on Oct. 28, 1902. There is a second mortgage on the property held by William Crawford to secure $35,000.

Notes.

Some of Coney Island's streets are to have new sewers, the engineer's estimate being something more than $40,000 as the cost of the work.

L. J. Muhlfelder has leased for Mary Owen Borden and William H. Owen, Jr., the store and basement at 18 East Twenty-third Street to the Tower Manufacturing Company for a long term of years. The Horace S. Ely Company represented the lessor.

The well-known real estate firm of J. Romaine Brown & Co. moved to its new offices in the Tilden Building, 105 West Fortieth Street, yesterday.

Susan Snyder is the buyer of 37 West Eighty-third Street, recently reported sold in this column, by Mrs. Barbetta Baruch.

THE FINEST RESIDENTIAL BUILDING IN THE WORLD

These apartments express every exclusive and luxurious feature of the finest private residence.

The rooms are all light—many of the suites having four exposures. In most of the suites all of the sleeping and living rooms face the street, none open on the court. The entertaining rooms, including a Living Room 19x30, Music Room 25x17, Library or Billiard Room 18x17, and Reception Room 15x21, are arranged around a uniquely constructed conservatory. Any number of large closets—one specially for millinery, etc., divided into glass-partitioned compartments—open off from the sleeping rooms.

A kitchen 13x20, probably the largest in any apartment house in New York, completely fitted out, and excellent accommodations for the servants, largely eliminate the servant troubles. Additional rooms can be rented.

Inspect one or two of the apartments that we have remaining for lease at $6,500 and $7,000—suites including eleven to fourteen rooms and five bathrooms—and you will immediately realize the many decided advantages of these apartments over all others in New York.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Confections Composed of Fruits Must Pay Duty as "Confectionery."

A. A. Vantine & Co. were unsuccessful yesterday before the Board of United States General Appraisers in an attempt to secure lower duty on importations of confections composed of sugar, glucose, fruit pulp, and flavoring materials made in imitation of lemon slices, orange slices, and other fruits. The merchandise was classified by Collector Loeb under the provision in the tariff act for "confectionery" with a tax of 15 cents a pound, whereas the importers alleged a lower duty applicable. Judge Waite, in his decision for the board, holds that the assessment returned by the Collector is correct, and is controlling. The protest is accordingly overruled.

A protest filed by George Borgfeldt & Co. was disposed of adversely to the importing concern. The merchandise coming before the tribunal for review consisted of women's handbags, composed of metal and cotton ornamented with beads, metal being the component material of chief value. The bags were classified for duty under the provision in the tariff for beaded articles with a tax of 60 per cent. The importer claimed that the bags should be allowed to enter at 45 per cent. as articles in chief value of metal, or at 35 per cent. under Paragraphs 418 or 450. The claims are all overruled, and the Collector's decision affirmed.

The board failed to grant relief to importers of Chinese products, who alleged that the assessments made by the Custom House authorities on a substance assessed as starch was erroneous. It was the contention of the importers that the article fell within the designation in the tariff act of 1909 for "rice flour and rice meal." Acting on a report made by the Government chemist at New York the board decides that the classification imposed was correct. The protests are overruled. Among the importers affected by the board's ruling are the North American Mercantile Company, Ti Hang Lung & Co., and Yee Chong Lung & Co.

Decisions in other customs cases were handed down as follows: Continental Forwarding Company, W. B. Quaintance, Theodore Schisgall, National Aniline and Chemical Company, Luyties Brothers, Cohn & Rosenberger, Mogi, Momonoi & Co., Albert Lorsch & Co., L. Straus & Sons, Ballin & Taylor, Otto Seyd, Mercr & Co., T. Buettner & Co., F. Vogel & Sons, S. G. Simpson & Co., Gimbel Brothers, Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co., and the Jones Dry Goods Company.

RECEIVERS' SALES.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT FOR the Southern District of New York.—GEORGE P. HUDSON, Complainant, against NEW YORK & ALBANY TRANSPORTATION COMPANY, Defendant.—EMPIRE TRUST COMPANY, as Trustee, Intervenor, against GEORGE P. HUDSON and others.

Notice is hereby given that, pursuant to an order of resale made by the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York in the above-entitled cause on September 13th, 1910, and filed in the office of the Clerk of said Court on September 16th, 1910, I, Joseph H. Choate, Junior, as Receiver of the defendant New York & Albany Transportation Company, in exercise of the powers and duties by said order conferred upon me, will on the 29th day of September, 1910, at twelve o'clock noon of that day, offer for sale by Joseph P. Day, Esq., auctioneer, by public auction to the highest bidder, the property, a brief general description of which is given below, in accordance with the terms and provisions of said order, on the steps of the north main entrance of the New York County Court House, Chambers Street, in the Borough of Manhattan in the City of New York.

The following is a brief general description of the property to be sold:

The property of the defendant, New York & Albany Transportation Company, namely, the two steamboats "Frank Jones" and "Saratoga," together with their engines and boilers, as the same shall be on the day of the sale directed in and by said order of resale, together, also, with such permanent additions or fixtures as have been made or affixed to the hulls or structures of said steamboats or either of them since July 27th, 1909; and together, also, with such tackle, apparel, and furniture as was sold with said vessels on said July 27th, 1909, and still remains on board (but without any tackle, apparel and/or furniture placed on board by the purchaser or possessor under the sale of July 27th, 1909); and all the right, title and interest of said defendant New York & Albany Transportation Company in and to said property. The said tackle, apparel and furniture to be sold, as aforesaid, will be sold without warranty or representation by or on behalf of the Receiver as to the kind, quality, quantity, value or existence thereof.

All the said property will be sold in one parcel, free and clear of all maritime, statutory or other liens of any nature, kind or description whatsoever, excepting only maritime liens and statutory liens based on credit extended to said vessels, or either of them, arising or arisen since July 27th, 1909, and excepting also like liens existing on July 27th, 1909, but not submitted to the Special Master appointed in the above entitled suit.

The said property will be sold for cash only, and the lowest bid which will be received or accepted, will be $70,000 lawful money of the United States.

The successful bidder shall forthwith pay in cash to the Receiver ten per cent. of the amount of such bid, and shall pay in cash the remaining ninety per cent. of such bid on delivery of the bill of sale and of possession of said property.

Any sale shall be subject to confirmation by the Court, and if any bid shall be accepted by the Court and the bidder thereof shall fail to comply with all the conditions of sale and the orders of the Court in respect thereof, all moneys paid or deposited on account of his bid or as part thereof shall be forfeited and applied as the Court may direct.

The "Frank Jones" may be inspected by intending bidders on the 21st, 23d, 27th, and 29th days of September, 1910, and the "Saratoga" on the 22d, 24th, 26th, and 28th days of September, 1910, between the hours of ten o'clock in the forenoon and three o'clock in the afternoon at Pier No. 39 North River, in the Borough of Manhattan, in the City of New York, and the Receiver will have a representative on board at the times aforesaid to show said vessels.

For further information as to the tackle, apparel, and furniture to be sold reference is made to the inventories, schedules, and other written information in the possession of the Receiver, which may be examined during office hours at his office, No. 60 Wall Street, Borough of Manhattan, New York City. Such inventories, schedules, or other written information shall not be nor be construed as warranties or representations by or on behalf of the Receiver, but any purchaser at said sale shall be held to rely solely upon his own knowledge of the kind, quality, quantity, value, or existence of any tackle, apparel, or furniture on, and/or appertaining to the "Frank Jones" or "Saratoga," or both or either of them.

For the particulars as to the said sale and the terms and conditions thereof, and as to the property to be sold, reference is made to said order of resale dated September 13th, 1910, and filed in said suit in the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York on September 16th, 1910, and to the terms of sale, copies of which may be obtained at the Receiver's said office.

Dated September 20th, 1910.

BRICKLAYERS STRIKE; BUILDINGS TIED UP

4,000 Workers Quit in Sympathy with the 10,000 Locked Out by Employers.

OTHER TRADES IN IDLENESS

Forced to Suspend Work on Vanderbilt Hotel, Many Office Buildings, and Apartment Houses.

The lockout of the bricklayers of ten of the thirteen unions in the city which went into effect yesterday was followed by strikes of most of the members of the other three unions, in protest against the lockout. Strikes, on top of the lockout, were not expected. The result, according to the official reports of the international officers of the bricklayers, was that work was stopped on practically every building in the city where bricklayers were working.

The unions which were not locked out, and which had voted to call off the strikes on the contracts of F. T. Nesbit & Co., which caused the lockout, were Nos. 1, 7, and 32. The leaders of the insurgents reported that of the first two unions, most of the members had gone on strike, and that all in 32 had struck.

About 10,000 bricklayers were directly affected by the lockout and 4,000 by the protest strikes. About 12,000 laborers were thrown idle as well as a large number of granite cutters, stone cutters, and others, and, if the lockout last many weeks, great numbers of workmen in other trades will be thrown into involuntary idleness.

Among the buildings reported yesterday among hundreds of others as being affected by the lockout and strikes are the Whitehall Building, near South Ferry; the Vanderbilt Hotel, Park Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street; a twelve-story office building at Fourth Street and Broadway; a sixteen-story office building at Astor Place and Broadway, and two five-story annexes to Bellevue Hospital. It was said that many apartment houses will also be involved.

The action of the bricklayers virtually takes the control of the local unions from the local executive officers and places it in the hands of the international officers. Most of the local officers were in favor of averting trouble by calling off the strikes on the Nesbit contracts, but could do nothing against the vote of the rank and file. The headquarters of the local executive officers at 2,304 Broadway have been practically deserted for the last few days, and yesterday the Labor Temple at Eighty-fourth Street, near Second Avenue, which has been made the headquarters of the locked-out men and the strikers, was buzzing with activity. International President W. J. Bowen and International Vice President Thomas R. Preece are in charge there.

"Practically every building, large and small, where bricklayers were working throughout the city is affected by the strike," said Mr. Bowen. "I could not give even a partial list of the buildings or men in other trades involved to-day, but we have districted the city, and to-morrow committees will go round and get the results of the lockout and strikes."

The Mason Builders' Association did not meet yesterday, and the Board of Governors of the Building Trades Employers' Association, to which the Mason Builders belong, will wait to see what happens within the next day or two before taking action. A contractor in this central organization of employers said:

"The bricklayers have menaced the whole future of their trade by making an issue of trouble in Newark with which they had no concern, and thus forcing the lockout. The rank and file, most of whom do not attend the union meetings, did not want trouble, I believe, but in spite of this they blindly followed the orders of the business agents by striking in violation of an agreement subscribed to by their own officers. Besides violating this agreement they have jeopardized the chances of a continuance of the high wages they were receiving."

GREENWICH VILLAGE HEARING

Aldermen Consider Proposal to Widen Morris Street.

The Greenwich Local Improvement Committee of the Aldermen met at the City Hall yesterday for a hearing on a proposal to increase the width of Morris Street, which runs west from Broadway at Bowling Green, from 30 to 75 feet. Among those in favor of the widening are the Standard Oil Company, whose great building faces Morris Street; the United States Realty Company, the B. T. Babbitt estate, E. F. Soarles, the Broad Exchange Company, and Alma F. Gallatin.

Other property owners appeared at the hearing to object to the proposal, saying that the improvement would cost $3,250,000 and the assessment for it would not include the property of those who desired the widening of the street. Consulting Engineer E. P. Goodrich of Borough President McAneny's office, said that the cost of the widening would be $1,500,000, including $500,000 for the property taken.

He said that the area of assessment could extend from Bowling Green to Liberty Street, and from West Street to New Street. The great value of property in this area, he believed, would make the assessment merely nominal. The matter was put over for decision.

TO CHANGE LIBRARY LIONS.

Those Now at the Entrance Made Purposely Too Large.

In answer to recent criticism of the disproportionate size of the lions at one of the entrances to the new Public Library, Thomas Hastings of the firm of Carrere & Hastings, 225 Fifth Avenue, said yesterday afternoon that the figures were not intended as permanent ornaments of the library façade. E. C. Potter will execute the marble figures, which will take the place of the plaster casts.

Mr. Hastings said that the figures which have been criticised were built larger than scale in order that effective studies might be made of the detail, but that the marble figures would be scaled down to proper proportions. The final work will have to pass the censorship of the Municipal Art Society before being accepted.

To Remove Riverside Encroachments.

Another chapter in the history of the fight of Mrs. Charlotte Y. Ackermann to have the house fronts in Riverside Drive, between Eighty-second and Eighty-third Streets, cut off, was written yesterday. Park Commissioner Stover, through Assistant Corporation Counsel Pierce, withdrew the appeal of the city to the Court of Appeals against a mandamus issued by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court compelling him to remove the front walls of six five-story houses on that block.

SHOOTING PUZZLES POLICE.

Man and Woman Refuse to Identify Prisoner Held for Attacking Them.

As Henry Friedman, a cloakmaker of 216 West Thirteenth Street, and 19-year-old Lillian Atrofsky of 501 West Twenty-ninth Street, who are engaged to be married in about a month, were looking for furniture for their home last evening, a man crept up behind them at Allen and Rivington Streets and fired a revolver shot at the girl.

The bullet lodged in her shoulder. As she turned with a cry the man fired again, this time at Friedman. The bullet struck him in the chest, but was deflected by his suspender buckle and inflicted only a slight flesh wound. The assailant fired another shot, which went wild, and then turned and disappeared in the swarm of returning shopworkers that filled the street.

Half a block away Policeman Whitman saw a man running toward him with a revolver in his hand. He grabbed the man, and found that three chambers of the revolver had been discharged. At the Eldridge Street Station the prisoner, who said he was Abraham Ginsberg, a tailor, of 181 Second Avenue, denied that he had fired at the couple or that he had the revolver when arrested. To the surprise of the police, both Friedman and the girl, after their injuries had been dressed by a surgeon from Gouverneur Hospital, denied that they had ever seen Ginsberg before or that he had fired the shots at them. He was held as a suspicious person. Neither Friedman nor the girl was known at the addresses they gave the police.

Tilden Statue for Madison Square.

Park Commissioner Stover yesterday received a letter from John Bigelow, George W. Smith, and L. V. F. Randolph, trustees of the estate of Samuel J. Tilden, asking permission to put a statue of Tilden in Madison Square Park, on the west side, between the Farragut and Seward statues. The letter says that the trustees have the necessary funds and the sanction of the courts for the project. The Commissioner said he favored the erection of the statue.

IN NEW JERSEY.

In Jersey City, Howard McGowan of 2 Wayne Street, was convicted yesterday in Quarter Sessions of obtaining $3,000 in cash and $200 worth of diamonds from Miss Louise Reiger, now Mrs. Farrell, a bride of six days. McGowan met Mrs. Farrell about a year ago, and, becoming infatuated with him, she loaned him the money and diamonds. She became suspicious and wrote to Troy, where she learned that he was a married man.

In Bayonne, to celebrate their victory at the primaries, members of the Third Ward Democratic Club got away yesterday with a watermelon weighing 74 pounds.

In Bayonne John Shallow of 23 West Twenty-first Street, a well-known Democrat, was held in $500 bail yesterday by Recorder Mara, charged with stuffing a ballot box at the primaries. His successful opponent for member of the County Committee, Assistant City Attorney Jesse Feinberg, Sydney Levy, and Thomas Payton testified that after Shallow had voted he shoved a ballot in the box.

In Newark the Republican State Committee is planning to present a loving cup to ex-Gov. Franklin Murphy when he retires from the State Chairmanship this week. Senator John Kean will make the presentation address. The date for the State Committee meeting has not yet been set, but it is believed that it will be held on Friday.

In Newark counsel for Mrs. Sarah Van Alen Murray of East Orange, N. J., applied yesterday to Vice Chancellor Howell to reopen the decree directing Mrs. Murray to return six-year-old Kenneth William, whom she adopted from the St. Mary's Orphanage at Providence, R. I. Vice Chancellor Howell set next Wednesday for a hearing. The court had decided that the boy should be returned because of the precariousness of the Murrays income, but now Mrs. Murray is ready to give bond to take care of him.

THINK AUTO THIEVES ATTACKED MERCHANT

Joseph Richards Found Unconscious and Robbed in the Middle of West Street.

TRUCKMAN GIVES THE ALARM

Laborer Tells Him of Attack on a Man in Speeding Auto and He Notifies the Police.

Joseph Richards, a prosperous manufacturer of 526 West 173d Street, was found unconscious in the middle of West Street, near Barrow Street, at 4 o'clock yesterday morning. His hat was gone and his clothing was disheveled. A watch he had worn for several years was missing, and a roll of banknotes, supposed to have contained $100 or more, had disappeared.

Following closely upon the finding of the unconscious man came a story by Frank Cassidy, a truckman of 171 Greenwich Street, of some one having been thrown from an automobile, which was speeding up West Street toward the Jersey ferries at a rapid speed. He said that a few minutes before 4 o'clock he was approached in West Street by a laborer, who said that he had just seen a man thrown from a speeding automobile, and that the man was lying apparently dead in the street.

Cassidy told his story to Policeman Rodgers of the Charles Street Station. Both went to West and Barrow Streets and found Richards.

There was no sign of the automobile, and the laborer who had told Cassidy about seeing the man thrown from the auto could not be found.

The identity of Richards was not learned until he was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital. There an identification card was found in his pocket. It read:

Joseph Richards, No. 526 West 173d Street. In case of accident notify McGee & Richards, No. 223 Grand Street, Manhattan.

Richards was still unconscious when he arrived at the hospital. It was late yesterday afternoon before he showed signs of returning to reason. Even then his mind wandered at intervals, and he could not tell what had happened. His skull was apparently fractured and he was injured internally.

Working on the theory that Richards had been decoyed into an automobile and, after having been taken to some dive in the lower part of the city, had been either drugged or beaten into unconsciousness, then carried to West Street, which is usually deserted at 4 o'clock in the morning, and dumped into the street, several detectives from Headquarters started out on the case. They were still searching for some clue late last night.

Mr. Richards is the junior member of McGee & Richards, manufacturers of rules, squares, and other carpenters' supplies at 223 Grand Street. Mr. McGee, the senior partner, has been ill for several months, and the burden of the business rested upon Mr. Richards, who is 51 years old.

On Monday Mr. Richards, his wife, and son Arthur went to Spuyten Duyvil fishing. They returned at 6 o'clock. After an early dinner Mr. Richards left the house, saying that he was going to keep a business appointment with some friend, but would be back soon. When bedtime came Mrs. Richards grew uneasy. This uneasiness increased yesterday morning when Mr. Richards was still away.

Late in the morning Mrs. Richards was notified that her husband was in St. Vincent's Hospital. Accompanied by her son Arthur she went there, only to find that he could not recognize them. Mrs. Richards said that her husband was averse to riding in automobiles, and had rarely stayed away from home after midnight before. There is a saloon at 181st Street and Audubon Avenue, she said, where her husband sometimes went in the early evening to meet business friends, but he was always home long before bedtime.

C. H. MACKAY HOME.

Says Europe Is Watching Us Closely—John Markle Returns Much Better.

Among the passengers arriving on the North German Lloyd liner Kaiser Wilhelm II. yesterday morning were Clarence H. Mackay and Mrs. Mackay. They had been on a two months' automobile trip through Holland, Belgium, and Germany.

"Europe," said Mr. Mackay, "is watching the United States with a great deal of interest in more ways than one. You can readily draw your own conclusions from that. Fundamentally, this country is all right, and we will work out of any difficulties which may beset us, political or other kind."

Mr. Mackay said that Germany was going forward at a wonderful rate. Industrial activity, he said, was marked, and the Germans welcome outside capital.

Other passengers on the Kaiser Wilhelm II. were the Marquise del Apartado, Marquis Manuel del Apartado, Gen. and Mrs. T. L. James, the Right Rev. Bishop and Mrs. Alexander Mackay-Smith, the Misses Mackay-Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus L. Sulzberger, and Mr. and Mrs. John Markle. Mr. Markle is a Pennsylvania mine owner, who went abroad two years ago to have his eyes treated, thinking at that time he was in danger of going blind. He returned, greatly benefited, and said that it was due to the work of Prof Hermann Pagenstscher, the German oculist.

Government Takes Neely's Bail.

Judge Holt, in a memorandum filed yesterday in the United States Circuit Court, denied the motion made in the interest of Charles F. W. Neely, head of the Finance Bureau of the Havana Ports, for an order vacating the attachment obtained by the Government as a judgment creditor against the $20,000 cash bail which he deposited in 1900 with United States Commissioner Shields.
